Carter Has 3 Names At Top Of Veep List

NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmy Carter, his hand freed by political strength that an incumbent president might envy, is wrapping up his vice presidential interviews as he waits triumphantly in the wings for tonight's opening of the Democratic National Convention.

The 37th Democratic National Convention, staged at Madison Square Garden, is expected to nominate Carter for the presidency Wednesday night by an overwhelming vote amid a harmony that contrasts to divisive party fights in 1968 over the Vietnam war and 1972 over party reform.

Sens. Frank Church of Idaho and Adlai Stevenson III of Illinois, meeting Carter today, are the last of seven finalists for the vice presidential nomination, all from Capitol Hill, to be interviewed.

Carter said Sunday he has three names at the top of his list but said he is keeping an open mind until the interviews are over.

The peanut farmer and former Georgia governor who dazzled the political establishment with his long-shot run to the nomination said he would wait until after his own nomination before revealing his choice of a running mate.

With 19 primary victories to his credit and The Associated Press delegate poll showing him with 1,653 votes, well over the 1,505 needed for nomination, Carter is wrapping up a campaign that is a sharp contrast to the close and bitter Republican nomination battle. A month ahead of the GOP convention, President Ford leads conservative challenger Ronald Reagan by only a handful of votes.

Seldom in recent political history has a potential presidential nominee had so much freedom of choice.

"I've had a unique opportunity in not having to respond to the pressures of special interest groups," Carter said Sunday. He was speaking of issues, but the implication extended throughout his campaign.

"I've gone directly to the people because the powerful political figures didn't have any confidence that I might win," he said on a television panel show.

The vice presidential selection has emerged as the major unresolved issue at the convention in the absence of a race for the top of the ticket and the calm of a party platform so secure that it's already printed and bound and in the hands of each delegate.

Carter's personal public opinion pollster, Patrick Caddell, has concluded that no particular vice presidential prospect would appreciably help or hurt Carter's own chances of winning the fall election, campaign aides said.

This is a marked departure from the past when candidates chose a running mate to balance the ticket. New Englander John F. Kennedy's choice of Texan Lyndon B. Johnson in 1960, for example, is credited by many with tilting the tight race for the Democrats.

The Carter staff said Caddell's polls show that the strength and diversity of Carter's own appeal make the No. 2 spot virtually irrelevant. The only possible trouble spot, they say, is that he not make an especially bad choice which might develop into a major scandal or embarrassment.

Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota, the party's 1972 nominee, suffered a setback when it was discovered that his running mate, Sen. Thomas A. Eagleton of Missouri, had undergone electric shock treatment for depression. Eagleton was dropped from the ticket after that disclosure.

Carter revealed Sunday that he is taking unprecedented steps to keep that sort of thing from happening to him. He said he has requested financial and

Young Boy, Two Teens Area Drowning Victims

A boy and two teenagers drowned in separate accidents Saturday in southwestern Michigan.

In Niles, 10-year-old Henry Frazier was swept into the Dowagiac river while wading with four companions on the north side of the city about 3:30 p.m. Four hours later, scuba divers found the boy's body about 30 feet away.

Near Lawton, 17-year-old Alan John LaCourse drowned while swimming in Gravel lake, about six miles south of the Van Buren county village. His body was found by boaters Sunday in about eight feet of water, 50 feet from the public access site.

A Hudsonville boy, Richard VanFarowe, 16, drowned while scuba diving Saturday about 3 p.m. in Dumont lake in Allegan county, about four miles north of Allegan.

Sheriff's deputies said the boy had been underwater about five minutes while taking a diving lesson when he suddenly experienced difficulty breathing. A witness said the boy apparently panicked in the water which was 20 to 30 feet deep.

The death of the Frazier boy was the fifth by drowning this year in Berrien county. He was the son of Mrs. Barbara Frazier, 1208 North 11th street, Niles.

Accordng to Niles police, the victim, two brothers, Alvin, 13, and Daryl, 11; a sister, Pamela, 12; and a companion, 13-year-old Alfonso Hankerson were all wading in shallow water on a sandbar next to the shoreline.

All five were holding hands when the victim apparently stepped off the sandbar and a strong current swept him under, breaking his grasp, police said.

His body was found in a 10-foot deep pocket in the river north of the Plym park golf course about 7:30 p.m.

Police said scuba divers from the Berrien county sheriff's department and state police from the Benton Harbor post found the body about 30 feet from where young Frazier was swept away. The victim was a non-swimmer, police said.

The location was described by police as a popular "swimming hole" for youngsters on the northside of Niles. But officers added that strong currents made swimming there dangerous.

The death was ruled an accidental drowning by Dr. D. Kent Hassan, Berrien deputy medical examiner.

LaCourse became Van Buren county's second drowning victim this year. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs Lucial LaCourse, route 1, Lawton.

Van Buren sheriff's deputies said he had been swimming with his sister, Elaine, 14, and a companion, Shirley Gray, 14.

The sister last saw him when he swam to a nearby dock about

Record Crowd Reported At Berrien GOP Picnic

NILES — More than 900 Republicans Saturday attended the annual Berrien county Republican picnic in what County Chairman Lee Auble termed the largest single gathering of Republicans in county GOP history.

The outing was held at Radewald Brothers' farm north of Niles.

Dr. Philip Hecht, picnic chairman and master of ceremonies, attributed the success of the event to "an increased interest in politics as it used to be — with lively discussion in a friendly setting. There was something for everyone, from four old-fashioned roast pigs and fried chicken to an organ grinder and his monkey. Everyone had a great time."

Several Republican candidates attended the picnic including Robert Huber, candidate for the U.S. Senate in the Aug. 3 primary election. Marvin Esch and Thomas Brennan, also Senate candidates, were unable to attend but sent staff representatives.

David Stockman, Helen Take, and David Frazer, all candidates for the Fourth Congressional District seat being vacated by outgoing Congressman Edward Hutchinson attended the picnic.

Miss Michigan of 1976, Diane Hansen of Berrien Center, also made an appearance.

Storm Still Rages Over Her Letter

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — President Ford, who read it, said he was "shocked" by the letter and ordered it reviewed. Helen Walsh, who wrote it, called it perfectly rational and is not one bit happy.

A seemingly routine letter mailed June 25 from the Health, Education and Welfare Department's regional civil rights office to the Scottsdale, Ariz., school district has stirred a hornet's nest of national proportion.

Signed by John Palomino, chief enforcer of antidiscrimination laws in secondary schools in the West, the letter said traditional father-son, mother-daughter school functions were sexually discriminatory. A school district which discriminates on the basis of sex could lose vitally needed federal funds, the letter said.

"I was shocked," Ford told a news conference Friday. "I think it was a very wrong decision."

Ford was so irritated by the letter, which amounted to official policy, that he ordered HEW Secretary David Mathews to review the matter. That effectively suspended enforcement of the policy, and Mathews said Friday that he couldn't agree more with the President.

It began in February when Dr. Ira King, who is in charge of making certain the Scottsdale schools comply with anti-discrimination laws, routinely queried the San Francisco HEW office.

If schools sponsored banquets and restricted them to fathers-sons or mothers-daughters, King asked, would that be considered discriminatory?

King's inquiry came to Palomino's office. He dispatched it to the regional office attorney who, in turn, "bumped it to Washington and the HEW general counsel for advice," according to Robert Fouts, public affairs officer here.

"They chewed on it for five months and the answer finally came back, 'Yes, it is discriminatory,'" recalled Fouts.

HEW officials contacted in Washington and San Francisco cited a portion of Title IX of the 1972 Civil Rights Act, which reads in part:

"Any aid, benefit, or service to a student shall not, on the basis of sex, subject any person to separate or different rules of behavior, sanctions or other treatment."

With the decision made in Washington, it went back to San Francisco, where Helen Walsh, 28, an HEW "equal opportunities specialist," was assigned to draft a reply to King.

"It was very routine," Ms. Walsh, who prefers the feminist designation, said later of the letter. "I thought the decision was very rational. The letter pointed out that having parents' night, instead of either fathers' or mothers' night, would allow fatherless boys and motherless girls to be included.

"We were only saying that these school-sponsored affairs shouldn't exclude anybody because they had the wrong parent. What about a widow with a son? Or any single

U.S. Food Grants Just Prolong Shortages

Is it possible to help feed an underdeveloped country into starvation? Yes, if dependency dulls the country's initiative to expand its own agricultural base, says an agricultural economist.

Willard Cochrane, professor of agricultural economics at the University of Minnesota, told the delegates from more than 70 nations attending the World Food Conference that large food gifts made from United States stockpiles during the 1950s and 1960s helped to depress food prices in the receiving countries and thus discouraged farmers from expanding production.

The underinvestment in agricultural development in many food-poor countries continues to the present. Cochrane rates as the number one failure of the underdeveloped countries the neglect to invest sufficiently in agriculture.

This failure may take a heavy toll in the future. The United States, Canada and other food-exporting nations are reaching their limits of agricultural production. The hungry bodies in the food-poor countries continue to multiply.

Guess Which City Is In Worst Shape Finacially?

Guess which American city has its financial affairs in such disarray that even its public accountant can't make head nor tail of the records and doesn't know if the city is operating in the red or the black? The nation's capital, Washington, D. C., is the culprit.

A nine-volume audit by the accounting firm is filled with such entries as "many inaccurate numbers" and "major omissions of financial date." Among the major discrepancies found were: Two out of three payments made to public assistance recipients were in error, unfunded liabilities in the pension program totaled $1.7 billion, and more than $100 million in delinquent accounts were found in the city's hospital billing system.

In addition, records on 120,000 water and sewer customers were so inadequate it was found impossible to determine whether these customers were properly billed or even which bills had been collected.

Blame for the mess has been assessed against district officials, Congress and the executive branch. But it is the nation's taxpayers who will be asked to help bail out the capital, beginning with a $20 million appropriation request just to put the books in order so auditors can find a place to begin.

GOP Delegate Contest Is A Real Thriller

Although the Republican National Convention does not open until Aug. 16, its outcome may well be decided a month earlier. Republicans in Connecticut and Utah will hold state conventions on July 17 to choose a total of 55 delegates to the national GOP gathering. The Connecticut and Utah delegations are the final two to be selected.

Ordinarily, the choosing of 55 convention delegates would arouse little interest outside of party circles. But this year's Republican convention is shaping up as anything but ordinary. Delegate counts conducted by major news organizations gave President Ford a lead of only about 25 votes over his challenger, former Gov. Ronald Reagan of California. Thus, the composition of the Connecticut and Utah delegations could go a long way toward determining which man will get the 1,130 votes needed for the presidential nomination.

The closeness of the Ford-Reagan race has sent election buffs back to the history books in search of "what if" precedents — what if the incumbent President is denied nomination by his party. Or what if the occupant of the White House, though nominated, is defeated in November.

It last happened in (1) 1884 when the Republicans chose James G. Blaine over president Chester A. Arthur, denying him nomination, and (2) in 1932 when President Herbert Hoover lost the election to Franklin D. Roosevelt. The present incumbent may be comforted in the knowledge that the search, in Arthur's case, goes back almost a century. But there are parallels between 1884 and 1976 that may not help the President's peace of mind.

Arthur had not been elected to the office — he moved up from the vice presidency when President James A. Garfield died of an assassin's bullet in 1881. As President, Arthur soon enraged the party's conservative wing, the regular or Stalwart faction. He refused to be a captive of the Stalwarts, who had put him in office, and they never forgave him.

The bitterness of the Arthur-Blaine convention struggle contributed to Grover Cleveland's election victory. Two other factors also hurt the Republican nominee that year. There were lingering memories of scandals in a prior Republican administration — President Ulysses S. Grant's — and the urban East had recently suffered a recession, or "panic" as such calamities were called then.

During Hoover's presidency the word "panic" was outdated and recession had not been introduced. What was happening then was the beginning of a full-blown depression — the worst the country has yet experienced. No two historians or economists can agree just how fully Herbert Hoover was responsible for the country's economic distress. But the voters in 1932 left no doubt as to whom they held responsible.

"It (the depression) was the prime factor in his defeat," Professor Frank Friedel of Harvard wrote. He explained: "The collapse of the boom of the 1920s, for which the Republicans had, understandably, taken credit brought down upon Hoover the blame for the depression."

A recovering economy in 1976 leaves only the haziest analogy with the year 1932. And a selective reading of history makes for dubious prophecy. What is of interest here is not that 1976 will harken back to 1884 or 1932 but that in politics there is a precedent for almost everything.

'Tis The Season For Dirty Tricks

WASHINGTON — As the parties make ready for Phase II of the election season — conventioneering — the political gossip is becoming toxic. The whispers are that Republican operatives have engineered at least part of the scandal involving Democratic congressmen. For instance: since Utah's Rep. Alan Howe swears he was tricked into approaching that Salt Lake City prostitute-cop, it occurs to some that the tricksters would likely be a political enemy, and the natural enemy of Utah Democrats is the Utah GOP.

Surely the suspicion is absurd. There is manifest evidence that Utah Republicans are pure as snow in the Wasatch, and besides have no idea where the bimbos hang out. Yet the talk is instructive in that it gauges the pressures building up among partisans.

Sensing victory for the first time in twelve years, some Democrats will use any dodge to keep up momentum. Sensing defeat, some Republicans will do as much to stay afloat. The vibes are thus lousy. And in this first presidential election since Watergate, there is evidence the nation is about to suffer another nose-holding campaign.

Maybe not. Jerry Ford is straight up and Jimmy Carter is the Right Hand of God. The combination does not suggest devilment so much as organ music in the cathedral. Yet what happens when angels fight? Heaven trembles.

Already the road to the White House has been muddied by one side or the other. In North Carolina, Ronald Reagan's people distributed literature reminding that Ford is soft on Sen. Ed Brooke, a black. In Florida, somebody printed posters saying that Carter was "Wanted, Dead or Alive." The George Wallace headquarters in Jacksonville was burglarized. Reaganites in California received numerous calls (false) cancelling scheduled rallies. And Mo Udall was understandably upset when Carter accused him, a Mormon, of subscribing to that church's belief that black people are inferior to whites.

As a general observation it should be noted that it was square shooter Ford who caused much of the most off-target trouble in the primaries. A letter over his signature, for example, was sent to at least one tax-exempt organization asking for money that, if given, would have jeopardized the group's special tax standing. And, too, the President has delivered some remarkably low blows to rival Reagan. In California he suggested, via television advertisements, that his opponent is the kind of nut who, if elected, would lead us right into war.

Consequently, it is Ford who worries the election watchers most. Sam Archibald, who used to head the Washington-based Campaign Fair Practices Committee, says that "Abuse is most likely in a contest where the incumbent is in danger of losing power," i.e. Ford. Archibald says he can't predict low-reading this autumn, but proposes that observers can. "When a candidate's strategy turns negative, that's the time to worry. If rather than speak of his own attributes he talks of the other guy's failures, it's a sign he may be getting desperate."

If Ford does get desperate he knows there is little anyone can do about it. The Federal Elections Commission has received more than 140 complaints of dirty politics this year, but is so paralyzed by confusing laws and responsibilities it has not yet acted on any of them.

So it is, though it's by no means certain, the name of the game this Bicentennial fall may be presidential Rollerball, at least if the tense gossip in Washington is an indication. Did you hear that Carter grows pot on his southern 40? Did you hear that the second part of Ford's deal with Nixon is to make him ambassador to China? Oh, boy. Did you think if we ask, Britain would take us back?

But It Makes A Dandy Issue

WASHINGTON — The Humphrey-Hawkins full employment bill has become an article of faith with the Democrats and it seems likely to become a centerpiece of the presidential campaign.

Yet, strangely, hardly anybody really understands what it would do — and not do.

During his unsuccessful Democratic presidential campaign, Rep. Morris Udall leaned heavily on the measure as the answer to the nation's economic woes. Republican-Conservative Sen. James Buckley of New York has made it a major whipping boy of his re-election campaign, calling it a "blueprint for catastrophe."

The bill, of course, is neither.

Basically, the bill sets forth an ideal; achievement of only 3 per cent unemployment of all adults within four years of passage. Then, in 50 detailed pages, it proposes a new system of massive national economic planning aimed at coordinating new and old programs for stimulating employment.

The measure is named after its chief Senate sponsor, Hubert Humphrey, and its House sponsor, Augustus Hawkins of Los Angeles.

What its friends and critics do not seem to understand is that the bill does not authorize any money for anything. It does not create a single new job. It is merely a statement of purpose, a blueprint for centralized economic planning. There is no price tag on anything, including the controversial section proposing public service employment as a last resort. Indeed, no estimates are even possible because most of the interrelated programs the bill suggests have not yet been legislated.

It's an economic policy bill, not strictly a jobs bill as it has been described. And it is couched in such general language that it could be a long time in the implementing. Its usefulness may depend entirely upon the next president's enthusiasm for pushing specific programs in the coordinated framework the bill envisions.

But merely the mention of a full employment goal makes conservatives see rampant inflation. They fear that congressional approval of the principle will be like the camel's nose under the tent; soon the whole beast will follow.

Probably there is altogether too much fuss about the whole thing. It will neither do what its champions imply nor what its enemies dread.

The measure is due to be voted upon in the House in late July, after the current recess for the Democratic National Convention. Passage there appears to be virtually certain.

It is not expected to come up for a vote in the Senate until that body re-convenes after a second recess for the Republican National Convention in late August. Prospects there are doubtful and in any case President Ford is expected to veto it. There are not likely to be sufficient congressional votes to override a veto.

But the Democrats don't really need the bill to become law to make it a hot campaign issue. They can take credit for the idea during the campaign and paint the President (if, of course, he happens to be the nominee) as a Scrooge who is opposed to jobs for everyone. It sounds better as an idea than perhaps actual legislation on the books, with all its limitations, could ever be.

U.S. Food Grants Just Prolong Shortages

Is it possible to help feed an underdeveloped country into starvation? Yes, if dependency dulls the country's initiative to expand its own agricultural base, says an agricultural economist.

Willard Cochrane, professor of agricultural economics at the University of Minnesota, told the delegates from more than 70 nations attending the World Food Conference that large food gifts made from United States stockpiles during the 1950s and 1960s helped to depress food prices in the receiving countries and thus discouraged farmers from expanding production.

The underinvestment in agricultural development in many food-poor countries continues to the present. Cochrane rates as the number one failure of the underdeveloped countries the neglect to invest sufficiently in agriculture.

This failure may take a heavy toll in the future. The United States, Canada and other food-exporting nations are reaching their limits of agricultural production. The hungry bodies in the food-poor countries continue to multiply.

Guess Which City Is In Worst Shape Finacially?

Guess which American city has its financial affairs in such disarray that even its public accountant can't make head nor tail of the records and doesn't know if the city is operating in the red or the black? The nation's capital, Washington, D. C., is the culprit.

A nine-volume audit by the accounting firm is filled with such entries as "many inaccurate numbers" and "major omissions of financial date." Among the major discrepancies found were: Two out of three payments made to public assistance recipients were in error, unfunded liabilities in the pension program totaled $1.7 billion, and more than $100 million in delinquent accounts were found in the city's hospital billing system.

In addition, records on 120,000 water and sewer customers were so inadequate it was found impossible to determine whether these customers were properly billed or even which bills had been collected.

Blame for the mess has been assessed against district officials, Congress and the executive branch. But it is the nation's taxpayers who will be asked to help bail out the capital, beginning with a $20 million appropriation request just to put the books in order so auditors can find a place to begin.

GOP Delegate Contest Is A Real Thriller

Although the Republican National Convention does not open until Aug. 16, its outcome may well be decided a month earlier. Republicans in Connecticut and Utah will hold state conventions on July 17 to choose a total of 55 delegates to the national GOP gathering. The Connecticut and Utah delegations are the final two to be selected.

Ordinarily, the choosing of 55 convention delegates would arouse little interest outside of party circles. But this year's Republican convention is shaping up as anything but ordinary. Delegate counts conducted by major news organizations gave President Ford a lead of only about 25 votes over his challenger, former Gov. Ronald Reagan of California. Thus, the composition of the Connecticut and Utah delegations could go a long way toward determining which man will get the 1,130 votes needed for the presidential nomination.

The closeness of the Ford-Reagan race has sent election buffs back to the history books in search of "what if" precedents — what if the incumbent President is denied nomination by his party. Or what if the occupant of the White House, though nominated, is defeated in November.

It last happened in (1) 1884 when the Republicans chose James G. Blaine over president Chester A. Arthur, denying him nomination, and (2) in 1932 when President Herbert Hoover lost the election to Franklin D. Roosevelt. The present incumbent may be comforted in the knowledge that the search, in Arthur's case, goes back almost a century. But there are parallels between 1884 and 1976 that may not help the President's peace of mind.

Arthur had not been elected to the office — he moved up from the vice presidency when President James A. Garfield died of an assassin's bullet in 1881. As President, Arthur soon enraged the party's conservative wing, the regular or Stalwart faction. He refused to be a captive of the Stalwarts, who had put him in office, and they never forgave him.

The bitterness of the Arthur-Blaine convention struggle contributed to Grover Cleveland's election victory. Two other factors also hurt the Republican nominee that year. There were lingering memories of scandals in a prior Republican administration — President Ulysses S. Grant's — and the urban East had recently suffered a recession, or "panic" as such calamities were called then.

During Hoover's presidency the word "panic" was outdated and recession had not been introduced. What was happening then was the beginning of a full-blown depression — the worst the country has yet experienced. No two historians or economists can agree just how fully Herbert Hoover was responsible for the country's economic distress. But the voters in 1932 left no doubt as to whom they held responsible.

"It (the depression) was the prime factor in his defeat," Professor Frank Friedel of Harvard wrote. He explained: "The collapse of the boom of the 1920s, for which the Republicans had, understandably, taken credit brought down upon Hoover the blame for the depression."

A recovering economy in 1976 leaves only the haziest analogy with the year 1932. And a selective reading of history makes for dubious prophecy. What is of interest here is not that 1976 will harken back to 1884 or 1932 but that in politics there is a precedent for almost everything.

Testimonial Honors Hutchinson

COLOMA — Retiring Fourth District Congressman Edward Hutchinson said here Saturday night that he hoped his successor is a "fiscal conservative."

Hutchinson's remarks were made during a testimonial held in his behalf at the Casa Del Lago restaurant, Paw Paw lake. He said a fiscal conservative was needed to help curb spending on the federal level.

The national debt is $700 billion now, according to Hutchinson, and the interest alone amounts to $123 million a day.

Wants 'Fiscal Conservative'

"The interest we're paying...is four times what our government costs were during the New Deal Era." Hutchinson told the 200 people present.

"We're living off the future..." said Hutchinson. "We have failed to pay our own way, and now it's up to the future generations to pay their way and ours too."

In another area, the congressman, first elected to office in 1962, said a major concern of his deals with the country...if "we're unable to re-elect Gerald Ford as president."

"If Jerry is re-elected, the nation will be on an even keel.

'We're Living Off The Future'

otherwise I'm apprehensive about the nation's future — especially if Jimmy Carter wins, because I don't know where he stands on anything," Hutchinson said.

During the meeting, master of ceremonies Fifth District Judge Ronald J. Taylor said Hutchinson served his constituents well and was a dedicated, hard worker in Washington for the Fourth congressional district.

Near the conclusion of the testimonial dinner, former Coloma Township Supervisor Roger Carte presented Hutchinson with a plaque denoting the area's appreciation for his efforts for both the state and nation.

Saturday night's dinner was sponsored by friends of Hutchinson.

ANNUAL ART FAIR: An estimated near 40,000 persons attended the 15th annual outdoors art fair Sunday in Lake Front park, St. Joseph. In addition to 10 member artist displays, there were 158 artists from Michigan, Texas, Georgia, Missouri, Florida, Ohio, Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, and Canada. Mrs. Michael (Ruth) Iannelli, chairman for the event, said artists' comments indicated they thought the fair one of the best in Michigan, "second only to Ann Arbor's," a four-day affair. The fair is sponsored by the St. Joseph Art Association which uses proceeds to operate the St. Joseph Art Center at 600 State street, St. Joseph. (Staff photos by Harry Smith)

Testimonial Honors Hutchinson

COLOMA — Retiring Fourth District Congressman Edward Hutchinson said here Saturday night that he hoped his successor is a "fiscal conservative."

Hutchinson's remarks were made during a testimonial held in his behalf at the Casa Del Lago restaurant, Paw Paw lake. He said a fiscal conservative was needed to help curb spending on the federal level.

The national debt is $700 billion now, according to Hutchinson, and the interest alone amounts to $123 million a day.

Wants 'Fiscal Conservative'

"The interest we're paying...is four times what our government costs were during the New Deal Era." Hutchinson told the 200 people present.

"We're living off the future..." said Hutchinson, "We have failed to pay our own way, and now it's up to the future generations to pay their way and ours too."

In another area, the congressman, first elected to office in 1962, said a major concern of his deals with the country...if "we're unable to re-elect Gerald Ford as president."

"If Jerry is re-elected, the nation will be on an even keel, otherwise I'm apprehensive about the nation's future — especially if Jimmy Carter wins, because I don't know where he stands on anything," Hutchinson said.

'We're Living Off The Future'

During the meeting, master of ceremonies Fifth District Judge Ronald J. Taylor said Hutchinson served his constituents well and was a dedicated, hard worker in Washington for the Fourth congressional district.

Near the conclusion of the testimonial dinner, former Coloma Township Supervisor Roger Carte presented Hutchinson with a plaque denoting the area's appreciation for his efforts for both the state and nation.

Saturday night's dinner was sponsored by friends of Hutchinson.

Protect Your Skin

If water sports are your thing, baby cream can be your best friend this summer.

Swimming, water skiing, surfing and skin diving can waterlog your skin unless it is covered with long-lasting protection that doesn't wash away as soon as you hit the water.

Constant exposure to water makes skin look pasty and puckered and nobody wants that.

Baby cream provides a moisture barrier so your skin is protected. It rubs right in so you don't even know you're wearing it — but it's softening your skin all the time.

It's non-medicated and all-purpose so it works for all of your skin.

Baby cream also will help keep your makeup pretty while you enjoy the water. Use it under your lipstick to protect your lips and help hold the lipstick. For a blush with staying power in the water, mix some baby cream with a liquid or cream blusher.

Meat Diet Food

If you're discovering that you're not fitting into your clothes as well as you'd like, try tasty meat salads for substantial lunches that make but modest calorie contributions.

Meat has staying power to satisfy hunger longer. Julienne strips of cooked beef, ham, veal and lamb are excellent sources of protein to combine with summer fresh vegetables and fruits. The nutritive contributions of meat help keep vitality and efficiency up while weight is going down.

A word of warning — watch that salad dressing! Try substituting a dash of lemon juice or seasoned buttermilk.

Pull Cord After Use

For safety sake, use care. Many electric slicing knives are easily activated, especially older models.

Be sure to disconnect the cord before handling the blades. In fact, a good habit to develop is to pull the cord promptly after use.

Wash, rinse and dry the cutting blades carefully. Wipe the power handle and cord clean but, do not immerse or pour running water over the unit.

Relinquish Junior Miss Sponsorship

The Lakeshore Junior Women's club has announced it will no longer sponsor the Lakeshore Junior Miss program.

Mrs. Ronald (Lynn) Fites, former chairman of the program, said the club regrets having to give up the pageant and expressed hope another organization will take over the sponsorship of the program.

Mrs. Fites said the pageant is a "very worthwhile program which awards a scholarship to a young girl to represent the Lakeshore area on the basis of poise and appearance, scholastic achievement, physical fitness, a judges' interview and creative and performing arts."

Anyone interested in sponsoring the pageant may call Mrs. Fites or Mrs. Richard Berry for further information.

Hot Water Necessary

WASHINGTON (AP) — "You can't properly clean dishes without hot water or phosphate detergents," Dr. G.H. Watrous Jr. recently told the International Water Quality symposium.

He added, "If your water is hard and you soften it you can cut the use of detergents about 50 per cent and reduce the amount of phosphorous needed to one-sixth."

Hot water is essential, he said. He recommended its temperature be at least five degrees Fahrenheit higher than the melting point of the fats soiling the dishes, but not so hot that it hardens milk and other protein soil.

Watrous is professor of food science and industry at Pennsylvania State university. The symposium was sponsored by the Water Quality Association.

DOG DAYS' CHIC

Chemises aren't out of the fashion picture. This cool, comfortable design is especially good during late summer months when one wants to dress up a bit without feeling smothered by layers of clothing.

Livestock Need Vitamins

Livestock and humans have one characteristic in common, both require a diet that provides an adequate supply of vitamins and minerals.

Lack of iodine will cause goiter, lack of iron will cause anemia and lack of vitamin D will cause rickets in farm animals just as in humans.

Farmers and ranchers are very careful to see that their animals receive the vitamins and minerals they need, either naturally through the food they eat or by the addition of special supplements.

YWCA Offers Swim Classes

Two new swim classes and a final term of daily lessons will begin soon at the YWCA in St. Joseph.

A first time sprites class for children three through five-years-old who have never had lessons will begin Monday, July 19, at 11:30 a.m. and continue for 10 lessons. A parent or other responsible adult participates with each child.

Red Cross basic water safety and rescue begins Tuesday, July 20, and will meet from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. Tuesday, Thursday and Friday for two weeks.

The first portion of the class is for anyone of any age or skill and will teach safety around water, good safety attitudes, proper equipment to have around the pool and other basic information.

The second portion will require swimming skills, stress personal safety and simple rescues.

Participants 11-years-old and over who complete the class satisfactorily will receive a certificate.

The final term of children's swim lessons for the summer will begin Aug. 2 and continue Monday through Thursday for two weeks. Classes in most skills are still available and persons may register at any time.

The YWCA building will be closed Aug. 16-28 and registration for fall classes will begin Sept. 15.

For additional information or to register persons may contact the YWCA, a participating member of Blossomland United Way.

Cookout Cookery Cues

Protect your meat investment by cooking it properly — outdoors as well as in the kitchen.

Steaks can be broiled to perfection on the grill by placing them far enough from ash-covered coals so they reach the desired doneness without becoming too brown or losing their juiciness.

This means two to three inches for one-inch steaks; three to five inches for two-inch steaks. Sirloin steaks cut one inch thick require 18 to 20 minutes for rare; 20 to 25 minutes for medium. Steaks cut two inches thick require 35 to 40 minutes for rare; 40 to 45 for medium.

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

There's 'The Other Man' Too

Dear Ann Landers: You recently had a column describing "The Other Woman." Why is it no one has ever described "The Other Man"? He is everywhere. Places you'd never suspect. I'd like to try my hand at it since I know him well. My wife knows him even better.

The Other Man is never seen in the morning, unshaven, with hair disheveled, in a ratty bathrobe, groping for his glasses. He appears in the morning (at work) or in the evening at a favorite rendezvous, looking perfectly groomed and very appealing.

The Other Man is not puttering around the house in torn trousers and an old shirt, trying to fix the plumbing or a garage door or a leak in the roof. No hint of perspiration from mowing the lawn or washing the car. He smells of cologne, toothpaste, and aftershave.

The Other Man is always in a good mood. When he is with you he is out for a good time. He leaves his worries at home.

The Other Man invariably has a wife who has back trouble, is emotionally disturbed, frigid, and is a terrible nag. She doesn't understand him and talks of nothing but bills, unmanageable kids, bothersome relatives and things that are depressing. But he can't leave her to marry you — for awhile — because of financial circumstances, the children, his aging mother, his religion or his boss. His list of excuses is endless.

The Other Man doesn't care that he has caused his wife untold hours of anguish, that she has become a guilt — ridden nervous wreck, confused and unsure of herself. He doesn't give a thought to the fact that his children have heard rumors, or sense something is terribly wrong in the family. He is having a great big round ball — concerned only with himself, his pleasure and his ego, in spite of what he has led his playmate to believe. Do you know him? Look again. — Watching It All From Up Close

Dear Watching: Thank you for an insightful description. It's bound to hit a lot of people where they live — or at least visit.

Ann Was Right

Dear Ann Landers: The reader who signed himself "Tokyo" was wrong and you were right. He said the letter about the Japanese surgeon who sewed sheep hymens in deflowered virgins was a phony. The operation was, according to the original writer, called "maku saisei."

The Doubting Thomas pointed out to you (with a great deal of personal satisfaction) that there is no letter "I" in the Japanese alphabet. He said that was the tip-off.

I was born and raised in Japan and can vouch for the fact that the surgery described is not uncommon in that country. It is called "maku seisei" which means membrane regeneration. Obviously, someone made a typographical error. It should have been an "i" instead of an "l." So don't let the so-and-so grind you down, honey. — Nagasaki Nick

Dear Nick: I appreciate the vote of confidence as well as the research. You are right. It was indeed a typo, as several of my Japanese friends pointed out. (This column appears in the Asahi Evening News, an English-language paper in Tokyo.) Thanks for writing.

Are your parents too strict? Hard to reach? Ann Landers's booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom," could help you bridge the generation gap. Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Dr. Lester Coleman

I was recently married. Before that, a gynecologist found that I have a "tipped womb." I am very concerned about this and don't want to worry my husband. Could this affect the possibility of having a baby? Are there operations that can fix this? - Mrs. S.P., Vt.

Dear Mrs. P.:

You wisely had a premarital physical examination. I have often recommended that all people contemplating marriage give to each other the valuable gift of complete examination.

Your concern about a "tipped" womb would have been relieved immediately if you had discussed its implications with your gynecologist. Many patients, like yourself, are in a state of anxiety in the doctor's office. It is only when they get home that they think of the many questions they should have asked.

Most doctors understand that this frequently occurs. They welcome a telephone call or a visit during which time all anxiety-producing questions can be answered.

In most instances, a tipped uterus (womb) has no major importance. Rarely does interfere with pregnancy unless there is an unusual degree of tiping, or retroversion.

At one time, many surgical procedures were used to correct this condition. Today, these procedures are done infrequently. The use of vaginal devices and special postural exercises are very often effective in maintaining the normal position of the uterus.

At your next examination, bring to your doctor a complete list of questions that concern you. Only then will your anxiety be alleviated.

Can laxatives taken over a long period of time cause any permanent damage? — Mr. I.M.G., Wisc.

Dear Mr. G.:

There is a wide variety of laxatives. Some act as irritants. Others increase the bulk of the stool. Some alter the fluid contents of the large intestine.

Often, with the overuse of laxatives over a long period of time, the large intestine (large bowel) may lose its capacity to function normally. Changes in the thin muscular wall and lining of the bowel may be permanently affected by protracted overuse of laxatives.

Some types of colitis and inflammation of the intestinal wall may lead to chronic infection when harsh laxatives are used indiscriminately for a long time.

There are many ways to break the chronic laxative habit. Diet, intake of water and exercise can wean people away from this universal habit.

Can't Find Rest Area

Last summer, when our family took to the highways, we noted that every 15 miles or so there was an exit on the freeway marked, "REST AREA." As we whizzed by, we saw happy families at play. Daddy was making yummies over a grill, the kids were tossing a frisbee, Mother was moving a picnic table that was chained to the ground to the shade and the dog was holding his stomach with laughter.

"We could do that," I said enviously. "It wouldn't take much to toss a cooler, a bag of charcoal, and a few folding chairs in the back seat. We could stretch our legs, use the facilities, get a cold drink of water, and Daddy could read one of those big maps they frame in glass to find out where we are."

This year, everyone forgot but me. When we packed the car, I announced, "No more driving for days to find a restaurant where grease is the beverage. This year, it's the rest areas for the Bombecks."

We were on the road only 15 minutes, when we saw our first rest area. "Wanta stop?" asked my husband.

"No need," I smiled confidently. "There'll be another one in 30 miles."

I was right. Thirty miles later was another rest area. Another thirty miles, we saw another one. Then lunchtime came and we never saw another one.

At two o'clock, the children became restless and started to kick the back of the seat in protest. "Sit back and put your seat belt on," I commanded.

"I ate it," came the reply.

At 2:30, one child with his nose pressed against the window shouted, "Rest area spotted at 9 o'clock." We swiveled around and said numbly, "Rest area acknowledged . . . negative . . . on wrong side of turnpike."

At three o'clock, our stomachs were singing as a group. We were irritable, listless and one of the kids had raw hamburger breath but I couldn't prove it.

"Check the road map," said my husband. "Isn't that a rest area marked with a little teepee? Don't you see it?"

"No. It's my saliva," I said.

By four o'clock we could stand it no longer. My husband pulled over to a soft shoulder under a sign that read, "NO PARKING ANYTIME." Here, we ripped through plastic with our teeth, ate cold wieners, and watched tomatoes drip off our elbows while we were blown off our feet by passing traffic.

We weren't on our way 15 minutes, when we saw a sign, "REST AREA."

I knew without looking that there would be one every 30 miles from here on in.

Oswald: "How about some examples of strategic bidding?"

Jim: "I have a good example right here. The game was team-of-four with international match-point scoring. South was pretty sure that he could wrap up seven hearts. His problem was to get to play hearts when his not vulnerable opponents held the spade suit."

Oswald: "His bid of just five hearts was a calculated risk. He would have looked mighty silly if East-West had let him play there."

Jim: "Strangely enough, five hearts making seven would have been a score of 710. At the other table North and South slam-banged into seven hearts and East-West took the save at seven spades. The defense collected just four tricks to score a mere 700."

Oswald: "I don't like to take away credit from South's virtuosa bidding performance, but I feel that if East had been really alert he would still have bid seven spades rather than risk letting his opponents score their vulnerable grand slam."

Jim: "I agree but you can't quarrel with success."

There's 'The Other Man' Too

Dear Ann Landers: You recently had a column describing "The Other Woman." Why is it no one has ever described "The Other Man"? He is everywhere. Places you'd never suspect. I'd like to try my hand at it since I know him well. My wife knows him even better.

The Other Man is never seen in the morning, unshaven, with hair disheveled, in a ratty bathrobe, groping for his glasses. He appears in the morning (at work) or in the evening at a favorite rendezvous, looking perfectly groomed and very appealing.

The Other Man is not puttering around the house in torn trousers and an old shirt, trying to fix the plumbing or a garage door or a leak in the roof. No hint of perspiration from mowing the lawn or washing the car. He smells of cologne, toothpaste, and aftershave.

The Other Man is always in a good mood. When he is with you he is out for a good time. He leaves his worries at home.

The Other Man invariably has a wife who has back trouble, is emotionally disturbed, frigid, and is a terrible nag. She doesn't understand him and talks of nothing but bills, unmanageable kids, bothersome relatives and things that are depressing. But he can't leave her to marry you — for awhile — because of financial circumstances, the children, his aging mother, his religion or his boss. His list of excuses is endless.

The Other Man doesn't care that he has caused his wife untold hours of anguish, that she has become a guilt — ridden nervous wreck, confused and unsure of herself. He doesn't give a thought to the fact that his children have heard rumors, or sense something is terribly wrong in the family. He is having a great big round ball — concerned only with himself, his pleasure and his ego, in spite of what he has led his playmate to believe. Do you know him? Look again. — Watching It All From Up Close

Dear Watching: Thank you for an insightful description. It's bound to hit a lot of people where they live — or at least visit.

Ann Was Right

Dear Ann Landers: The reader who signed himself "Tokyo" was wrong and you were right. He said the letter about the Japanese surgeon who sewed sheep hymens in deflowered virgins was a phony. The operation was, according to the original writer, called "maku saisei."

The Doubting Thomas pointed out to you (with a great deal of personal satisfaction) that there is no letter "I" in the Japanese alphabet. He said that was the tip-off.

I was born and raised in Japan and can vouch for the fact that the surgery described is not uncommon in that country. It is called "maku seisei" which means membrane regeneration. Obviously, someone made a typographical error. It should have been an "i" instead of an "l." So don't let the so-and-so grind you down, honey. — Nagasaki Nick

Dear Nick: I appreciate the vote of confidence as well as the research. You are right. It was indeed a typo, as several of my Japanese friends pointed out. (This column appears in the Asahi Evening News, an English-language paper in Tokyo.) Thanks for writing.

Are your parents too strict? Hard to reach? Ann Landers's booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom," could help you bridge the generation gap. Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Dr. Lester Coleman

I was recently married. Before that, a gynecologist found that I have a "tipped womb." I am very concerned about this and don't want to worry my husband. Could this affect the possibility of having a baby? Are there operations that can fix this? - Mrs. S.P., Vt.

Dear Mrs. P.:

You wisely had a premarital physical examination. I have often recommended that all people contemplating marriage give to each other the valuable gift of complete examination.

Your concern about a "tipped" womb would have been relieved immediately if you had discussed its implications with your gynecologist. Many patients, like yourself, are in a state of anxiety in the doctor's office. It is only when they get home that they think of the many questions they should have asked.

Most doctors understand that this frequently occurs. They welcome a telephone call or a visit during which time all anxiety-producing questions can be answered.

In most instances, a tipped uterus (womb) has no major importance. Rarely does interfere with pregnancy unless there is an unusual degree of tping, or retroversion.

At one time, many surgical procedures were used to correct this condition. Today, these procedures are done infrequently. The use of vaginal devices and special postural exercises are very often effective in maintaining the normal position of the uterus.

At your next examination, bring to your doctor a complete list of questions that concern you. Only then will your anxiety be alleviated.

Can laxatives taken over a long period of time cause any permanent damage? — Mr. I.M.G., Wisc.

Dear Mr. G.:

There is a wide variety of laxatives. Some act as irritants. Others increase the bulk of the stool. Some alter the fluid contents of the large intestine.

Often, with the overuse of laxatives over a long period of time, the large intestine (large bowel) may lose its capacity to function normally. Changes in the thin muscular wall and lining of the bowel may be permanently affected by protracted overuse of laxatives.

Some types of colitis and inflammation of the intestinal well may lead to chronic infection when harsh laxatives are used indiscriminately for a long time.

There are many ways to break the chronic laxative habit. Diet, intake of water and exercise can wean people away from this universal habit.

Detroit Youth Gang War Flares Again

AFTER FOUR DECADES: James Frazier, who almost 40 years ago played "Buckwheat" in the "Our Gang" comedy series, points to himself in a photograph of the gang. Frazier was in Waverly, Tenn., over the weekend to attend fun-raising event for the black community. "It was the greatest thing that ever happened to me," he said of the show, which is still seen on television around the world. (AP Wirephoto)

DETROIT (AP) — A Detroit teen-ager was shot and wounded Sunday in an apparent flareup of Detroit's youth gang warfare.

The victim, Ricky Meadows, 17, told police he was shot by a group of youths he said were members of the Errol Flynns, a gang operating mainly on the city's East Side.

Meadows said he was standing on a corner about 2:40 a.m. Sunday when 20 or 30 young black males approached and began firing pistols at him. Meadows was hit in the back and leg.

It was the seventh east side gang shooting in just over a week. Earlier incidents allegedly involved members of the Errol Flynns and a rival gang calling itself the Black Killers.

Saturday, when no shootings were reported, police voiced hope that what some officers term a brewing gang war might be cooling off.

Police were holding one youth for investigation of Sunday's incident.

Officials said they had no reports of incidents involving gangs, either Friday night or Saturday.

Police said Friday a fullscale gang war may be brewing on the east side. Earlier that day, investigators said, the Black Killers ambushed and shot members of a rival gang on a street corner. Five persons were arrested.

The attack came only a few hours after officers from the police gang detail broke up a group of about 20 Black Killers, who police said were massing for an attack on the rival Errol Flynns.

On Thursday, another group of 12 youths, who identified themselves as members of the Errol Flynns, boarded a crowded city bus and terrorized passengers, police said.

Last Saturday, five of the Errol Flynns were shot as they stood in a vacant lot in the same area of the city, said Sgt. Loren Wagner of the gang control squad. Wagner said police tried to link the arrests of the five Black Killers Thursday with last week's ambush.

But, he said, the wounded youths refused to identify any of the Black Killers.

"What we run into all the time is a lack of cooperation from these people (gang members), even when they are the victims," Wagner said.

Officers said an increasing number of incidents have involved terrorizing citizens at random, as in Thursday night's harassment of passengers on a city bus.

The bus picked up the group of youths, who told passengers they were Errol Flynns. Witnesses said the youths began pushing, punching and verbally abusing elderly passengers.

The driver was able finally to stop and Mrs. Psahos and another woman pushed past the youths and ran to a police station to get help.

Warm Welcome By Bostonians Delights Queen

By NIKKI FINKE
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — The Founding Fathers would have been surprised but pleased, said Queen Elizabeth II, as she heard the cheers of thousands at the spot where colonists first read a Declaration of Independence from Britain.

They would have liked the idea, she said, "that eventually we came together again as free peoples and friends and defended together the very ideals for which the American Revolution was fought."

Her reception was certainly different from anything King George III would have received when Massachusetts was a rebellious colony.

Spectators lined the route of her motorcade tour, stood on rooftops and looked from windows to catch a glimpse of the only reigning monarch ever to visit this city.

Banners saying "Welcome Liz" were strung from apartment buildings and cyclists pedaled furiously to keep pace with the royal limousine.

The queen and her husband, Prince Philip, stood and waved to a sea of well-wishers from the balcony of the Old State House, where the Declaration of Independence was read for the first time to the people of Boston.

"We could think of no one person who could do a Bicentennial greater honor by their presence than the queen," said Boston Mayor Kevin H. White as he welcomed her.

Queen Elizabeth began her visit in the company of the 200-year-old frigate USS Constitution. Old Ironsides sailed alongside as the royal yacht Britannia glided into Boston Harbor, where rebellious colonists dumped British tea into the water 200 years ago.

The queen toured the Constitution, and as she left, 16 crew members, resplendent in Navy uniforms of 1812, jumped into the lower rigging and gave three cheers.

Then the queen visited the Old North Church for a morning service.

The church is best known for its "One if by land, Two if by sea" lanterns that dispatched Paul Revere on his midnight ride to warn the colonists that British troops were coming.

The most colorful event of the day took place in front of historic Faneuil Hall, as military bands and nearly 100 militia companies, dressed in full revolutionary garb, paraded before the queen.

In this heavily Irish-American city, the only demonstration against the queen came near City Hall where a group of about 75 protestors carried signs calling for the removal of English influence from Northern Ireland.

Later, aboard the yacht, the queen knighted the man who had arranged her trip through the United States. It was apparently the first time knighthood has been bestowed in America.

John Moreton, British minister in the Washington embassy, became Sir John Moreton.

About 250 persons attended a private reception aboard the Britannia.

AT BOSTON CITY HALL: Queen Elizabeth II, flanked by Mayor and Mrs. Kevin White, arrives at Boston City Hall Sunday for a luncheon. Behind the Queen some of the crowd demonstrated with placards urging an end to British control over Northern Ireland. Police estimated the crowd at 100,000 in the City Hall plaza. British royal family was visiting Boston for the day. (AP Wirephoto)

Gearhart's Family Left Grieving, Deep In Debt

By DAVE RILEY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Daniel Gearhart signed up to fight as a mercenary in Africa because his family was deeply in debt. Now, says his widow, the Angolan government that executed him wants her to pay $5,000 to get his body back.

Angry and close to tears Sunday, Sheila Gearhart said her husband died on their 11th wedding anniversary. "I'm beginning to wonder if they didn't even know that," she said. "I wouldn't be surprised."

The 34-year-old Vietnam veteran was executed Saturday by an Angolan firing squad, although he claimed he never had a chance to fight in the African country before his capture by Cuban troops. He had advertised his services as a mercenary in Soldier of Fortune magazine.

Mrs. Gearhart said her husband fought for pay because of $30,000 in debts plaguing the family. Now, facing life as a widow on welfare with four children, she said the Angolan government has told her it will cost her $5,000 to get her husband's body back.

"I can't pay it," she said from her home in suburban Kensington, Md. "There's no way I can pay it. I have four children to support."

But she said she would do "everything I can to get his body back, to give him a decent funeral."

She said she never received $1,000 that her husband said he sent her. The money was three weeks' advance pay received when he arrived in Angola. Gearhart said at his trial he believed it came from the CIA.

The pastor of the Gearhart's church said neighbors and church members had contributed "several thousand dollars" for the family.

Earlier, Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, R-Md., said from Lisbon on Sunday, that the U.S. Embassy was trying to arrange release of Gearhart's body. Mathias, who was trying to get into Angola to argue against the execution of Gearhart, was quoted as saying he was certain the body would be returned "within a few days."

But Mathias said his own effort to get Gearhart's body out of Angola had stalled.

Neighbors of the Gearhart family were shocked by the execution.

"I think it was nothing short of murder, considering he was only in the country three days and never fired a shot," said Elaine Holmes. "I think he drew the death sentence because he was an American."

A neighbor of Gearhart's mother was quoted as saying Gearhart "just wanted what everybody else had — to live a good life."

The execution of Gearhart and three British mercenaries brought strong condemnations from the U.S. and British governments.

President Ford said the execution would make "even more difficult any steps toward the normalization of relations between Angola and the United States."

Warm Welcome By Bostonians Delights Queen

By NIKKI FINKE
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — The Founding Fathers would have been surprised but pleased, said Queen Elizabeth II, as she heard the cheers of thousands at the spot where colonists first read a Declaration of Independence from Britain.

They would have liked the idea, she said, "that eventually we came together again as free peoples and friends and defended together the very ideals for which the American Revolution was fought."

Her reception was certainly different from anything King George III would have received when Massachusetts was a rebellious colony.

Spectators lined the route of her motorcade tour, stood on rooftops and looked from windows to catch a glimpse of the only reigning monarch ever to visit this city.

Banners saying "Welcome Liz" were strung from apartment buildings and cyclists pedaled furiously to keep pace with the royal limousine.

The queen and her husband, Prince Philip, stood and waved to a sea of well-wishers from the balcony of the Old State House, where the Declaration of Independence was read for the first time to the people of Boston.

"We could think of no one person who could do a Bicentennial greater honor by their presence than the queen," said Boston Mayor Kevin H. White as he welcomed her.

Queen Elizabeth began her visit in the company of the 200-year-old frigate USS Constitution. Old Ironsides sailed alongside as the royal yacht Britannia glided into Boston Harbor, where rebellious colonists dumped British tea into the water 200 years ago.

The queen toured the Constitution, and as she left, 16 crew members, resplendent in Navy uniforms of 1812, jumped into the lower rigging and gave three cheers.

Then the queen visited the Old North Church for a morning service.

The church is best known for its "One if by land, Two if by sea" lanterns that dispatched Paul Revere on his midnight ride to warn the colonists that British troops were coming.

The most colorful event of the day took place in front of historic Faneuil Hall, as military bands and nearly 100 militia companies, dressed in full revolutionary garb, paraded before the queen.

In this heavily Irish-American city, the only demonstration against the queen came near City Hall where a group of about 75 protestors carried signs calling for the removal of English influence from Northern Ireland.

Later, aboard the yacht, the queen knighted the man who had arranged her trip through the United States. It was apparently the first time knighthood has been bestowed in America.

John Moreton, British minister in the Washington embassy, became Sir John Moreton.

About 250 persons attended a private reception aboard the Britannia.

AT BOSTON CITY HALL: Queen Elizabeth II, flanked by Mayor and Mrs. Kevin White, arrives at Boston City Hall Sunday for a luncheon. Behind the Queen some of the crowd demonstrated with placards urging an end to British control over Northern Ireland. Police estimated the crowd at 100,000 in the City Hall plaza. British royal family was visiting Boston for the day. (AP Wirephoto)

Rodeo Is Arriving At Fairplain Plaza

The Benton Harbor Kiwanis club will sponsor a rodeo Thursday through Sunday at Fairplain Plaza — featuring bronco riding, calf roping, Brahman bull riding and other events. The preliminary festivities will begin Tuesday afternoon when the rodeo livestock is unloaded and penned at the plaza grounds, according to Benton Harbor Kiwanis Club Second Vice President Burwell Carmichael.

The real action, however, is scheduled to begin Thursday at 5 p.m. when the Grand Entry Parade, including two live bands and competing cowboys, marches from Elias Brothers Restaurant at the north end of the plaza to the south end where the rodeo will be held, Carmichael said. The first performance of the rodeo will immediately follow the parade.

Friday and Sunday performances will begin at 5:30 p.m., while Saturday's show is scheduled for 7 p.m. Contestants will include touring professionals, semi-pros and area cowboys.

Local cowboys interested in entering competition for cash prizes call 925-1333 between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Wednesday to register, Carmichael said.

Tickets for the event can be purchased from all Benton Harbor Kiwanians and at Rohring's Mens Clothing and Jo Ann Fabric Shop at Fairplain Plaza. Advance tickets are $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for children. Tickets at the gate are $3 for adults and $2 for children.

Carter Weighing Choices For VP

medical information from everyone on his list of possible running mates.

The accounting firm of Arthur Andersen & Co. was engaged to go over the financial data, including tax returns, Carter said, and "they have found nothing to cause me concern."

Carter said Sen. Walter F. Mondale of Minnesota, one of the finalists, reported he suffers from a mild case of high blood pressure and takes medication for it.

Carter said this "is a factor but not an over-riding factor" in his decision. Later, after meeting with Rep. Peter Rodino of New Jersey, Carter said Rodino's age, 67, also would be a factor but not an over-riding one.

Carter also has interviewed Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington. Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine and Sen. John Glenn of Ohio in his search for a ticket-mate. Church and Stevenson round out the seven finalists.

"So far as I know, the vice president will come from one of those seven people," Carter said.

Since all seven are members of either the U.S. Senate or House, this might be seen as a concession to balance the ticket. Carter, a former governor but with no experience in federal government, campaigned in the primaries as a critic of the Washington bureaucracy.

Carter has said he is interested in balance on the ticket, but he always puts this last on his list of priorities. First, he says, he wants the person best qualified ready to become president "if something should happen to me" and secondly someone who is compatible to his own political views.

Although Glenn reported that Carter had promised to notify the seven contenders of his decision before making the announcement publicly, Carter aides indicated the winner himself may not know about it until the convention has nominated Carter Wednesday night.

Only two or three other names are expected to be placed in nomination for the presidency, Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona and Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., of California, and possibly Ellen McCormack of New York, the antiabortion candidate.

Udall, who gave a party for his 321 delegates and their alternates Sunday, has said he expects to allow his name to go into nomination although he supports Carter. He said many of the delegates elected under his banner still want the chance to cast their votes for him.

Brown, arriving in New York Sunday night, said he would "be a candidate until the process reaches its conclusion."

"I don't think it's appropriate just to walk away because the process is rather inevitable," he said.

Tonight's opening session of the convention was to be largely ceremonial, with keynote speeches by Glenn and Rep. Barbara Jordan of Texas. Tuesday night, the platform will be presented by a procession of Democratic political stars including Muskie, Chicago Mayor Richard Daley and Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace.

Barring some unexpected development, Carter will be nominated on Wednesday and his running mate on Thursday, followed by Carter's acceptance speech.

The Democrats began the final countdown Sunday in a note of unity. Appearing on a television interview show, McGovern, Miss Jordan and Gov. Wendell Anderson of Minnesota, chairman of the platform committee, all voiced support for Carter, although none of them had backed him at the outset of the campaign.

"Although he was not my choice, I play by the rules and I will support him," McGovern said.

McGovern said the party has adopted "an excellent platform and Gov. Carter says he will run on it. ... It is a platform I could run on."

Miss Jordan said, "I have no difficulty at all supporting Gov. Carter ... working enthusiastically for him."

Party chairman Robert Strauss was saying that the Democrats' internal strife is a thing of the past. But he also said this doesn't mean a dull convention.

"I don't believe the American public is going to demand that we have violence as we did in 1968 to have a good convention," Strauss said. "In 1972, we were shrill, vitriolic, mean, bitter and we stayed all night. This year we have a candidate who has captured the imagination of this country."

On the eve of the convention, demonstrators supporting causes ranging from antiabortion efforts to gay liberation marched in the streets outside the convention site.

parent?"

While the President fumed, supporters rallied to what they considered an American tradition. One columnist referred to the author of the letter as a "dingle-brain bureaucrat."

Such references left Ms. Walsh "very upset," she says. "We were just saying, 'why not give people a choice?' "

The letter said in part that "functions such as father-son or mother-daughter breakfasts would be subjecting students to separate treatment and would not be permitted." The penalty for violating the antidiscrimination clauses could range from loss of federal money to court action by the Justice Department.

Palomino has refused comment on the tempest, referring all questions to HEW's public affairs office. "I have instructed everybody in this office not to comment further," he said.

The President let it be known Friday that if there are similar decisions in the future, "I will exercise my presidential prerogative to suspend them or change them."

While Palomino's letter remains in limbo, the debate rages.

A spokeswoman for the National Organization for Women said such father-son gatherings perpetuate harmful sexual stereotypes. Title IX of the Civil Rights Act is "being nickled and dimed to death," she declared.

"I suspect someone from the Land of Oz is going to say some day that celebrating Father's Day and Mother's Day separately violates equal rights," suggested Carolyn Warner, Arizona superintendent of public instruction. "Isn't that discriminatory?"

Seek Safe Site

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Early photos show the third proposed Viking 1 landing site may be too rough for a safe touchdown. But scientists say later pictures and other analyses could uncover a smooth landing surface along the deeply cratered "Western Front" of Mars.

Manhunt Extends Into Area

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Authorities say they are combing northern Indiana and southern Michigan for a suspect who allegedly shot a city policeman on the city's west side.

Officer Morris Woods, 28, was in serious condition after being shot three times, city police said early today. It was not clear whether he will suffer paralysis from the wounds, police said, adding that "the feeling goes on and off."

Woods has been with the force six years.

The officer was shot late Saturday night when he asked to see inside a green duffel bag carried by the suspect, said Sgt. Ronald G. Marciniak.

Woods stopped the man after employes of a local restaurant told police the man matched the description of a suspect in an armed robbery at Mishawaka, Ind., last week.

South Bend city police detectives told this newspaper today that they are seeking a Richard Lee Owen, 30, formerly of South Bend, in connection with the shooting.

Detectives described him as about six feet tall, about 180 pounds, with collar-length light brown hair. He wears glasses, police said.

Police said they already have two felony warrants for his arrest.

One warrant charges Owen with armed robbery in connection with a holdup at the Ponderosa Steakhouse in Mishawaka last week and the other charges him with embezzlement by conversion of a 1976 Ford from a South Bend auto agency, police said.

Sheriff Reports Beating

CHELSEA, Mich. (AP) — Michigan State Police are investigating a brawl in which Washtenaw County Sheriff Fred Postil says he and his jail administrator were beaten by a deputy at a wedding reception. Postil said the fracas started early Sunday outside a reception hall where he and Deputy Basil Basinger were discussing discipline problems the sheriff's office was having with Basinger. Postil said he stepped between Basinger and Jail Administrator Frank Donley to stop a shoving match. Postil said Basinger hit him when he stepped between the two. Postil said after he recovered from the blow he went into the hall and saw Basinger and two other men kicking and beating Donley. Postil said he was kicked in the face when he jumped into the fight. Basinger was unavailable for comment. Postil said he thought about arresting Basinger, but decided not to. State police officers at the Jackson post said Chelsea city police broke up the fight, and confirmed that a State Police detective spent most of Sunday investigating the incident. A State Police spokesman said results of the investigation would be forwarded to the Washtenaw County prosecutor.

Authorities Probe Similarity Of Names

An investigation was underway today to determine if a Benton township man sentenced to prison last March for stealing a $5.99 shirt is the same person who was back in jail this weekend—this time on charges of stealing two pairs of pants and a shirt valued at $35.97 and biting a store security officer.

State police at the Benton Harbor post said a Charles Ray McKay, 35, of Benton township, was arrested about 6:25 p.m. Friday at the Bargain Center, 1613 M-139, Benton township.

The post said McKay Saturday pleaded guilty to charges of petty larceny and assault and battery when arraigned before Fifth District Judge Ronald Taylor. McKay received 90-day sentences to run concurrently in the Berrien county jail.

A Charles Ray McKay on Nov. 6, 1975, was arrested for stealing the $5.99 shirt from Woolworth's in Fairplain plaza. He was booked on a charge of larceny from a building, a felony.

McKay refused a prosecution offer to plead guilty to a lesser petty larceny charge and was convicted in circuit court of larceny in a building and sentenced to one to four years in prison. He subsequently was sent to a halfway house in Benton Harbor but has been missing since June.

The adult probation and parole department at the Berrien county courthouse said it was investigating to determine if the missing McKay is the one sentenced to jail Friday.

The state police post said McKay on Friday was apprehended in the Bargain Center by security guard Mike Swisher. The post said Swisher reported being bitten, but was not hospitalized. The store management called the post and troopers took McKay into custody.

Three Reputed Mafia Figures Slain In Detroit

DETROIT (AP) — Two men were in custody today following the Sunday night slayings of three reputed Detroit Mafia figures in the basement of one victim. Police say they are looking for a motive in the shooting deaths of Frank "Rah-Rah" Randazzo, 62, and Joseph Seregusa, 66, both of Detroit; and Nick Ditta, 60, of St. Clair Shores.

Police said they found the bodies of Randazzo and Seregusa in the basement of Randazzo's home on Detroit's east side. Both were shot in the chest.

Ditta, although wounded, managed to climb the basement stairs and call the emergency police number to report the shootings. He died a short time later at St. John's Hospital.

Police said the suspects were arrested when they went to a hospital in Madison Heights for treatment of minor stab wounds. Hospital officials called police.

One man said he had been in a fight at East Warren and Kensington streets and had "killed someone," police said. Randazzo's home is on Kensington.

No charges were filed immediately against the two men, who were not identified.

Randazzo was named as a reputed Mafia figure in 1963 testimony before the Senate Rackets Committee. In 1969, a U.S. Senate crime probe said Randazzo operated "large-scale prostitution and vice activities" in downtown Detroit.

Police said Ditta was a known associate of reputed Mafia figures and had been arrested nearly two dozen times on charges including robbery, extortion, grand larceny and assault with intent to kill. His only conviction aside from a traffic charge was for conspiracy to violate gambling laws for which he paid fines and court costs totaling $300.

Police said Seregusa was another associate of organized crime figures. He had not been arrested in the Detroit area, however, since 1939.

Randazzo came to police attention most recently in September 1975 when he was accused of converting to his own use the stock holdings, pension and social security benefits and two savings accounts belonging to a retired employe of the Detroit Metropolitan Water Board.

Randazzo was the legal guardian of the retiree, who died at the age of 79 and whose assets Randazzo had listed as zero.

Policeman Recovers Own Cycle

A Benton Harbor police lieutenant reported his motorcycle stolen to St. Joseph township police early Sunday morning, then recovered it himself about 20 minutes later.

Lt. Harry Lenardson said he and his wife were at the Michael Devine residence, 779 Grant avenue when he noticed the 1975 Honda was missing from the driveway about 3:45 a.m. Devine is a Berrien sheriff's lieutenant in charge of law enforcement training at Lake Michigan college.

Lenardson said a short time later he saw the cycle being ridden past the house by a young man and gave chase with Devine. The cycle eluded them but Lenardson's wife saw the cycle and rider again, called out to him and the rider stopped the bike, put down the kickstand and fled on foot.

Lenardson told police the bike sustained dents and scratches.

Van Buren Child Hurt In Allegan

PULLMAN — A 15-year-old South Haven girl was listed in serious condition this morning at Borgess hospital, Kalamazoo, with injuries suffered here yesterday in a collision between a car and a pickup truck.

Allegan sheriff's deputies identified the girl as Cindy Jewell, route 4, South Haven. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Jewell.

Deputies said she was a passenger in a car driven by David Higley, 23, of Niles. He was ticketed for failure to yield the right of way, officers said.

Deputies said Higley was eastbound on 110th avenue about 3 p.m. when the car was driven in front of the truck, at the 50th street intersection.

The truck driven by Barry Crowder, 29, of Grand Junction hit Crowder's car broadside.

Both drivers and eight passengers in the truck were treated and released from Allegan General hospital, Allegan.

Eau Claire Teen Freed On $3,000 Bond

Anthony W. Coleman, 17, of 5108 Union, Eau Claire, is free on bond following his arraignment Friday in Berrien District court on a felony charge.

Coleman, charged with first degree criminal sexual conduct — forcible rape — posted $3,000 bond and was released Friday, according to court records.

Rodeo Is Arriving At Fairplain Plaza

The Benton Harbor Kiwanis club will sponsor a rodeo Thursday through Sunday at Fairplain Plaza — featuring bronco riding, calf roping, Brahman bull riding and other events. The preliminary festivities will begin Tuesday afternoon when the rodeo livestock is unloaded and penned at the plaza grounds, according to Benton Harbor Kiwanis Club Second Vice President Burwell Carmichael.

The real action, however, is scheduled to begin Thursday at 5 p.m. when the Grand Entry Parade, including two live bands and competing cowboys, marches from Elias Brothers Restaurant at the north end of the plaza to the south end where the rodeo will be held, Carmichael said. The first performance of the rodeo will immediately follow the parade.

Friday and Sunday performances will begin at 5:30 p.m., while Saturday's show is scheduled for 7 p.m. Contestants will include touring professionals, semi-pros and area cowboys.

Local cowboys interested in entering competition for cash prizes call 925-1333 between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Wednesday to register, Carmichael said.

Tickets for the event can be purchased from all Benton Harbor Kiwanians and at Rohring's Mens Clothing and Jo Ann Fabric Shop at Fairplain Plaza. Advance tickets are $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for children. Tickets at the gate are $3 for adults and $2 for children.

Cowboys from Michigan and surrounding states will join local residents vying for the cash purses, Carmichael said Kiwanians will use their share of the proceeds for various civic projects.

Only two or three other names are expected to be placed in nomination for the presidency, Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona and Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., of California, and possibly Ellen McCormack of New York, the antiabortion candidate.

parent?"

While the President fumed, supporters rallied to what they considered an American tradition. One columnist referred to the author of the letter as a "dingle-brain bureaucrat."

Such references left Ms. Walsh "very upset," she says. "We were just saying, 'why not give people a choice?' "

The letter said in part that "functions such as father-son or mother-daughter breakfasts would be subjecting students to separate treatment and would not be permitted." The penalty for violating the antidiscrimination clauses could range from loss of federal money to court action by the Justice Department.

Palomino has refused comment on the tempest, referring all questions to HEW's public affairs office. "I have instructed everybody in this office not to comment further," he said.

The President let it be known Friday that if there are similar decisions in the future, "I will exercise my presidential prerogative to suspend them or change them."

While Palomino's letter remains in limbo, the debate rages.

A spokeswoman for the National Organization for Women said such father-son gatherings perpetuate harmful sexual stereotypes. Title IX of the Civil Rights Act is "being nickled and dimed to death," she declared.

"I suspect someone from the Land of Oz is going to say some day that celebrating Father's Day and Mother's Day separately violates equal rights," suggested Carolyn Warner, Arizona superintendent of public instruction. "Isn't that discriminatory?"

Manhunt Extends Into Area

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Authorities say they are combing northern Indiana and southern Michigan for a suspect who allegedly shot a city policeman on the city's west side.

Officer Morris Woods, 28, was in serious condition after being shot three times, city police said early today. It was not clear whether he will suffer paralysis from the wounds, police said, adding that "the feeling goes on and off."

Woods has been with the force six years.

The officer was shot late Saturday night when he asked to see inside a green duffel bag carried by the suspect, said Sgt. Ronald G. Marciniak.

Woods stopped the man after employes of a local restaurant told police the man matched the description of a suspect in an armed robbery at Mishawaka, Ind., last week.

South Bend city police detectives told this newspaper today that they are seeking a Richard Lee Owen, 30, formerly of South Bend, in connection with the shooting.

Detectives described him as about six feet tall, about 180 pounds, with collar-length light brown hair. He wears glasses, police said.

Police said they already have two felony warrants for his arrest.

One warrant charges Owen with armed robbery in connection with a holdup at the Ponderosa Steakhouse in Mishawaka last week and the other charges him with embezzlement by conversion of a 1976 Ford from a South Bend auto agency, police said.

Sheriff Reports Beating

CHELSEA, Mich. (AP) — Michigan State Police are investigating a brawl in which Washtenaw County Sheriff Fred Postil says he and his jail administrator were beaten by a deputy at a wedding reception. Postil said the fracas started early Sunday outside a reception hall where he and Deputy Basil Basinger were discussing discipline problems the sheriff's office was having with Basinger. Postil said he stepped between Basinger and Jail Administrator Frank Donley to stop a shoving match. Postil said Basinger hit him when he stepped between the two. Postil said after he recovered from the blow he went into the hall and saw Basinger and two other men kicking and beating Donley. Postil said he was kicked in the face when he jumped into the fight. Basinger was unavailable for comment. Postil said he thought about arresting Basinger, but decided not to. State police officers at the Jackson post said Chelsea city police broke up the fight, and confirmed that a State Police detective spent most of Sunday investigating the incident. A State Police spokesman said results of the investigation would be forwarded to the Washtenaw County prosecutor.

Authorities Probe Similarity Of Names

An investigation was underway today to determine if a Benton township man sentenced to prison last March for stealing a $5.99 shirt is the same person who was back in jail this weekend—this time on charges of stealing two pairs of pants and a shirt valued at $35.97 and biting a store security officer.

State police at the Benton Harbor post said a Charles Ray McKay, 35, of Benton township, was arrested about 6:25 p.m. Friday at the Bargain Center, 1613 M-139, Benton township.

The post said McKay Saturday pleaded guilty to charges of petty larceny and assault and battery when arraigned before Fifth District Judge Ronald Taylor. McKay received 90-day sentences to run concurrently in the Berrien county jail.

A Charles Ray McKay on Nov. 6, 1975, was arrested for stealing the $5.99 shirt from Woolworth's in Fairplain plaza. He was booked on a charge of larceny from a building, a felony.

McKay refused a prosecution offer to plead guilty to a lesser petty larceny charge and was convicted in circuit court of larceny in a building and sentenced to one to four years in prison. He subsequently was sent to a halfway house in Benton Harbor but has been missing since June.

The adult probation and parole department at the Berrien county courthouse said it was investigating to determine if the missing McKay is the one sentenced to jail Friday.

The state police post said McKay on Friday was apprehended in the Bargain Center by security guard Mike Swisher. The post said Swisher reported being bitten, but was not hospitalized. The store management called the post and troopers took McKay into custody.

Camp Will Sponsor Festival

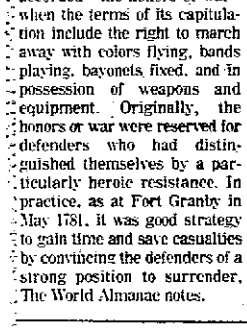
Czech food will be available to eat on the premises or to take home and beverages will also be served during the festival.

Traditional handcrafted items will be on display and there will be music provided all day by a Czech concertina band. Folk dancing, and other events to entertain the crowd, are also on tap. The choral group, "The Harbor Lights" will also take part in the program.

This year's festival will officially open at 11 a.m. July 31 and continue until dark.



A MILITARY force is said to be accorded "the honors of war" when the terms of its capitulation include the right to march away with colors flying, bands playing, bayonets fixed, and in possession of weapons and equipment. Originally, the honors of war were reserved for defenders who had distinguished themselves by a particularly heroic resistance. In practice, as at Fort Granby in May 1781, it was good strategy to gain time and save casualties by convincing the defenders of a strong position to surrender, The World Almanac notes.

State Praises SMC Program

DOWAGIAC — Southwestern Michigan college here has received a commendation from the Michigan Department of Social Services for its efforts in the adult foster care provider training program, first such program in the nation.

"Southwestern Michigan college has been actively involved in this program and has been a positive influence on its acceptance within the population served and the community," said Paula Clark, state program manager for the DSS, in a letter to Russell Owen, SMC president.

"I want to commend Wesley Muth and supportive staff for the excellent work, support, and dedication they have offered our program from its inception," she said.

Muth, SMC dean of community services, coordinated SMC's involvement in the project, which included the offering of adult foster care training courses at two extention locations during the 1973 fall semester and 1976 spring semester.

The training program, a cooperative effort between the department and 22 Michigan colleges including SMC, is designed to help implement a Michigan law which defines and outlines rules and regulations for licensing, operation and administration of adult foster care homes and training of the care providers.

Some 4,315 private homes statewide and 21 in Cass county alone provide foster care for emotionally, mentally or physically handicapped adults who do not need to be maintained in institutions, but who do not have families who can provide the care.

Asthma Is A Killer; Asthma Can Be Killed

If you have ever seen anyone, desperately fighting for breath through a terrorizing attack of asthma you know the condition is a cause for real concern.

How serious is asthma?

Dr. Vince Ackerman

"Few people realize that asthma,as a killer, outranks leukemia, polio, and congenital and rheumatic heart disease," states Dr. Ackerman of the Ackerman Chiropractic Center. "Asthma is not to be tolerated or trifled with. And yet people will go years without effective treatment for themselves, or worse yet, for their children," bemoans Dr. Ackerman.

It's as if they build up an immunity to effective care as they become more and more dependent on bronchial dilators and other "wheezing medicines." "It's very frustrating to meet someone who takes asthma for granted," says Dr. Ackerman. "On the other hand, some of my most rewarding experiences in chiropractic have come in the treatment of an asthmatic gasping for breath during an attack."

In almost all cases of bronchial asthma, chiropractors find that there is a slight dislocation of vertebrae in the shoulder area. This is the exit-point of nerves leading to the bronchial tubes.

"In many cases, gently nudging the dislocated vertebrae back toward their normal position has given immediate relieffrom severe asthma attacks," says Dr. Ackerman.

He takes issue with those who believe that asthma is simply an allergy. Attacks can be triggered by hypersensitivity to normally harmless things like pollen, foods or dust, but not always.

"Besides people in good health do not have an allergenic or asthmatic reaction to pollen or dust. And if your body is functioning properly you won't have allergies."

"What actually happens in an asthma attack is a contraction of the muscular bands in the walls of the bronchial tubes cutting down on the supply of air to the lungs. Not enough air means not enough oxygen.

"That's why the asthma sufferer forgets everything except his frantic struggle to breathe. His mind and body are signaling deperately for the oxygen they must have to survive," says Dr. Ackerman.

Should you wait until you have an attack before you see a chiropractor?

"It's nonsense to put off effective treatment for asthma., After all, it can be directly fatal by strangulation during a spasm or indirectly so because of the terrific strain each attack places on your heart."

In short, the asthmatic who goes without significant care can look forward to misery and higher risk of permanent damage with each recurring attack.

"Let's face it, asthma is a do it today problem."

Dr. Ackerman maintains offices at 3918 Red Arrow Hwy., St. Joseph (Telephone 429-1700.)

Reagan Quietly Seeks Delegates

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ronald Reagan planned to campaign quietly by telephone today for the Republican nomination for president as the Democrats opened their national convention.

Reagan's challenge to President Ford for the GOP nomination moves out of the spotlight for a week as Democrats begin the ritual and pageantry that is expected to formalize the nomination of former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter.

But that doesn't mean that the Republican race is diminishing any in intensity.

Ford leads Reagan by a slim 33-delegate margin, 1,032 to 999, with 1,130 needed for the Republican nomination next month in Kansas City. There are still 35 delegates to be selected in Connecticut and Utah, and 172 uncommitted delegates scattered among 18 states.

That narrows the area of battle between Ford and Reagan, and the former California governor will be personally telephoning many of those delegates today and Tuesday, his spokesmen say.

Then, on Wednesday, the day Carter is expected to receive the Democratic nomination, Reagan undertakes what could be described as a direct challenge to Ford or a delegate raid.

Reagan is flying to Newark with plans to meet with the entire 67-member New Jersey delegation.

That delegation is legally uncommitted, but it has been listed by the delegate-counters as a unanimous Ford bloc.

Reagan returned to his Pacific Palisades, Calif., home Saturday from a four-day campaign tour to North Dakota, Illinois and Colorado.

Colorado completed selection of its convention delegation Saturday, and Reagan left the state with 26 of the 31 delegates in his corner.

On Sunday, the former motion picture and television actor went to Palm Springs, Calif., to attend the wedding of singer Frank Sinatra and Barbara Marx.

That was a private event, at the home of former U.S. Ambassador to Great Britain Walter Annenberg, attended by a host of entertainers and other celebrities, including former Vice President Spiro Agnew.

Reagan's chief of staff, Michael Deaver, declined to discuss details of the New Jersey trip except to say, "We wouldn't be going there if we didn't think there were some opportunities."

Dr. Martin Anderson, Reagan's chief policy adviser, said he expects the majority of New Jersey's 67 delegates to vote for Ford. "But those counts that show 67 to 0 are not realistic. I think we'll get at least a half dozen, maybe more," Anderson said.

Next stop for Reagan is Pennsylvania, a state where Ford leads in delegates 72 to 5, with 25 uncommitted. Reagan ends the week in Salt Lake City, where he hopes to win 20 delegates in the state GOP convention.

But today and Tuesday will be devoted in large part to telephoning selected uncommitted delegates or "soft" Ford delegates, an activity that has been taking a bigger portion of Reagan's time in recent weeks.

FRIENDLY HANDSHAKE: Presidential contender Ronald Reagan shakes the hand of President Ford's son Jack after young Ford gave a nominating speech for his father to the Colorado GOP convention over the weekend at Fort Collins, Colo. Ford now leads Reagan by a slim 33-delegate margin, 1,032 to 999, with 1,130 needed for the Republican nomination next month in Kansas City. (AP Wirephoto)

Home Canning Craze Goes On Back Burner

By MARY STEVENSON
Associated Press Writer

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The canning fad has died down a bit now that people realize canning is messy work that's not very glamorous, a nutritionist says.

"I think a lot of people tried canning last year," said Marilyn Mook, an instructor in human nutrition at Michigan State University.

"They were brand new and they discovered it's not very romantic. It's hard, hot, a long process, and sloppy. I think some of them may have been disillusioned and decided they're not going to bother this year."

"Also, there may be people who were new and used some methods that were not approved and used shortcuts and lost a lot of the product."

There is no shortage of canning lids this year as there was last year, she added.

People planning to can this year should have the pressure gauges on their canners checked, she said, either by sending the gauges to the manufacturer or by finding a hardware store that has a testing device.

"Make sure the jars are in good shape," Miss Mook added. "Make sure there are no nicks or cracks. If anything is chipped or cracked, throw it out. Follow directions on the lid carton to the letter. If lids come without directions, I would think twice about using them."

She warned home canners to use recommended methods — waterbath processing of all fruits and tomatoes; and pressure canning of all vegetables, meat and fish.

And don't take shortcuts, Miss Mook added. "You're really fooling around with your family's food supply and possibly with their lives," she said.

Also, she said, use jars only made for home canning. They'll have the word "mason" on them — the name of the man who invented the canning jar. Other jars not specially made for canning are not tempered to take the extreme temperature changes in processing and can crack or shatter.

Another canning method, the use of "canning skins" in which a piece of flat plastic is molded around the mouth of a jar to form a seal all the way around, is a tricky process that many expert canners can't manage, Miss Mook said.

"You need four hands, and when the jar is hot and you're trying to tie it on, it's very difficult."

Reagan Quietly Seeks Delegates

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ronald Reagan planned to campaign quietly by telephone today for the Republican nomination for president as the Democrats opened their national convention.

Reagan's challenge to President Ford for the GOP nomination moves out of the spotlight for a week as Democrats begin the ritual and pageantry that is expected to formalize the nomination of former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter.

But that doesn't mean that the Republican race is diminishing any in intensity.

Ford leads Reagan by a slim 33-delegate margin, 1,032 to 999, with 1,130 needed for the Republican nomination next month in Kansas City. There are still 55 delegates to be selected in Connecticut and Utah, and 172 uncommitted delegates scattered among 18 states.

That narrows the area of battle between Ford and Reagan, and the former California governor will be personally telephoning many of those delegates today and Tuesday, his spokesmen say.

Then, on Wednesday, the day Carter is expected to receive the Democratic nomination, Reagan undertakes what could be described as a direct challenge to Ford or a delegate raid.

Reagan is flying to Newark with plans to meet with the entire 67-member New Jersey delegation.

That delegation is legally uncommitted, but it has been listed by the delegate-counters as a unanimous Ford bloc.

Reagan returned to his Pacific Palisades, Calif., home Saturday from a four-day campaign tour to North Dakota, Illinois and Colorado.

Colorado completed selection of its convention delegation Saturday, and Reagan left the state with 26 of the 31 delegates in his corner.

On Sunday, the former motion picture and television actor went to Palm Springs, Calif., to attend the wedding of singer Frank Sinatra and Barbara Marx.

That was a private event, at the home of former U.S. Ambassador to Great Britain Walter Annenberg, attended by a host of entertainers and other celebrities, including former Vice President Spiro Agnew.

Reagan's chief of staff, Michael Deaver, declined to discuss details of the New Jersey trip except to say, "We wouldn't be going there if we didn't think there were some opportunities."

Dr. Martin Anderson, Reagan's chief policy adviser, said he expects the majority of New Jersey's 67 delegates to vote for Ford. "But those counts that show 67 to 0 are not realistic. I think we'll get at least a half dozen, maybe more," Anderson said.

Next stop for Reagan is Pennsylvania, a state where Ford leads in delegates 72 to 5, with 25 uncommitted. Reagan ends the week in Salt Lake City, where he hopes to win 20 delegates in the state GOP convention.

But today and Tuesday will be devoted in large part to telephoning selected uncommitted delegates or "soft" Ford delegates, an activity that has been taking a bigger portion of Reagan's time in recent weeks.

FRIENDLY HANDSHAKE: Presidential contender Ronald Reagan shakes the hand of President Ford's son Jack after young Ford gave a nominating speech for his father to the Colorado GOP convention over the weekend at Fort Collins, Colo. Ford now leads Reagan by a slim 33-delegate margin, 1,032 to 999, with 1,130 needed for the Republican nomination next month in Kansas City. (AP Wirephoto)

Home Canning Craze Goes On Back Burner

By MARY STEVENSON
Associated Press Writer

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The canning fad has died down a bit now that people realize canning is messy work that's not very glamorous, a nutritionist says.

"I think a lot of people tried canning last year," said Marilyn Mook, an instructor in human nutrition at Michigan State University.

"They were brand new and they discovered it's not very romantic. It's hard, hot, a long process, and sloppy. I think some of them may have been disillusioned and decided they're not going to bother this year.

"Also, there may be people who were new and used some methods that were not approved and used shotcuts and lost a lot of the product."

There is no shortage of canning lids this year as there was last year, she added.

People planning to can this year should have the pressure gauges on their canners checked, she said, either by sending the gauges to the manufacturer or by finding a hardware store that has a testing device.

"Make sure the jars are in good shape," Miss Mook added. "Make sure there are no nicks or cracks. If anything is chipped or cracked, throw it out. Follow directions on the lid carton to the letter. If lids come without directions, I would think twice about using them."

She warned home canners to use recommended methods — waterbath processing of all fruits and tomatoes; and pressure canning of all vegetables, meat and fish.

And don't take shortcuts, Miss Mook added. "You're really fooling around with your family's food supply and possibly with their lives," she said.

Also, she said, use jars only made for home canning. They'll have the word "mason" on them — the name of the man who invented the canning jar. Other jars not specially made for canning are not tempered to take the extreme temperature changes in processing and can crack or shatter.

Another cannning method, the use of "canning skins" in which a piece of flat plastic is molded around the mouth of a jar to form a seal all the way around, is a tricky process that many expert canners can't manage, Miss Mook said.

"You need four hands, and when the jar is hot and you're trying to tie it on, it's very difficult."

Ford Is Likely Strike Target

DETROIT (AP) — Many United Auto Workers local presidents say they believe Ford Motor Co. will be this year's strike target in negotiations for new auto-labor contracts.

One of those is Frank Runnels, president of the 10,000-member UAW Cadillac Local 22 in Detroit.

Runnels said a prime issue in the auto talks, which open July 19, will be a shorter work week.

"When we have sought breakthroughs in new areas, Ford was the easiest to deal with," he said.

International Union President Leonard Woodcock insists "all options are open," in the selection of a strike target to set a pattern contract for the rest of the industry.

Dave Benjamin, head of Chevrolet Local 659 in Flint, says his members feel if there is a strike, it will be aimed at Ford because "it's their turn."

While Woodcock has not ruled Ford out as the possible strike target, he says the UAW is not playing "rotation pool" and is not taking on the auto companies "one after another."

DECREASE DECLINING

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although Catholic elementary and secondary school enrollment has dropped by 2.1 million pupils in the last 10 years, the decrease is declining each year, the U.S. Catholic Conference says.

PAT THROUGH CRISIS?

Nixons' Optimism Rising

By CRICKET BIRD
Associated Press Writer

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The Nixon family's optimism is rising with reports that Pat Nixon is out of the critical stage in her recovery from a stroke that could leave her partially paralyzed.

Former President Richard M. Nixon said late Sunday as he left Long Beach Memorial Hospital that he was encouraged by his wife's progress.

Nixon and daughters Tricia Cox and Julie Eisenhower spent more than four hours with Mrs. Nixon. It was the longest visit since she was hospitalized Thursday, the day after she was stricken.

Earlier Sunday, doctors said Mrs. Nixon was no longer in the critical stage, but he warned that the danger was not past.

"Due to the nature of the stroke, there is always a chance of a patient's condition suddenly deteriorating," said a hospital spokeswoman. "Mrs. Nixon's blood pressure is responding to treatment and remains within normal limits."

Dr. Jack M. Mosier, a neurologist treating the 64-year-old former first lady, said Sunday it would be two to three months before doctors know if she has suffered any permanent damage.

He noted that she was feeling more comfortable Sunday, although there was still weakness in her left side and some slurring of speech.

Mrs. Nixon was moved Sunday from her windowless hospital room to one with a distant ocean view. The room was the same one in which her husband was treated for phlebitis in 1974.

Told that his wife had been moved to his old room, Nixon said, "That room holds some rather unpleasant memories for me but in the end I finally was able to come out of it and so that perhaps perks up her spirit a little bit. It may be a lucky room.

"I think she is passing through the crisis ... maybe has passed through it — time will tell — but most important now comes the long haul and that is a difficult time."

Nixon said his wife may require therapy for several months.

To cheer his wife, Nixon brought a special gift Sunday which he displayed for reporters. It was a waxy and fragrant gardenia — one plucked from the bush at his wife's bedroom window at their San Clemente estate.

Mrs. Nixon has been listed in serious but stable condition since her arrival at the hospital Thursday.

Family Is Giving Up On Ever Finding Hoffa

By PETE YOST
ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

DETROIT (AP) — "He's gone. I don't think they'll ever find his body."

The words are from Dave Johnson, an old friend of Jimmy Hoffa. He is resigned to the idea that Hoffa, whom he first met in 1934, has been murdered. Johnson is president of Teamsters Local 299 in Detroit, where Hoffa loyalists outnumber backers of Frank Fitzsimmons in a political battle that is tinged with violence.

Johnson has been beaten and his boat has been blown up. Union sources say that during a busy week, Johnson gets half a dozen telephoned threats on his life. Johnson isn't scared. But he is 68 and tired. He figures if he gets out of the Teamsters now, he'll still have a few good years left.

Johnson's job in the Teamsters was to hold onto the presidency of Hoffa's home local until the courts lifted parole restrictions which banned Hoffa from union activities. Johnson says he would have stepped aside in a minute and handed control of the 18,000-member Detroit local, biggest in Michigan, to Hoffa. That was the plan.

It was scrapped last July 30 when Hoffa disappeared. He was last seen standing outside the Machus Red Fox Restaurant in Bloomfield Township near Detroit. He was waiting to meet reputed Mafia figure Anthony "Tony Jack" Giacalone and New Jersey Teamster official Anthony "Tony Pro" Provenzano.

Hoffa reportedly was anxious to meet with Provenzano and bury the hatchet. The two had quarreled in prison, and now Hoffa wanted his support to get back in the union and unseat Fitzsimmons. He went to the restaurant, he waited and then he disappeared.

Hoffa: Arrogant. Cocky. He said he didn't need a bodyguard. Union organizing days in the 1930s led to a long arrest record and ultimately to power that made him a figure with whom the biggest politicians and the biggest businessmen had to reckon.

A year ago, Hoffa was getting ready to push Fitzsimmons out of the presidency of the nation's largest labor union. Today, Fitzsimmons rules the union while dozens of FBI agents press the search for Hoffa's body.

Hoffa's son, James P., says his father was "assassinated" and "we won't find him." Hoffa's wife, Josephine, believes she won't ever hear from her husband.

The U.S. Justice Department believes Hoffa was the victim of an underworld slaying triggered by his obsession to return to the top of the 2.3 million member union.

Theories. Hoffa got in a car with someone he trusted at the Machus Red Fox Restaurant, was killed, his body shipped to the East Coast in a barrel and deposited in Brother Moscato's Dump on the banks of the Hackensack River in New Jersey, some investigators said.

The ex-Teamsters boss was hit by organized crime, which wanted to avoid a pitched battle between Hoffa and Fitzsimmons, some investigators said. The Mafia felt such a battle would be bad for business, said the investigators.

The search for Hoffa led the FBI from a Teamsters gathering spot in Gardena, Calif., where it was rumored he was being held hostage, to the Raleigh House Restaurant near Detroit, where investigators suspected his body might have been stuffed in a trash compactor. The tips, like hundreds of others, never broke the case.

But the beat is still on.

In an indictment the FBI says grew out of the Hoffa investigation, Provenzano was charged with conspiring to kidnap and murder New Jersey Teamsters official Anthony Castellito 15 years ago. His body has never been found.

Salvatore Briguglio, a New Jersey Teamster who was hauled into a police lineup in the Hoffa probe, was indicted with Provenzano in the Castellito disappearance.

Giacalone ran afoul of the Internal Revenue Service. Giacalone was convicted of tax evasion and sentenced to 10 years in prison.

Fitzsimmons and some other union figures, including William Presser of Cleveland, were subpoenaed in connection with probes of the billion-dollar Teamster pension funds.

Last month's Teamsters convention in Las Vegas was to have marked Hoffa's comeback. Instead, Fitzsimmons ran the show virtually unchallenged.

"Go to hell" was Fitzsimmons' advice to Teamster reformers in Las Vegas, where plush hotels and casinos financed with Teamsters pension fund money symbolize the union's power.

FCC Won't Put Lid On Reruns

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission won't require television reruns to be labeled reruns. And it won't limit reruns to a quarter of the broadcaster's prime-time hours every year.

Commissioners have refused to issue such requirements. They had been requested by Bernard A. Balmuth, a film editor, with the support of more than 35 filmmaking unions.

Ninety-nine per cent of the FCC's mail on the subject complained about reruns.

But commissioners said in a 7-0 decision they would let the market place limit the number of reruns. And they said on-the-air labels for reruns would add "clutter" to televison.

High Potency Vitamin E

Sexual Potency Quickly Improves With New 'E-Pill'

MIAMI BEACH (Special)- An amazing new "supercharged" vitamin E-Pill has recently been developed that reportedly "quickly increases and rejuvenates sexual drives and potency for both men and women of all ages. It also makes them feel healthier and more youthful". It is now available to the American public.

The new high potency E-Pill not only seems to increase sexual ability of both sexes but also "actually perks up sexual interest and stimulates a persons desires," according to a spokesman for the manufacturer.

Also Improves General Health

This new, easy-to-take E-Pill contains newly formulated, highly concentrated vitamin E. It tends to quickly build up and strengthen the natural physiological processes of the body that are believed to be basically responsible for its potency, youthfulness, health and long life.

Helps 4 Out Of 5 People

Indications are that the new E-Pill gives quick and effective results to as high as 4 out of 5 people (80%) who have used it. Some people report no great change but feel the high potency of vitamin E in the pill does quickly make them feel better from a general health standpoint.

Other reports also show it tends to "lessen daily tension and give a more relaxed, happier outlook on life."

Now Available

The use of these high potency (one-a-day) E-Pills is perfectly safe and are now available without prescription from the manufacturer by mail order only. To get your supply, send $6.95 for a 2 week supply, (or $10.95 for a 30 day supply, or $17.95 for a 60 day supply) cash, check or money order to: Super E-Pill, Dept. D31, 1613 Alton Rd., Miami Beach, Fla. 33139 (unconditional money-back guarantee).

Family Is Giving Up On Ever Finding Hoffa

By PETE YOST
ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

DETROIT (AP) — "He's gone. I don't think they'll ever find his body."

The words are from Dave Johnson, an old friend of Jimmy Hoffa. He is resigned to the idea that Hoffa, whom he first met in 1934, has been murdered. Johnson is president of Teamsters Local 299 in Detroit, where Hoffa loyalists outnumber backers of Frank Fitzsimmons in a political battle that is tinged with violence.

Johnson has been beaten and his boat has been blown up. Union sources say that during a busy week, Johnson gets half a dozen telephoned threats on his life. Johnson isn't scared. But he is 68 and tired. He figures if he gets out of the Teamsters now, he'll still have a few good years left.

Johnson's job in the Teamsters was to hold onto the presidency of Hoffa's home local until the courts lifted parole restrictions which banned Hoffa from union activities. Johnson says he would have stepped aside in a minute and handed control of the 18,000-member Detroit local, biggest in Michigan, to Hoffa. That was the plan.

It was scrapped last July 30 when Hoffa disappeared. He was last seen standing outside the Machus Red Fox Restaurant in Bloomfield Township near Detroit. He was waiting to meet reputed Mafia figure Anthony "Tony Jack" Giacalone and New Jersey Teamster official Anthony "Tony Pro" Provenzano.

Hoffa reportedly was anxious to meet with Provenzano and bury the hatchet. The two had quarreled in prison, and now Hoffa wanted his support to get back in the union and unseat Fitzsimmons. He went to the restaurant, he waited and then he disappeared.

Hoffa. Arrogant. Cocky. He said he didn't need a bodyguard. Union organizing days in the 1930s led to a long arrest record and ultimately to power that made him a figure with whom the biggest politicians and the biggest businessmen had to reckon.

A year ago, Hoffa was getting ready to push Fitzsimmons out of the presidency of the nation's largest labor union. Today, Fitzsimmons rules the union while dozens of FBI agents press the search for Hoffa's body.

Hoffa's son, James P., says his father was "assassinated" and "we won't find him." Hoffa's wife, Josephine, believes she won't ever hear from her husband.

Olympics To Begin Without Taiwanese

MONTREAL (AP) — The Olympic Games go on in Montreal, but the hopes of the Taiwanese and the spirit of the Olympic movement lie buried beneath a million bushels of Canadian wheat.

Canada's vast overseas trading interests are the underlying factor behind one of the worst crises in Olympic history.

The International Olympic Committee bowed on Sunday to the Canadian government which, under pressure from Peking, refused to allow Taiwan's athletes into the country because they would not change their official name or their flag.

It is the first time since the Games began in 1896 that a host country has shut out athletes recognized by the IOC. Unless there is a last-minute change of heart, the Taiwanese will be missing from Saturday's opening ceremony.

Behind Canada's decision, which was sprung on the IOC only six weeks ago, is its wheat exporting deal with Communist China, its biggest overseas trading partner. Selling wheat to Peking has brought new prosperity to farmers in Western Canada.

Communist China applied last year for Olympic recognition, but with the qualification that Taiwan be kicked out of the Games. The IOC took no immediate action. Peking then made a direct approach to Canada and demanded that Taiwanese athletes be shut out during the Olympics.

The Canadians met them halfway and said the Taiwanese would be allowed in only if they dropped the name of the Republic of China — the name by which their national Olympic committee is recognized by the IOC. The Taiwanese refused.

The IOC, which prides itself on being above politics and dealing only with sport, pleaded with Canada to honor the Olympic charter and grant free entry to the Taiwanese.

But Sunday night, Lord Killanin, president of the IOC, admitted he had failed. The Canadians refused to move one inch.

The IOC Executive Board suggested to the Taiwanese that for the sake of the Olympics and the 4,000 athletes expected here, they march in the opening parade behind the Olympic flag and a plaque bearing the name of the IOC. The Taiwanese rejected the idea and said they would pull out of the Olympics if they were forced into such conditions.

Killanin, announcing the loss of the battle, accused the Canadians at a news conference of a breach of faith. He said they gave a written pledge six years ago that all sportsmen recognized by the IOC would be allowed in the Olympics without visas and raised no objection even last year when the subject of Taiwan was raised in conversation.

Killanin told a news conference: "The whole world is absolutely fed up with politicians interfering with sport."

For once the press had down pencils and notebooks and applauded.

American reaction to the IOC's capitulation was predictable. "This is the beginning of the fall of the Olympic games," said Doug Roby of Detroit, long-time member of the IOC.

Philip Krumm, president of the U.S. Olympic Committee and also a member of the IOC, called Sunday's action "pitiful" and added:

"This blatant and unwarranted action casts aside all of the Olympic principles and the code under which we are pledged to hold the Games. We have turned the Olympic Games into a competition between nations. Political power determines who can compete instead of a world competition as demonstrated by the skills of friendly nations."

Tiger Rookie Facing Jones In Star Game

Fidrych Gets AL Start

DETROIT (AP) — Rookie pitcher Mark Fidrych, named to start for the American League in Tuesday's All-Star game, was as nervous in the Detroit dressing room Sunday as he usually is during his performances on the mound.

Fidrych, sporting a 9-2 record and the lowest earned-run-average in the league at 1.78, has made a name for himself by talking to the ball and kneeling on the mound to act as a one-man ground crew.

As he packed to leave for Philadelphia after Sunday's 6-5, extra-inning victory over the West Division leading Kansas City Royals, he tried to make light of his starting assignment.

"What kind of pressure can there be?" asked Fidrych. "There will be just the same kind of nervousness as there is before any game," he said.

Fidrych will be opposed at the start by San Diego's sensational Randy Jones, who reached the All-Star break with a National League record 16 victories and only three losses.

Jones is just 26, but he's been around. He lost 22 games two years ago, but turned that around by winning 20 last season. The fans are fimilar with the frizzy-haired left-hander.

But Fidrych is a new act. A 21-year-old right-hander, he has captivated Detroit fans with his exuberance. When he works, he thinks nothing of going down on all fours to smooth out the pitcher's mound to his specifications. He cheers for his fielders and perhaps most important are his exortations to the baseball.

Before he delivers the pitch, Fidrych discusses direction and location with the baseball. No one except the Tiger rookie knows if the ball answers him.

Can the expected capacity crowd of 61,000, including President Ford, expect the usual antics from the rookie who is nicknamed "The Bird"?

"I hope I won't change," he said. "It'll be the same game."

In fact, Fidrych, who has not batted this season because of the league's designated hitter rule, seemed more concerned with how he will do at the plate than with his duties on the mound.

Fidrych, yelling questions to teammates and trying to find a harried equipment man, had handlers rummaging for bats. He finally accepted one from second baseman Pedro Garcia, shouldered it and began strutting around the locker room with the bat on his shoulder, shirt-tail flapping, brown curls bouncing and his voice at full volume.

"Settle down, Bird!" groused teammate Mickey Stanley. "You're making me nervous." But Stanley smiled, taking the sting out of his comments.

"What kind of a hitter am I? We'll find out," Fidrych said, trying to supervise the contents of a cardboard box. The box contained two cans of beer, a stack of letters and blue-and-white Detroit batting helmet.

Fidrych will be only the second rookie pitcher to start an All-Star Game. The only other one was Dave Stenhouse of the Washington Senators, who pitched the first two innings in what developed into a 9-4 AL victory in 1962.

Those were the days when the Americans still held the upper hand in All-Star competition. Since the 1962 victory, the AL has won only once while the Nationals have taken a dozen games for an over-all 27-18-1 edge in the series.

Asked if he was going to study the National League lineup or seek advice on how to pitch to the opposing All-Stars, Fidrych laughed:

"I don't ask anyone about how to pitch to these guys (American Leaguers), so why should I ask about them?"

Fidrych seemed unsure whether he would be affected by the notoriety the All-Star game will bring.

"We'll find out if I'll change in the future," he said, adding: "I hope I won't change. It will be the same game."

Despite his rookie status, the pressure should be nothing new to the Northboro, Mass., native.

Detroit fans have made Fidrych a local hero, all but filling Tiger Stadium when he pitches and demanding a post-game showing after every game in which he appears, win or lose.

Writers surround him at his locker, straining to hear his often all-but inaudible answers. His Detroit-area apartment has no phone, but on the road he complains of being awakened by interview-seekers.

Last week a group of auto dealers gave him free use of a new Thunderbird — "A 'Bird for The Bird" — even though he said he'd rather drive his compact Dodge Colt, or even an old pickup.

And on Saturday, the Tigers said Fidrych has finally had to hire the William Morris Agency to handle his publicity and commercial deals, even though he still plans to negotiate his own contracts with advice from his father.

Recent NL domination of the All-Star series has been a growing source of embarrassement for the Americans.

"I am sick and tired of the National League beating us," said AL Manager Darrell Johnson. "We'll use the best players who give us the chance to win. I think we have the pitchers who can do the job they're supposed to do — beat the other league."

Johnson's roster included one last minute change. Oakland second baseman Phil Garner was added to the AL squad to replace rookie Willie Randolph of the New York Yankees, who is nursing an injured knee.

Atlanta pitcher Andy Messersmith, who was selected for the National League's squad by Manager Sparky Anderson begged off with a hamstring injury and was replaced by teammate Dick Ruthven. But the injured Braves' ace was well enough to pitch eight innings Saturday night against the New York Mets.

Miller Wins British Open

Overtakes Ballesteros With Red-Hot 66

SOUTHPORT, England (AP) — There was only one journalist from Spain known to be at the British Open to see his young countryman Severiano Ballesteros leap into the international golfing spotlight. And that sportswriter didn't write a word.

He told his boss earlier that he would be at the Open on vacation, and asked if his paper wanted a story. His boss said no.

That's the way it is in Spain, and even more so in the rest of Europe. Soccer is king, with sports such as cycling and rugby ahead of golf. So while young Severiano caught the imagination of Americans, British, Japanese and others where the Open was televised, he probably remains a relative unknown in his own country, where it was not shown. But his exciting performance — he led for three rounds against the best in the world before falling to Johnny Miller in the final round Saturday — is a swing in the right direction for golf on the continent.

Miller won it with a final-round 66 for 279 and the largest margin of victory — six strokes — in more than 40 years at this event. Ballesteros, who shared the lead after the first round and held it alone after the second and third rounds, faded to a 74 and need an eagle and birdie on the final two holes to get that.

He wound up tied for second with Jack Nicklaus who finished with a 69.

"He gave the biggest boost possible for European golf," said Gaetan Morgue D'Algue of France, the publisher of a golf magazine and a man who also runs many European golf tournaments.

"I know the French pros got very excited about Ballesteros, and if he had won, there would have been 20 Spaniards trying to qualify for the Open next year."

Despite its secondary status in Spain, that country still is far ahead of the rest of Europe in the sport, and Morgue D'Algue felt some 15 Spaniards could do well in the Open.

Ballasteros says he will try for the U.S. tour in 1978 after he serves his military duty.

Of his showing in the British Open, he seems to have a bright future indeed. The 19-year-old farmer's son held a two-shot lead over Miller starting the final round but slumped to a 74 to finish in a second place tie with Jack Nicklaus at 285.

Aside from Miller, Ballesteros and Nicklaus, Ray Floyd was the only other golfer to break par at 288 over the 7,001-yard Royal Birkdale course.

Ilie Takes Grand Slam

MYRTLE BEACH, (AP) — Ilie Nastase has kept a hectic pace in recent weeks — getting from one corner of the globe to another — and he gives no indication of slowing down.

The colorful Rumanian flew into Myrtle Beach Friday night from Hawaii for the first Grand Slam of Tennis, which he handily won Sunday by downing Manuel Orantes of Spain 6-4, 6-3.

Nastase hurried back Sunday afternoon to Hawaii where he plays World Team Tennis for the Hawaii Leis.

Just a little more than a week ago, he was in England, losing in the finals of Wimbledon to Sweden's Bjorn Borg.

The 30-year-old shotmaker says he plans a rest in a few months. He says he'll take November and December off, but in the meantime, he is scheduled for one tournament after another and in between he'll take the court for the Leis.

In his first set Saturday in the tournament at the Myrtle Beach Tennis Club, he seemed to be suffering from jet lag as he fell 0-6 to Jimmy Connors. But, he quickly found his stride and rushed through the remainder of the tournament without dropping a set to claim the $75,000 championship prize.

"That's pretty good money for two days," he said Sunday.

All four said they liked the tournament format and playing for one of tennis' larges purses. For simply showing up, each player was assured of at least $15,000 — the fourth place prize money. That went to Ashe, who lost 4-6, 6-7, to Connors in a consolation match Sunday. Connors claimed $20,000 and Orantes $40,000.

Oestrike Named Coach Of Year

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Ron Oestrike of Eastern Michigan University has been named college baseball coach of the year by the Sporting News, a weekly publication.

Oestrike, 44, took the Hurons to the NCAA World Series baseball finals last month before losing to Arizona.

Eastern Michigan compiled a 46-16 record in 1976.

Ballasteros says he will try for the U.S. tour in 1978 after he serves his military duty.

Of his showing in the British Open, he seems to have a bright future indeed. The 19-year-old farmer's son held a two-shot lead over Miller starting the final round but slumped to a 74 to finish in a second place tie with Jack Nicklaus at 285.

Aside from Miller, Ballesteros and Nicklaus, Ray Floyd was the only other golfer to break par at 286 over the 7,001-yard Royal Birkdale course.

Ilie Takes Grand Slam

MYRTLE BEACH, (AP) — Ilie Nastase has kept a hectic pace in recent weeks — getting from one corner of the globe to another — and he gives no indication of slowing down.

The colorful Rumanian flew into Myrtle Beach Friday night from Hawaii for the first Grand Slam of Tennis, which he handily won Sunday by downing Manuel Orantes of Spain 6-4, 6-3.

Nastase hurried back Sunday afternoon to Hawaii where he plays World Team Tennis for the Hawaii Leis.

Just a little more than a week ago, he was in England, losing in the finals of Wimbledon to Sweden's Bjorn Borg.

The 30-year-old shotmaker says he plans a rest in a few months. He says he'll take November and December off, but in the meantime, he is scheduled for one tournament after another and in between he'll take the court for the Leis.

In his first set Saturday in the tournament at the Myrtle Beach Tennis Club, he seemed to be suffering from jet lag as he fell 0-6 to Jimmy Connors. But, he quickly found his stride and rushed through the remainder of the tournament without dropping a set to claim the $75,000 championship prize.

"That's pretty good money for two days," he said Sunday.

The tournament brought together four of the game's top professionals — Nastase, 1975 Masters champion; Orantes, 1975 U.S. Open winner; Connors, one of the world's topranking netters, and Arthur Ashe, last year's Wimbledon titleholder.

All four said they liked the tournament format and playing for one of tennis' larges purses. For simply showing up, each player was assured of at least $15,000 — the fourth place prize money. That went to Ashe, who lost 4-6, 6-7, to Connors in a consolation match Sunday. Connors claimed $20,000 and Orantes $40,000.

Oestrike Named Coach Of Year

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Ron Oestrike of Eastern Michigan University has been named college baseball coach of the year by the Sporting News, a weekly publication.

Oestrike, 44, took the Hurons to the NCAA World Series baseball finals last month before losing to Arizona.

Eastern Michigan compiled a 46-16 record in 1976.

Halicki Baffles Cubs With Two-Hitter

NL Starters Standout In Relief

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

How well a pitcher does is up to the man himself. But when he does it is up to his manager, especially around All-Star time...in the National League, anyway.

The American League, having dropped 12 of the last 13 midseason classics, has been given an order by AL President Lee MacPahil the last three years — don't use any of your All-Star hurlers on the Sunday before the game.

But in the NL, anything goes — which is why Jon Matlack, surprise reliever Tom Seaver and Dick Ruthven went.

None of the hurlers picked for Tuesday night's All-Star Game got anything but a workout in Atlanta's 9-8 victory over the New York Mets. But Don Sutton, normally another starter, found himself in an unaccustomed relief role — and found a victory in the process as Los Angeles beat St. Louis 9-6.

In the rest of the NL, Ed Halicki baffled Chicago with a two-hitter as San Francisco beat the Cubs 2-0, Jim Kaat pitched a nine-hit shutout in Philadelphia's 3-0 victory over San Diego, Joaquin Andujar did the same in Houston's 1-0 squeaker over Montreal and Pittsburgh defeated Cincinnati 8-5.

Matlack, the winner of last year's All-Star Game, had an easy time with the Braves until they bombed him during a five-run seventh inning. One of his successors was Seaver.

"I volunteered to relieve," the Mets' ace right-hander said. "If they thought they could use me, I wanted to play. If I had expected to start the All-Star Game it would have been different. But I won't start. Randy Jones (of San Diego) will. He didn't pitch today purposely so he could start the All-Star Game."

Seaver did his job, facing two batters and shutting off the Braves' seventh-inning burst. "I didn't want to use him anymore so I took him out," Mets Manager Joe Frazier said. "He is a starter and that was enough." And when the Mets erupted for four runs in the eighth to take the lead, Seaver was in line to pick up the victory.

But Bob Apodaca, was unsuccessful in relief, although his primary job is as a reliever. Willie Montanez, who had driven in three runs earlier with a pair of singles, drove in three more with a game-winning double.

Ruthven pitched until Braves Manager Dave Bristol sent up a pinch-hitter for him during their five-run seventh. But his shot at victory also vanished when the Mets jumped on Mike Marshall in the eighth. Bruce Dal Canton, who cooled off New York for the final 11-3 innings, got the victory.

Sutton pitched two-hit ball for three relief innings and got his victory when the Dodgers jumped on St. Louis for seven runs in the seventh inning, three of them scoring on Reggie Smith's homer.

Sutton said the relief stint was his first in nearly five years.

Halicki, who pitched a no-hitter against the Mets last season, had another one going against Chicago until Jose Cardenal grounded a single up the middle leading off the seventh inning. The only hit he and the Giants needed was Gary Matthews' first-inning homer.Halicki, 8-11, who hurled a no-hitter Aug. 24, 1975, when he beat the New York Mets 6-0, limited the Cubs to a pair of walks—to Pete LaCock in the second and fifth innings—before Cardenal bounced a 1-1 pitch up the middle, just out of shortstop Chris Speier's reach.

He retired the next four batters but was nicked for a one-out single to left in the eighth by Steve Swisher. Champ Summers then ended the inning, lining into a double play. Halicki finished with two strikeouts and two walks.

Matthews gave him the only run he needed with his 11th homer of the year, a shot to left off Steve Stone, 1-1. The Giants got their other run off Bruce Sutter in the ninth. Marty Perez beat out a bunt, continued to second when third baseman Bill Madlock threw wildly to first, advanced to third on a fly ball and scored on Darrell Evans' single to left.

Greg Luzinski's three-run double in the sixth inning and a strong defense that turned three double plays gave Kaat his first NL shutout, despite his being peppered for nine San Diego hits.

Andujar's shutout was his third of the season. "I've been sick for about four or five days," he admitted afterwards. "I felt dizzy before the game. But I love baseball. Every time I go out there, I give 200 per cent. The way I was hustling, no one could tell I was sick. You have to be a man to play this game."

The man who gave him the game was Leon Roberts with a fifth-inning single that drove in the game's only run.

Cincinnati relievers Pedro Borbon and Will McEnaney gave Pittsburgh its victory.

First Borbon hit Tommy Helms with a bases-loaded pitch in the eighth inning to force in the tie-breaking run, then McEnaney served up a juicy pitch that Reinie Stennett ripped for a two-run double.

Two Golfers In Playoff

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Sandra Palmer sounded more like a loser than a contender after she rolled in the five-foot putt that sent her into today's 18-hole playoff with JoAnne Carner for the 1976 U.S. Women's Open Golf Championship.

Miss Palmer, who started the last round two strokes in front of Miss Carner, lamented about her first nine holes. She bogeyed four of the first five and the eighth, had one birdie and made the turn two down.

The 35-year-old Miss Palmer dropped a 20-foot birdie putt on the 17th hole to tie Mrs. Carner. She needed a par on the 18th to set up a playoff, a birdie to win.

Mrs. Carner, winner of the Open in 1971, stood at the 18th green and watched as Miss Palmer hit her third shot on the par-five hole 40 feet past the pin. The first putt was five feet short.

"When she hit her first putt and lined up her second and shook her head, I knew she was going to knock it in," Mrs. Carner said later.

While Mrs. Carner and Miss Palmer were at the top, a disappointed Jane Blalock finished third, four strokes off the pace.

The 30-year-old Miss Blalock was tied for the lead on the back nine of the final round Sunday, but she double-bogeyed the 16th to fall out contention. She finished 75-72-73-76—296.

Mrs. Carner, longest hitter among woman golfers, appeared to have won her second Open when she holed a four-foot birdie putt on the par-five 17th. But Miss Palmer, the defending champion, refused to quit.

The two finalists completed the 72 holes at Rolling Green Golf Club with eight-over-par 292s to produce the fourth playoff in the tournament's history.

Susie McAllister, a pro from Beaumont, Tex., shot a final three over par 74, and wound up fourth at 297. Then came Sharon Miller of Battle Creek, Mich., who shot the best final round Sunday, 72, and tied for fifth with Amy Alcott at 299.

Plangger's Bags Kalamazoo Title

KALAMAZOO — Plangger's fastpitch softball team picked itself off the floor over the weekend and won the Kalamazoo Invitational here.

After dropping its first tourney game Friday, Plangger's went on to take nine straight contests to win the invitational.

The local team rode the arm of Rick Plangger to finally bag the championship. Rick hurled two straight shutouts at Grand Rapids Neals in the title games to help Plangger's come away with the first-place trophy. Rick stifled Neals on just two hits as Plangger's won 4-0 to force a second game. And he then scattered six hits in the 1-0 win which clinched the title.

Plangger's scored the only run in the championship game in the fourth inning as Jeff Weaver singled, Rick Plangger singled and Fred Chabot tripled. Plangger was ruled out on an appeal play for failing to touch third, but Weaver's run counted and the local team made it stand up.

Plangger had fanned 11 and helped his own cause with a home run in the earlier win over Neals. Nick Shushman also homered and Lee Chabot banged out a pair of hits.

Plangger's had reeled off seven victories to reach the title game, yielding just 10 runs in that span. In succession, Plangger's beat Kalamazoo Rorick 4-1, Kalamazoo Vandenberg 2-1, Kalamazoo High Wheelers 5-4 in 10 innings, Mishawaka 7-1, New Haven 3-0, Saginaw 6-2, and Grand Rapids Wal-Vac 3-1.

Rick Plangger picked up five of the victories, including one in relief of his father against High Wheelers.

George Luther picked up the two wins that Rick didn't get, hurling a four-hitter at Kalamazoo Rorick and a five-hit shutout at New Haven.

Weaver was the top Plangger's hitter in the tourney with 10 hits in 30 at bats (.333).

All-Star Staub's Single Beats KC

DETROIT (AP) — For Detroit's Rusty Staub, it was a fitting sendoff for Tuesday's appearance in the All-Star game.

And although Kansas City All-Star George Brett made it clear he deserves his All-Star nomination, his performance wasn't quite enough to give the Royals a clean sweep of their series with the Tigers.

Staub gave the Tigers a 6-5 victory in 12 innings — the longest game Detroit has played this year — with a two-out single that drove in catcher John Wockenfuss.

"It was good to get it over with," said Staub. "But it's a shame (Tiger starter Vern) Ruhle didn't get the win. He pitched well."

Ruhle pitched for five and one-third innings and allowed just one hit through the fifth. But he gave up two doubles in the sixth, was credited with two runs and was relieved by Steve Grilli. Ruhle fanned four and walked three.

Instead, the winner was Tiger lefthander relief ace John Hiller, who raised his record to 8-4 in his longest session of the year. The losing pitcher was Steve Mingori, now 3-1. Mingori was the third Royals pitcher, and he held the Tigers scoreless for four innings until Staub ended the game.

Brett, the American League's starting All-Star third baseman, went 4-for-6, the fourth time this year he has collected that many safeties in a single game. Brett's performance included two doubles.

He was a key part of a 12th-inning threat when he doubled the inning's leadoff hitter, Amos Otis, to third. Hiller walked John Mayberry, loading the bases, but the Tigers saved the game when Aurelio Rodriguez threw out Otis at the plate and Cookie Rojas hit into an inning-ending double play.

The Royals overcame a 5-0 deficit with their two runs in the sixth and with three more in the seventh when they sent eight men to the plate. In the sixth, Dave Cowens doubled. Otis followed with a fly deep to right-center and right-fielder Staub ran to the wall, catching the ball backhanded and over his head.

But after the catch, Staub — who has received criticism for his play in the field — apparently forgot about the baserunner and held on to the ball, allowing Cowens to tag up and score.

Brett completed the inning's scoring after doubling and coming home on a sacrifice fly.

In the seventh, Frank White hit an infield single to short and scored on a sacrifice fly by Otis and Hiller was called in. But lefthander Hiller gave up a single to Brett, sending Cowens, who also had singled, to third. Cowens came home on a single by John Mayberry and Hiller uncorked a wild pitch to score Brett.

The Tigers took a 2-0 lead in the second when Mickey Stanley was safe at first on one of three Kansas City errors. Stanley scored on Pedro Garcia's long double and Garcia followed him home when Bruce Kimm singled.

Aurelio Rodriguez homered with Jason Thompson aboard in the fourth, and Ron LeFlore scored in the fifth when he accepted the first walk of the game from Kansas City starter Paul Splittorff. LeFlore moved to third on a pair of sacrifice flies and scored on Alex Johnson's single.

The victory gave the Tigers a 1-2 split with the Royals. Kansas City beat Mark Fidrych 1-0 on Friday and then topped the Tigers 7-1 on Saturday.

NL Starters Standout In Relief

How well a pitcher does is up to the man himself. But when he does it is up to his manager, especially around All-Star time...in the National League, anyway.

The American League, having dropped 12 of the last 13 midseason classics, has been given an order by AL President Lee MacPahil the last three years — don't use any of your All-Star hurlers on the Sunday before the game.

In the rest of the NL, Ed Halicki baffled Chicago with a two-hitter as San Francisco beat the Cubs 2-0, Jim Kaat pitched a nine-hit shutout in Philadelphia's 3-0 victory over San Diego, Joaquin Andujar did the same in Houston's 1-0 squeaker over Montreal and Pittsburgh defeated Cincinnati 8-5.

Matlack, the winner of last year's All-Star Game, had an easy time with the Braves until they bombed him during a five-run seventh inning. One of his successors was Seaver.

"I volunteered to relieve," the Mets' ace right-hander said. "If they thought they could use me, I wanted to play. If I had expected to start the All-Star Game it would have been different. But I won't start. Randy Jones (of San Diego) will. He didn't pitch today purposely so he could start the All-Star Game."

Ruthven pitched until Braves Manager Dave Bristol sent up a pinch-hitter for him during their five-run seventh. But his shot at victory also vanished when the Mets jumped on Mike Marshall in the eighth. Bruce Dal Canton, who cooled off New York for the final 11-3 innings, got the victory.

Sutton pitched two-hit ball for three relief innings and got his victory when the Dodgers jumped on St. Louis for seven runs in the seventh inning, three of them scoring on Reggie Smith's homer.

Sutton said the relief stint was his first in nearly five years.

Halicki, who pitched a no-hitter against the Mets last season, had another one going against Chicago until Jose Cardenal grounded a single up the middle leading off the seventh inning. The only hit he and the Giants needed was Gary Matthews' first-inning homerIhalicki, 8-11, who hurled a no-hitter Aug. 24, 1975, when he beat the New York Mets 6-0, limited the Cubs to a pair of walks—to Pete LaCock in the second and fifth innings—before Cardenal bounced a 1-1 pitch up the middle, just out of shortstop Chris Speier's reach.

He retired the next four batters but was nicked for a oneout single to left in the eighth by Steve Swisher. Champ Summers then ended the inning, lining into a double play. Halicki finished with two strikeouts and two walks.

Matthews gave him the only run he needed with his 11th homer of the year, a shot to left off Steve Stone, 1-1. The Giants got their other run off Bruce Sutter in the ninth. Marty Perez beat out a bunt, continued to second when third baseman Bill Madlock threw wildly to first, advanced to third on a fly ball and scored on Darrell Evans' single to left.

Greg Luzinski's three-run double in the sixth inning and a strong defense that turned three double plays gave Kaat his first NL shutout, despite his being peppered for nine San Diego hits.

Andujar's shutout was his third of the season. "I've been sick for about four or five days," he admitted afterwards. "I felt dizzy before the game. But I love baseball. Every time I go out there, I give 200 per cent. The way I was hustling, no one could tell I was sick. You have to be a man to play this game."

The man who gave him the game was Leon Roberts with a fifth-inning single that drove in the game's only run.

Cincinnati relievers Pedro Borbon and Will McEnaney gave Pittsburgh its victory.

First Borbon hit Tommy Helms with a bases-loaded pitch in the eighth inning to force in the tie-breaking run, then McEnaney served up a juicy pitch that Rennie Stennett ripped for a two-run double.

Plangger's Bags Kalamazoo Title

KALAMAZOO — Plangger's fastpitch softball team picked itself off the floor over the weekend and won the Kalamazoo Invitational here.

After dropping its first tourney game Friday, Plangger's went on to take nine straight contests to win the Invitational.

The local team rode the arm of Rick Plangger to finally bag the championship. Rick hurled two straight shutouts at Grand Rapids Neals in the title games to help Plangger's come away with the first-place trophy. Rick stifled Neals on just two hits as Plangger's won 4-0 to force a second game. And he then scattered six hits in the 1-0 win which clinched the title.

Plangger's scored the only run in the championship game in the fourth inning as Jeff Weaver singled, Rick Plangger singled and Fred Chabot tripled. Plangger was ruled out on an appeal play for failing to touch third, but Weaver's run counted and the local team made it stand up.

Plangger had fanned 11 and helped his own cause with a home run in the earlier win over Neals. Nick Shushman also homered and Lee Chabot banged out a pair of hits.

Plangger's had reeled off seven victories to reach the title game, yielding just 10 runs in that span. In succession, Plangger's beat Kalamazoo Rorick 4-1, Kalamazoo Vandenberg 2-1, Kalamazoo High Wheelers 5-4 in 10 innings, Mishawaka 7-1, New Haven 3-0, Saginaw 6-2, and Grand Rapids Wal-Vac 3-1.

Rick Plangger picked up five of the victories, including one in relief of his father against High Wheelers.

George Luther picked up the two wins that Rick didn't get, hurling a four-hitter at Kalamazoo Rorick and a five-hit shutout at New Haven.

Weaver was the top Plangger's hitter in the tourney with 10 hits in 30 at bats (.333).

Plangger's, now 50-22, hosts Kalamazoo Vandenberg at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at Plangger's Park.

Two Golfers In Playoff

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Sandra Palmer sounded more like a loser than a contender after she rolled in the five-foot putt that sent her into today's 18-hole playoff with JoAnne Carner for the 1976 U.S. Women's Open Golf Championship.

Miss Palmer, who started the last round two strokes in front of Miss Carner, lamented about her first nine holes. She bogeyed four of the first five and the eighth, had one birdie and made the turn two down.

The 35-year-old Miss Palmer dropped a 20-foot birdie putt on the 17th hole to tie Mrs. Carner. She needed a par on the 18th to set up a playoff, a birdie to win.

Mrs. Carner, winner of the Open in 1971, stood at the 18th green and watched as Miss Palmer hit her third shot on the par-five hole 40 feet past the pin. The first putt was five feet short.

"When she hit her first putt and lined up her second and shook her head, I knew she was going to knock it in," Mrs. Carner said later.

While Mrs. Carner and Miss Palmer were at the top, a disappointed Jane Blalock finished third, four strokes off the pace.

The 30-year-old Miss Blalock was tied for the lead on the back nine of the final round Sunday, but she double-bogeyed the 16th to fall out contention. She finished 75-72-73-76—296.

Mrs. Carner, longest hitter among woman golfers, appeared to have won her second Open when she holed a four-foot birdie putt on the par-five 17th. But Miss Palmer, the defending champion, refused to quit.

The two finalists completed the 72 holes at Rolling Green Golf Club with eight-over-par 292s to produce the fourth playoff in the tournament's history.

Susie McAllister, a pro from Beaumont, Tex., shot a final three over par 74, and wound up fourth at 297. Then came Sharon Miller of Battle Creek, Mich., who shot the best final round Sunday, 72, and tied for fifth with Amy Alcott at 299.

All-Star Staub's Single Beats KC

DETROIT (AP) — For Detroit's Rusty Staub, it was a fitting sendoff for Tuesday's appearance in the All-Star game.

And although Kansas City All-Star George Brett made it clear he deserves his All-Star nomination, his performance wasn't quite enough to give the Royals a clean sweep of their series with the Tigers.

Staub gave the Tigers a 6-5 victory in 12 innings — the longest game Detroit has played this year — with a two-out single that drove in catcher John Wockenfuss.

"It was good to get it over with," said Staub. "But it's a shame (Tiger starter Vern) Ruhle didn't get the win. He pitched well."

Ruhle pitched for five and one-third innings and allowed just one hit through the fifth. But he gave up two doubles in the sixth, was credited with two runs and was relieved by Steve Grilli. Ruhle fanned four and walked three.

Instead, the winner was Tiger lefthander relief ace John Hiller, who raised his record to 8-4 in his longest session of the year. The losing pitcher was Steve Mingori, now 3-1. Mingori was the third Royals pitcher, and he held the Tigers scoreless for four innings until Staub ended the game.

Brett, the American League's starting All-Star third baseman, went 4-for-6, the fourth time this year he has collected that many safeties in a single game. Brett's performance included two doubles.

He was a key part of a 12th-inning threat when he doubled the inning's leadoff hitter, Amos Otis, to third. Hiller walked John Mayberry, loading the bases, but the Tigers saved the game when Aurelio Rodriguez threw out Otis at the plate and Cookie Rojas hit into an inning-ending double play.

The Royals overcame a 5-0 deficit with their two runs in the sixth and with three more in the seventh when they sent eight men to the plate. In the sixth, Dave Cowens doubled. Otis followed with a fly deep to right-center and right-fielder Staub ran to the wall, catching the ball backhanded and over his head.

But after the catch, Staub — who has received criticism for his play in the field — apparently forgot about the baserunner and held on to the ball, allowing Cowens to tag up and score.

Brett completed the inning's scoring after doubling and coming home on a sacrifice fly.

In the seventh, Frank White hit an infield single to short and scored on a sacrifice fly by Otis and Hiller was called in. But lefthander Hiller gave up a single to Brett, sending Cowens, who also had singled, to third. Cowens came home on a single by John Mayberry and Hiller uncorked a wild pitch to score Brett.

The Tigers took a 2-0 lead in the second when Mickey Stanley was safe at first on one of three Kansas City errors. Stanley scored on Pedro Garcia's long double and Garcia followed him home when Bruce Kimm singled.

Aurelio Rodriguez homered with Jason Thompson aboard in the fourth, and Ron LeFlore scored in the fifth when he accepted the first walk of the game from Kansas City starter Paul Splittorff. LeFlore moved to third on a pair of sacrifice flies and scored on Alex Johnson's single.

The victory gave the Tigers a 1-2 split with the Royals. Kansas City beat Mark Fidrych 1-0 on Friday and then topped the Tigers 7-1 on Saturday.

Figueroa Shuts Out Sox

Yankee Fires Three-Hitter In 5-0 Win

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ed Figueroa will spend the All-Star break with his family this year, but he knows his time is coming.

After firing a three-hit shutout Sunday in New York's 5-0 victory over the Chicago White Sox, Figueroa reflected on his role with the Yankees and his own stature in baseball.

"It is my second year in the big leagues," said 27-year-old native of Puerto Rico. "I just want to win my games. Then next year I have the name. Maybe I can win 20 games with this club.

"Last year I had only seven wins before the All-Star Game. This year I have 10," said Figueroa, 10-6, the third Yankee pitcher to win 10 games before midseason. The other two are Catfish Hunter and Dock Ellis.

In other American League games, Detroit nipped Kansas City 6-5 in 12 innings, Boston defeated Minnesota 6-4, Baltimore beat California 3-1, Oakland whipped Cleveland 9-3 and Milwaukee took two from Texas, 6-3 and 5-4 in 10 innings.

Going into Tuesday's All-Star Game in Philadelphia, the Yankees led Boston by 9½ games in the AL East Pennant race.

Oscar Gamble's two-run, 400-foot homer in the second inning gave the 6-foot right-handed Figueroa all the firepower he needed to give the Yanks their ninth victory in 10 games between the two teams this season.

Figueroa allowed three singles, gave up two walks and struck out four. Chicago starter Bart Johnson, 7-8, seeking his fifth straight victory, took the loss.

Johnson was relieved by lefthander Dave Hamilton in the fourth inning and Hamilton yielded only four hits over the next four innings before giving way to former Lakeshore high school pitcher Chris Knapp. In the eighth inning Knapp walked Nettles and Gamble and yielded a two-run double to Mickey Rivers.

Fred Lynn ignited a 13-hit Boston attack with a first-inning home run, his sixth of the year, and Ferguson Jenkins evened his record at 8-8 in Boston's win.

Jenkins scattered 10 hits before giving way to Jim Willoughby in the ninth. Denny Doyle had a two-run single in the third for Boston, which evened its record at 40-40 going into the All-Star Game.

Reggie Jackson blasted a two-run homer off Nolan Ryan and Dave Pagan, in his first start for Baltimore since being traded from the Yankees in June, earned his second victory in five decisions this season.

Ryan, 7-10, was the loser, despite striking out 12, as he walked five and allowed nine hits. It was the sixth time this season and the 77th time in his career that Ryan has fanned 10 or more batters in a game.

Bill North drove in two runs, scored three more and extended his league-leading stolenbases mark to 42 with a single swipe in Oakland's victory. The A's have won seven of their past eight games.

Winning pitcher Paul Mitchell, 5-5, got relief help from Paul Lindblad, who gave up just one hit and held Cleveland scoreless for the final 3 2-3 innings. The loser was Dennis Eckersley, 4-8.

Hank Aaron homered in the 10th inning to give Milwaukee a sweep of its doubleheader with Texas and a sweep of their five-game series. The Rangers now have lost six in a row.

Aaron's 340-foot homer into the left field stands was his ninth of the season and 754th of his career.

Milwaukee tied the nightcap 4-4 in the ninth on run-scoring singles by Bernie Carbo, who had a two-run homer earlier in the game, and Robin Yount. Bill Castro, 2-0, got the victory in relief.

Jim Slaton picked up his 10th victory against six losses in the opener as Gorman Thomas's two-run double highlighted Milwaukee's five-run seventh inning.

Lister Captures Quad Cities Open

MOLINE, Ill. (AP) — New Zealand's John Lister had begun to wonder whether he was capable of winning an American golf tournament.

"I've reached that point a number of times where I considered maybe I couldn't win over here," he said.

Sunday he proved that he could.

Lister took the $100,000 Quad Cities Open with steady rounds of 68-68-65-67 for a 16-under par 268, beating Fuzzy Zoeller by two strokes.

The victory was worth $20,000 to Lister, who had been 67th on the Professional Golfers Association (PGA) money list this year at $24,637.

Lister, 29, has been playing the American tour about eight months a year since 1971. His victory marked the first for a foreign player in a PGA tournament this year.

"The Masters is the one I'm really looking forward to," he said after the final round on the par 71, 6,305-yard Oakwood Country Club course.

Zoeller had taken the first-round lead on a course-record 63, including a tour record-tying eight straight birdies. After 36 holes, Zoeller was in a threeway tie for the lead with Rex Caldwell and Mike Morley, each at 134. Lister and George Archer were two strokes back.

Lister shot 65 in the third round to Zoeller's 68, giving the New Zealander a one-stroke lead going into the final 18 holes. Caldwell was two strokes back and Archer and Tommy McGinnis were four shots off the pace.

"I went out charging but started a little slow," said Zoeller, who turned pro in 1973 and has yet to win a tournament. "I didn't birdie No. 1 like I wanted and bogeyed four and five."

The turning point, said Lister, came when he got birdies on the No. 6 and No. 7 holes. "I was starting to relax."

Lister's only bogey was on the par four, 435-yard No. 18.

Caldwell stroked a 69 and finished third at 12-under 272. Archer was fourth at 275 and McGinnis fifth at 276.

Defending champion Roger Maltbie finished well back at five-over 288.

Figueroa Shuts Out Sox

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ed Figueroa will spend the All-Star break with his family this year, but he knows his time is coming.

After firing a three-hit shutout Sunday in New York's 5-0 victory over the Chicago White Sox, Figueroa reflected on his role with the Yankees and his own stature in baseball.

"It is my second year in the big leagues," said 27-year-old native of Puerto Rico. "I just want to win my games. Then next year I have the name. Maybe I can win 20 games with this club.

"Last year I had only seven wins before the All-Star Game. This year I have 10," said Figueroa, 10-6, the third Yankee pitcher to win 10 games before midseason. The other two are Catfish Hunter and Dock Ellis.

In other American League games, Detroit nipped Kansas City 6-5 in 12 innings, Boston defeated Minnesota 6-4, Baltimore beat California 3-1, Oakland whipped Cleveland 9-3 and Milwaukee took two from Texas, 6-3 and 5-4 in 10 innings.

Going into Tuesday's All-Star Game in Philadelphia, the Yankees led Boston by 9½ games in the AL East Pennant race.

Oscar Gamble's two-run, 400-foot homer in the second inning gave the 6-foot right-handed Figueroa all the firepower he needed to give the Yanks their ninth victory in 10 games between the two teams this season.

Figueroa allowed three singles, gave up two walks and struck out four. Chicago starter Bart Johnson, 7-8, seeking his fifth straight victory, took the loss.

Johnson was relieved by lefthander Dave Hamilton in the fourth inning and Hamilton yielded only four hits over the next four innings before giving way to former Lakeshore high school pitcher Chris Knapp. In the eighth inning Knapp walked Nettles and Gamble and yielded a two-run double to Mickey Rivers.

Fred Lynn ignited a 13-hit Boston attack with a first-inning home run, his sixth of the year, and Ferguson Jenkins evened his record at 8-8 in Boston's win.

Jenkins scattered 10 hits before giving way to Jim Willoughby in the ninth. Denny Doyle had a two-run single in the third for Boston, which evened its record at 40-40 going into the All-Star Game.

Reggie Jackson blasted a two-run homer off Nolan Ryan and Dave Pagan, in his first start for Baltimore since being traded from the Yankees in June, earned his second victory in five decisions this season.

Ryan, 7-10, was the loser, despite striking out 12, as he walked five and allowed nine hits. It was the sixth time this season and the 77th time in his career that Ryan has fanned 10 or more batters in a game.

Bill North drove in two runs, scored three more and extended his league-leading stolenbases mark to 42 with a single swipe in Oakland's victory. The A's have won seven of their past eight games.

Winning pitcher Paul Mitchell, 5-5, got relief help from Paul Lindblad, who gave up just one hit and held Cleveland scorless for the final 3 2-3 innings. The loser was Dennis Eckersley, 4-8.

Hank Aaron homered in the 10th inning to give Milwaukee a sweep of its doubleheader with Texas and a sweep of their five-game series. The Rangers now have lost six in a row.

Aaron's 340-foot homer into the left field stands was his ninth of the season and 754th of his career.

Milwaukee tied the nightcap 4-4 in the ninth on run-scoring singles by Bernie Carbo, who had a two-run homer earlier in the game, and Robin Yount. Bill Castro, 2-0, got the victory in relief.

Jim Slaton picked up his 10th victory against six losses in the opener as Gorman Thomas's two-run double highlighted Milwaukee's five-run seventh inning.

MOLINE, Ill. (AP) — New Zealand's John Lister had begun to wonder whether he was capable of winning an American golf tournament.

"I've reached that point a number of times where I considered maybe I couldn't win over here," he said.

Sunday he proved that he could.

Lister took the $100,000 Quad Cities Open with steady rounds of 68-68-65-67 for a 16-under par 268, beating Fuzzy Zoeller by two strokes.

The victory was worth $20,000 to Lister, who had been 67th on the Professional Golfers Association (PGA) money list this year at $24,637.

Lister, 29, has been playing the American tour about eight months a year since 1971. His victory marked the first for a foreign player in a PGA tournament this year.

"The Masters is the one I'm really looking forward to," he said after the final round on the par 71, 6,305-yard Oakwood Country Club course.

Zoeller had taken the first-round lead on a course-record 63, including a tour record-tying eight straight birdies. After 36 holes, Zoeller was in a threeway tie for the lead with Rex Caldwell and Mike Morley, each at 134. Lister and George Archer were two strokes back.

Lister shot 65 in the third round to Zoeller's 68, giving the New Zealander a one-stroke lead going into the final 18 holes. Caldwell was two strokes back and Archer and Tommy McGinnis were four shots off the pace.

"I went out charging but started a little slow," said Zoeller, who turned pro in 1973 and has yet to win a tournament. "I didn't birdie No. 1 like I wanted and bogeyed four and five."

The turning point, said Lister, came when he got birdies on the No. 6 and No. 7 holes. "I was starting to relax."

Lister's only bogey was on the par four, 435-yard No. 18.

Caldwell stroked a 69 and finished third at 12-under 272. Archer was fourth at 275 and McGinnis fifth at 276.

Defending champion Roger Maltbie finished well back at five-over 289.

American Cagers Relying On Speed

Soviets Top Contenders Again

NEW YORK (AP) — When Coach Dean Smith began assembling candidates for the United States Olympic basketball team, he had set ideas about the kind of unit he thought had the best chance to bring home a gold medal.

"The players were told that to make this club they would have to play defense, rebound and be team players," said Smith.

By that Smith meant that he wanted unselfish players, not one-on-one performers. The emphasis was on speed and that was exactly the kind of unit the United States is bringing to Montreal.

The guards are lightning fast, headed by Phil Ford of North Carolina and Quinn Buckner of Indiana. Forwards like Scott May of Indiana and Adrian Dantley of Notre Dame give Smith muscle and mobility up front. The starting center will be 6-10 Mitch Kupchak of North Carolina, not the most dominating big man the United States has ever had in the Games but the best available to Smith. He will share the pivot spot with North Carolina teammate Tommy LaGarde, also 6-10.

Smith's other players are Tate Armstrong of Duke, Kenny Carr of North Carolina State, Walt Davis of North Carolina, Ernie Grunfeld of Tennessee, Phil Hubbard of Michigan, Mark Landsberger of Arizona State and Steve Sheppard of Maryland.

Landsberger was the last player to be cut from the squad, reducing it to the Olympic limit of 12.

Throughout its exhibition schedule, the American team demonstrated the running, aggressive game Smith stressed. "He's teaching us a lot real quickly," said Dantley. "We are playing well now and I think we'll get better. If we play as a team, we'll win."

That's what Smith kept telling his players. He bristled whenever his players drifted away from the controlled game into playground - type basketball. "You have to play together," he said. "I want guys who'll play as a team and hustle."

When he put his squad together, Smith liked its looks. "There's no reason why we can't be a great team," he said.

The squad brings solid scoring credentials to the Games. Five of Smith's players — May, Dantley, Grunfeld, Carr and Armstrong — averaged better than 23 points per game for their college teams last season.

"There isn't a man here who can't play offense," said Smith during the team trials. "But that isn't what's going to win the gold medal for us."

Winning Olympic gold has been a United States basketball tradition. In the eight Games since basketball was added to the Olympic summer program in 1936, this country has won seven gold medals. The exception was 1972 at Munich when the Soviet Union won a hotly disputed championship game, beating the United States 51-50.

The dispute in that title game was over the final three seconds which were played twice. After a controversial time-out, Russia failed to score and the American team erupted into a victory celebration. But the Soviets were given a second chance when R. William Jones, Secretary General of the International Amateur Basketball Federation, ruled that three seconds still remained and the Russians scored at the buzzer.

Once again, the Russians figure to be Uncle Sam's toughest rival for the basektball gold. Unlike the brand new American team, the Soviets are coming to Montreal with many veterans from the 1972 Munich gold medalists.

Belov, the man who scored the winning basket, is back and so is Ivan Edeshko, who threw the floor-length pass that set up the deciding two-pointer. Also returning from that team are Sergei Belov, Alzhan Zharmukhamedov, and Mikhail Korkia.

But the man who could make the big difference in this tournament is an 18-year-old Russian center named Valdimir Tkachenko. He is listed at 7 feet, 3 inches and about 230 pounds. But teams that have gone up against him claim Tkachenko is even bigger, perhaps 7-4 or 7-5.

The scouting reports on the big Russian say that he is a little slow and has a tendency to get into foul trouble. But his size alone makes him a major factor on the Soviet team.

The Russians have some other good size. Besides Tkachenko, there's another 7-foot teen-ager in Valdimir Zhiglii and 6-8½ Rashid Abelyanov.

Belov, the 1972 hero, is 6-8 and according to the Soviet coaches has improved his defense. Another addition to the team is Alexander Salnikov, who has averaged between 25 and 30 points per game.

Two of the coaches handling other teams in the Olympics are native Americans. Tom Nissalke, new coach of the National Basketball Association's Houston Rockets, will pilot the Puerto Rican team and Jack Donohue, former New York City high school coach and exhead coach at Holy Cross, is in charge of the Canadian team.

Nissalke's club also has several American players. The centers are 6-11 Earl Brown, who played at Lafayette, and 36-year-old Teo Cruz, who is playing in his fifth Olympics.

Norton Stops Middleton In Warm-Up For Ali

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Ken Norton dispatched his trial horse foe after a harder time than he'd expected and admits he'll have to be sharper, stronger and lighter to beat Muhammad Ali for the heavyweight boxing championship.

Norton, the ex-Marine slated to fight Ali on Sept. 28 in New York, stopped Larry Middleton in the 10th and final round of their fight at San Diego Saturday.

The 31-year-old Norton dominated the fight, leading on all cards, but he admits, "My trainer, Bill Slayton, wanted the bout to go 10 rounds. I tried to double cross him and end it earlier but I just didn't get the job done.

"Actually, I didn't want to peak for this fight. I want to peak for Ali. I plan to weigh about 210 and I'll be stronger and faster."

Norton, weighing 222½ and fighting before a hometown crowd, heard boos when referee Rudy Jordan of Los Angeles stopped the fight at 2:07 of the final round. Middleton's manager also screamed foul and didn't think the fight should have been stopped.

"Middleton was cut in the mouth, bruised around the eye and was hurt while not returning anything," explained Jordan. "He could have been badly hurt in the time remaining."

Norton actually fought hard about one minute in each round except for the fifth and seventh when he belted the 207½-pound, 34-year-old Middleton most of the rounds. In the sixth, Middleton was knocked into the ropes.

The ex-Marine gambled by taking this fight but he needed a final tune-up for his bout against Ali which could earn the challenger $2.5 million or more. He earned just $50,000 for beating Middleton and a loss would have jeopardized his title fight.

"My fighter was 30-1 going in and he put up a great fight," declared Middleton's manager Nick Trotti. "It was a shame the fight was stopped."

Going into the Ali fight, Norton carries a 37-3 record with 30 knockouts. He avenged his loss to Jose Luis Garcia by knockout. Then he divided with Ali and was knocked out by Foreman in a title fight at Caracas, Venezuela.

Winning hurler Mike Collier tied up the second game with a triple. Rick Dyer won the contest in the last inning with a RBI single.

Decatur, Bangor Hot Mack Clubs

Decatur and Bangor continued on a collision course over the weekend in Southwest Connie Mack league action.

Decatur ran its Eastern Division leading record to a perfect 6-0 with three wins, while Bangor did likewise to up its mark to 6-2. The two meet in a twin bill next Sunday at Bangor.

The Raiders had no trouble handling Watervliet Saturday, winning 12-1 and 6-4. But Decatur just got by Benton Heights 3-2 Sunday. Bangor took care of Gobles twice Saturday 7-6 and 9-2 and then topped North Lincoln 6-4 Sunday. Gobles lost to Paw Paw 3-2 Sunday.

In other action over the weekend, Fairplain kept a strong hold on the Western lead by bombing Hager twice 12-1 and 14-0.

Mike High played a major role in Decatur's Sunday win over Benton Heights. High tripled in two runs in the first inning and then watched what proved to be the winning run score in the third when his two-out popup was dropped, allowing Kurt Wiese to score from second.

Al McAdams pitched a five-hitter and struck out seven to pick up the win. Wiese slammed a pair of hits.

Wiese collected four hits in Saturday's doubleheader win. Jim Smola hurled a two-hitter in the first game and Jim Overley pitched a six-hitter in the nightcap.

Bangor scored four times in the first to post its first-game win Saturday and used Rick Ross' five-hitter to make it a sweep. Carl Smith collected four hits in the twin bill for Bangor while Tim Glass banked out six for Gobles.

Keith Wiles held North Lincoln to just five hits in Sunday's win. Bangor rallied for three runs in the sixth to pull the game out.

Tom Mrkacek drove in what proved to be the winning runs with a two-run single in the sixth. John Dentzman also slammed a two-run single for the winners.

Mickey Ott collected two singles and drove in two runs, while Dan Rotsch slammed a home run for North Lincoln.

Red Austin pitched Paw Paw past Gobles. Charley Lynch collected three hits for the losers.

Jon Hermann pitched a two-hitter and Bob Mattner hurled a one-hitter in Fairplain's twin wins. Harold Jewell collected a pair of singles for both hits off Hermann in the opener. Craig Beckman's infield single was the only safety in the nightcap off Mattner.

Fairplain now stands 8-1 in the league, while Hager dropped to 1-8.

Jones Pessimistic Despite Race Win

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (AP) — A victory with a new car, in its first race, would normally leave a driver pretty optimistic about the future.

Not so with Alan Jones.

Despite winning Sunday's rain drenched 100-mile Formula 5,000 road racing feature here, Jones remained pessimistic about the potential of his new March 76A, in a reluctant debut.

"The car still has many problems, mostly the problems of a new car. It does show a great deal of promise in straightaway speed, but the cornering is not good at this point," asserted the 29-year-old Britisher.

The actual potential of the March was hard to determine in the race, however, because of the rain, he said.

Jones took the lead on the 28th of 30 laps and finished 6.8 seconds ahead of pole position winner Al Unser, who along with Brian Redman won split victories in the two 33 mile heat races prior to the feature. Both of those races were run before the rains came.

Dowagiac Legion Keeps Gray Lead

Dowagiac used the four-hit pitching of Larry McLaughlin Sunday to keep the Gray Division lead in American Legion play.

McLaughlin fanned six and did not walk a batter in pitching Dowagiac to a 1-0 win over Bridgman. The Bees won the non-league half of the doubleheader 11-3.

In other Blue-Gray action over the weekend, Three Oaks split a pair of doubleheaders. Three Oaks split with Lakeshore Connie Mack, winning 9-1 and losing 2-1, and then divided a twin bill with South Haven Connie Mack, capturing the first game 8-2 and dropping the nightcap 4-3. Lakeshore's legion team got by Benton Harbor 5-4.

Dowagiac, now 7-3 in the league, gave McLaughlin the only run he needed in the third inning when Dan Weinman walked, stole second and scored on McLaughlin's own single. McLaughlin slapped out a double to go with his single.

Dan Kamradt pitched an eight-hitter to pick up the second-game win. Weinman was the loser.

Bridgman raced out to an 8-0 lead in the first two innings and was never headed.

Dennie Busse pitched a four-hitter in Three Oaks' first-game win Saturday over Lakeshore Connie Mack. Busse also collected a pair of singles for the winners. Howie Jackson added a double and a single. Mark Owens hurled a five-hitter in the second game for Lakeshore Mack, now 8-5 in league play. Jeff Jackson took the loss for Three Oaks (7-4).

Lakeshore broke a 1-1 tie with a run in the eighth as Scott Smikle singled, was sacrificed to second and scored on a single by Mike Woods.

Gary Schaffer's four-hitter sparked Three Oaks win over South Haven in Sunday's first game. Dale Germinder collected two hits and two runs batted in for the winners.

Dave Zebell had a no-hitter until the sixth inning in the nightcap before the roof fell in. South Haven tallied twice in the sixth and once in the seventh to not only ruin the no-hitter but win the game.

Steve Rennhack gave up no runs and two hits over the final four innings in Lakeshore Legion's win. Craig Stephens took the loss.

Benton Harbor held a 4-2 lead, but Lakeshore tied the game with two runs in the fifth and won it in the ninth. Rennhack reached second on a two-base error and then scored on a double by Barry Coburn.

American Cagers Relying On Speed

Soviets Top Contenders Again

NEW YORK (AP) — When Coach Dean Smith began assembling candidates for the United States Olympic basketball team, he had set ideas about the kind of unit he thought had the best chance to bring home a gold medal.

"The players were told that to make this club they would have to play defense, rebound and be team players," said Smith.

By that Smith meant that he wanted unselfish players, not one-on-one performers. The emphasis was on speed and that was exactly the kind of unit the United States is bringing to Montreal.

The guards are lightning fast, headed by Phil Ford of North Carolina and Quinn Buckner of Indiana. Forwards like Scott May of Indiana and Adrian Dantley of Notre Dame give Smith muscle and mobility up front. The starting center will be 6-10 Mitch Kupchak of North Carolina, not the most dominating big man the United States has ever had in the Games but the best available to Smith. He will share the pivot spot with North Carolina teammate Tommy LaGarde, also 6-10.

Smith's other players are Tate Armstrong of Duke, Kenny Carr of North Carolina State, Walt Davis of North Carolina, Ernie Grunfeld of Tennessee, Phil Hubbard of Michigan, Mark Landsberger of Arizona State and Steve Sheppard of Maryland.

Landsberger was the last player to be cut from the squad, reducing it to the Olympic limit of 12.

Throughout its exhibition schedule, the American team demonstrated the running, aggressive game Smith stressed. "He's teaching us a lot real quickly," said Dantley. "We are playing well now and I think we'll get better. If we play as a team, we'll win."

That's what Smith kept telling his players. He bristled whenever his players drifted away from the controlled game into playground - type basketball. "You have to play together," he said. "I want guys who'll play as a team and hustle."

When he put his squad together, Smith liked its looks. "There's no reason why we can't be a great team," he said.

The squad brings solid scoring credentials to the Games. Five of Smith's players — May, Dantley, Grunfeld, Carr and Armstrong — averaged better than 23 points per game for their college teams last season.

"There isn't a man here who can't play offense," said Smith during the team trials. "But that isn't what's going to win the gold medal for us."

Winning Olympic gold has been a United States basketball tradition. In the eight Games since basketball was added to the Olympic summer program in 1936, this country has won seven gold medals. The exception was 1972 at Munich when the Soviet Union won a hotly disputed championship game, beating the United States 51-50.

The dispute in that title game was over the final three seconds which were played twice. After a controversial time-out, Russia failed to score and the American team erupted into a victory celebration. But the Soviets were given a second chance when R. African Nations Seeking Condemnation Of Israel

By SAMUEL KOO
Associated Press Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Security Council today begins hearing a parade of Third World countries calling for condemnation of Israel for its commando rescue of more than 100 hostages from Uganda a week ago.

Mauritius, Benin, Guinea and Guyana were to speak in the council debate in support of Uganda's charges that Israel committed "barbaric, unprovoked and naked aggression."

The United States, trying to use the debate to focus attention on the hijacking and terrorism that caused the Israeli raid, was consulting with Israel and other allies about a resolution condemning international terrorism and establishing some sort of mechanism to deal with it.

"We have not yet reached a consensus," Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger told a news conference in Washington Saturday. He said if agreement was not reached, "we will put it forth ourselves."

The Americans were reported to have drafted a general condemnation of international terrorism and a suggestion that Israel compensate Uganda for its losses in the raid. But council sources said the United States could not get the nine votes necessary for adoption of such a resolution.

African and other Third World nations circulated a resolution condemning Israel and demanding compensation for Uganda. The Soviet Union and China were backing it, but the United States was certain to veto it if it came to a vote.

Council sources said they knew of no effort being made to bring the two sides together. They predicted that the debate would end with the rejection of both resolutions.

Israel at the opening of the debate Friday declared that its commando action was justified because Ugandan President Idi Amin collaborated fully with the Palestinian and West German hijackers holding the hostages. But nobody was preparing a resolution to censure Amin.

A dispatch from Tel Aviv said the former Israeli military attache in Uganda, Col. Baruch Bar-Lev, reported Amin told him in a telephone conversation Friday that he has severed relations with Arab guerrilla groups because they have caused him "nothing but trouble."

Bar-Lev said Amin also told him that speaking "not as a politician but as a professional soldier, I must tell you the (commando) operation was very good. Your commandos are very good."

The British government rejected as "totally unacceptable" a statement by the Ugandan government that it knew nothing about the hostage the commandos failed to rescue, 75-year-old Dora Bloch. Israel has said Mrs. Bloch, who held dual British and Israeli citizenship, was in a Ugandan hospital at the time of the raid, and CBS News reported she was strangled by Uganda security officers. Amin claimed she rejoined the other hostages at the airport before the raid.

Informed sources in Nairobi, the Kenyan capital, said Uganda moved troop reinforcements to its border with Kenya last week and also obtained a promise of support and from Somalia, Kenya's northeastern neighbor.

Union Ends Chrysler Walkout

TRENTON, Mich. (AP) — Striking United Auto Workers members have ratified a new labor contract with Chrysler, ending a five-day walkout that curtailed production at three car assembly plants.

The strikers, members of UAW Local 373 voted by better than a 2-to-1 margin Sunday to return to work at Chysler's key engine plant at Trenton.

A UAW spokesman said the vote was 316-146 in favor of ending the strike.

Chrysler officials said the workers would be called back immediately, and the company hoped to resume normal production today.

Negotiators for the local and Chrysler reached a tentative agreement over safety and health conditions at the Trenton plant shortly after midnight Saturday.

Some 4,400 workers struck the plant Wdnesday after negotiations failed to produce an agreement over health and safety issues.

The strike had curtailed Chrysler's production at three car assembly plants by causing a shortage of V8 engines for large cars and trucks. The Trenton plant is the firm's sole supplier of 400 and 440-cubic inch engines.

Robert Smith, the local president, said the agreement calls for plantwide ventilation, a key issue in the dispute, to be brought to an acceptable level within 15 days, barring unforeseen problems.

Workers have complained of temperatures as high as 121 degrees in some areas on hot days, Smith said.

The company also is to correct health and safety hazards including holes in floors, exposed electrical wiring and oil leaks, Smith said.

A UAW international representative is schedule to tour the plant later this week to see that work has begun on the problems that the union said Chysyler promised in 1973 to correct.

Rental Car 'Squeeze' Banned

WASHINGTON (AP) — The three largest passenger car rental companies in the nation have signed consent orders prohibiting them from trying to squeeze out competitors and fix prices among themselves, the Federal Trade Commission says. The FTC said, today that Hertz Corp., Avis Rent-A-Car System, Inc., and National Car Rental System, Inc., have agreed to the consent orders. The consent order is the result of an FTC complaint filed more than a year ago, alleging that Hertz, Avis and National had conspired since at least 1968 to monopolize airport car rentals, forcing customers to pay inflated rates.

The baby was born Saturday about five hours after Cher entered Cedars-Sinai Hospital. The spokesman said the baby was named Elijah Blue Allman. Her husband, singer Greg Allman, was with her during labor and delivery, and visited with her through the day Sunday, the spokesman said.

African Nations Seeking Condemnation Of Israel

By SAMUEL KOO
Associated Press Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Security Council today begins hearing a parade of Third World countries calling for condemnation of Israel for its commando rescue of more than 100 hostages from Uganda a week ago.

Mauritius, Benin, Guinea and Guyana were to speak in the council debate in support of Uganda's charges that Israel committed "barbaric, unprovoked and naked aggression."

The United States, trying to use the debate to focus attention on the hijacking and terrorism that caused the Israeli raid, was consulting with Israel and other allies about a resolution condemning international terrorism and establishing some sort of mechanism to deal with it.

"We have not yet reached a consensus," Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger told a news conference in Washington Saturday. He said if agreement was not reached, "we will put it forth ourselves."

The Americans were reported to have drafted a general condemnation of international terrorism and a suggestion that Israel compensate Uganda for its losses in the raid. But council sources said the United States could not get the nine votes necessary for adoption of such a resolution.

African and other Third World nations circulated a resolution condemning Israel and demanding compensation for Uganda. The Soviet Union and China were backing it, but the United States was certain to veto it if it came to a vote.

Council sources said they knew of no effort being made to bring the two sides together. They predicted that the debate would end with the rejection of both resolutions.

Will Schools Be Forced To Cut Out All 'Frills'?

DETROIT (AP) — Rising educational costs and a public reluctance to approve higher taxes are causing administrators to wonder if all "frills" eventually will be cut and schools forced to teach only the basics.

Top Michigan educators say that while many taxpayers approve the renewal of existing school millages, they have been turning down requests for money for additional facilities and activities.

The resulting lack of funds often forces schools to cut programs such as varsity sports, driver education and the like.

Some fears have been expressed that educational programs eventually may be cut to the bare-bone basic reading, writing and arithmetic.

Detroit residents are being warned that schools face severe program cutbacks if a millage request fails Aug. 3.

While officials say a millage failure would not strip Detroit schools down to the basics, it will mean the elimination of a number of elective courses, a cutback in hours, a loss of teachers and an end to interschool athletic programs.

Some citizens' groups feel the "frills" of education should be removed anyway and students taught only to read, write and count.

However, others say those outside activities are enrichment programs and equally important to the development of the student.

White's Acquittal Angers Blacks

By DAVID R. NELSEN
Associated Press Writer

HENDERSON, N.C. (AP) — Blacks, angered by the acquittal of a white woman who killed a young black man, have been urged to work for change in the judicial political system.

After a jury of 11 whites and one black acquitted Sandra Dupree on Saturday, Golden Frinks, North Carolina field worker for the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, said, "We feel that the jury has made a mockery of justice in North Carolina."

Gatsy Dickens, the victim's mother, said, "We didn't get no justice at all in Henderson."

Jury foreman E. Hugh Daughtry Jr. said the jurors decided the state had failed to disprove Mrs. Dupree's contention that she shot Harry Lee Dickens, 21, in self defense.

Mrs. Dupree, the wife of a fundamentalist minister, had testified that she fired only after Dickens attacked her and her son, Mark, 14. She said she had put a gun into her purse shortly before the shooting because she feared for ARK'S SAFETY.F Bickens' sisters and a neighbor testified that rs. Dupree jumped out of the car with the gun in her hand and that Dickens had attacked neither her nor the boy when the shooting took place. They said Dickens was attempting to run into his house when he was shot in the back of the head.

There were sighs of relief and a short burst of applause when the verdict was announced after three hours of deliberation.

But outside the courthouse, there was a spontaneous protest Saturday and a "march for equal justice" Sunday.

About 150 persons marched the three miles to the courthouse from a campground set up on the outskirts of Henderson by blacks from Scotland Neck, where the shooting occurred.

The trial had been moved to Henderson because of racial tension and pretrial publicity in Halifax County.

Milton Fitch, a black attorney hired by the Dickens family to help prosecute the case, said in an interview that he believed race was a factor in the verdict.

He said that if the case had involved a black woman shooting a white man, the verdict would have been guilty.

The case had been controversial from the beginning. Blacks complained that because Mrs. Dupree is white, she was set free on low bond and received favored treatment.

Demonstrations before the trial led to the arrests of more than 50 blacks.

Now from Metropolitan a way to invest for your future

With inflation eroding the purchasing power of your dollars, you know you have to plan now to provide the income you'll need for your retirement years.

Now Metropolitan Life offers you the opportunity to do just that — the Metropolitan Investor-Annuity Program —a flexible way to invest in a diversified portfolio of common stocks managed by professionals.

Compared with directly investing in common stocks, you save time and difficult guesswork. You determine when and how much to invest in the Program. You have a wide choice of withdrawal arrangements available before and after retirement, including fixed and variable payments for life, at no additional sales charge.

For more complete information about M.I.A.P., including charges and expenses, get prospectuses by writing the address below. Read them carefully before you invest or send money.

Meg's Pal Goes Lion-Walking

PEOPLE
By Robin Adams Sloan

RODDY THE LION-HEARTED: We keep telling you that Princess Margaret's friend Roddy Llewellyn wants so very much to retire from public view and let the furor over Margaret's wrecked marriage subside. Now he shows up in a pub near his farm commune with a lion cub on a leash and gets his picture in the papers all over again. Who is kidding who?

Q: Somebody wrote that Barbra Streisand's sister was working in a Los Angeles bakery. Wouldn't you think Barbra would be nicer to her sister? — A.P., New Haven, Conn.

A: That story is a little garbled. Rosalind Kind is the major investor in The Butterfly Bakery in West Los Angeles. The bakery has become very successful and Barbra often stops by. Her favorites? Cinnamon buns with caramel topping, and fudge pudding cake. Streisand, who likes to keep things in the family, has her ex-husband, Elliott Gould, hooked on the buttermilk poundcake.

BARBRA STREISAND

Q: Now that he has put out a book of his pictures, is Ron Galella going to retire as the world's worst photographic pest? — F.G., San Francisco, Calif.

A: We agree that Galella must be a real pain in the neck to those celebrities who hate to be caught off guard, but some of the photos in his book are delightful. Jack Nicholson with his tongue out a mile, Charlton Heston's bare behind, Glenda Jackson wearing a very unlovely smirk. Maybe in the order of things there is a place for Galella after all.

RON GALELLA

Q: Do you know what prison Sara Jane Moore is in? She's the woman who tried to shoot President Ford. — R.R., Memphis, Tenn.

A: Sara Jane is at the Federal correctional institution on California's Terminal island. Prisoners, including Moore, were recently permitted to leave the prison to put on a series of dramatic sketches at the Los Angeles Music center. Her playlet was censored, however, since it was a highly melodramatic plea in favor of using weapons and force to accomplish political goals.

SARA JANE MOORE

Q: You mention that actor Nick Nolte had to take lessons for his underwater work in "The Deep," the movie based on Peter Benchley's bestseller. Well what about his co-star, Jacqueline Bisset? Does she swim? — C.Z., Spokane, Wash.

A: Jacqueline Bisset can swim but she has spent the last three and a half, months brushing up on her strokes and taking diving lessons too, which was the hardest part.

Q: Will there be another Monty Python series on public TV next season? — S.D., Boston, Mass.

A: Afraid not. It seems that the Pythons have been such a smash in their movies and on the stage that they are forsaking the medium that gave them their start. They are now talking, we swear, about doing a film on the life of Christ. Please, boys, no. And why don't you guys stop dressing up in women's clothes and get more girls in your troupe?

Q: Who syndicates the "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman" show? Is it Norman Lear's T.A.T. company or Filmways? — O.V., St. Louis, Mos.

A: When "Mary Hartman" was turned down by the networks, Lear didn't have the cash to launch a full-scale syndication effort and had to go to Filmways for help. With the show now so popular, however, Lear has bought out the Filmways interest and will try to syndicate it himself to save the 40 per cent syndication fee. The buyback must have cost Lear a pretty penny but the Filmways execs were crying all the way to the bank over losing out on a good thing.

Q: Why do they continue to crowd supermarkets with bigger magazine racks? — U.L., Ogden, Utah

A: As far as the grocer is concerned those pesky magazines outsell most of his grocery items. And for the magazine distributors, the supermarket sales represent some 85 per cent of big city sales in some markets. A media newsletter reports that grocery stores did $455,000,000 in magazine sales last year, which is nearly 25 per cent of total magazine sales countrywide.

Going Back Today In History

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Monday, July 12, the 194th day of 1976. There are 172 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in the year 100 B.C., the Roman Emperor Julius Caesar was born.

On this date:

In 1804, American statesman Alexander Hamilton died from a wound inflicted in a pistol duel with Vice President Aaron Burr.

In 1808, Joseph Bonaparte entered Madrid as King of Spain.

In 1817, the American naturalist and writer, Henry David Thoreau, was born in Concord, Massachusetts.

In 1957, a 20-year-old student at Harvard University, Prince Karim, became the Aga Khan and leader of 20 million Ismaili Moslems after the death of his grandfather.

In 1960, Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev said the U.S. Monroe Doctrine against European interference in Latin America no longer had any meaning.

In 1973, President Richard Nixon entered Bethesda Naaval Hospital for treatment of viral pneumonia.

Ten years ago: Prime Minister Indira Gandhi of India began talks in Moscow with Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin on her peace proposals for Vietnam.

Five years ago: Orangemen in Northern Ireland marched in city streets to celebrate a half century of Protestant rule.

One year ago: An American colonel kidnapped in Beirut, Ernest Morgan, was released unharmed to Lebanese Premier Rashid Karami.

Today's birthdays: Comedian Milton Berle is 68 years old. Republican Sen. Mark Hatfield of Oregon is 54.

Thought for today: Ask yourself whether you are happy, and you cease to be so. — John Stuart Mill, English philosopher and economist, 1806-1873.

Bicentennial footnote: Twohundred years ago today, a plan for a union of the 13 American Colonies, John Dickinson's Articles of Confederation and Perpetual Union, was presented to the Continental Congress in Philadelphia.

By Bert Bacharach

FADED PHRASES "They're ga-ga about each other" and "He has no git up and go."... The cast of TV's "General Hospital" were all on a fan mag cover, except for Denise Alexander. (The good reason — Denise, an expert, took the picture!)... SIGN IN Greenwich Village: "Last Coffee Houuse Before Squaresville."... Carol Kane of "Harry & Walter Go to N.Y." says she likes going with banker types — providing they're not tellers!

Connie Stevens is an all-American Girl. She is Italian, Irish, English and Mohican Indian — and her real name is Concetta Ingalia!... Best Dressed Gent of the Week: Earl Blackwell of Celebrity Service... 21-year-old Jenny Agutter of "Logan's Run" was asked if she was nervous when she got the assignment. She said: "When you're 21 the only thing you're nervous about is being 22!"... A real beaut at the Gaslight Club, NYC, is Debbie Cunningham, runner-up in the Miss America contest from Tennessee. (Stop in and Tennessee for yourself!)

SMATTERING OF SIGNS: The AQUARIAN-born is fair-minded, creative, stands by his own convictions — and goes to any lengths to avoid causing pain to others. "Gentle PISCES" is often too gentle for his own good, and is very likely to be imposed upon. ARIES is the first sign of the Zodiac, and maybe this is why these natives like to be at the top of things — always up front.

New Buffalo Parade Drawing Many Units

NEW BUFFALO — Harry Creighton, sportscaster and newscaster for WGN radio and television for over 30 years, will be grand marshal of the third annual Heritage Days parade in New Buffalo Sunday, July 18.

Creighton delivered the news and presented many play by play actions of the Chicago Cubs and Bears, golf tournaments, boxing matches and World Series games during the 1930's, 40's and 50's.

Ninety-three units have already entered the parade including the Maple City Cadets and bands from California, Minnesota, Illinois and Wisconsin. There also will be floats from New Buffalo and surrounding areas, clowns, Shrine mini bikers, horse units, vintage cars, guest celebraties, beauty queens of all ages plus many more.

Mrs. Kenneth Vollink and Mrs. William Giesler, co-chairmen of the parade, announced that units for the parade will be accepted up until 1 p.m. July 18 and placed at the end of the parade. Units wishing to be placed in the lineup are urged to call either Mrs. Vollink or Mrs. Geisler immediately.

In another festival activities it was announced that Bill Mangold, professional archaeologist, Three Oaks, will present a summation of two summers excavations Saturday, July 17. The program will be at 8 p.m. in the New Buffalo Methodist church basement. Mangold has been involved in many excavations and acts as a source of information on local archaeology for Western Michigan university and Notre Dame university.

As a Bicentennial project, he is trying to locate and record most of the prehistoric sites in the Galien river basin.

The site Mangold is currently excavating is a fishing camp above the Galien river which dates around 1200 A.D. Many artifacts including broken pottery, fish bones and other debris from camp life have been recovered. Slides will be shown on the excavations and many of the artifacts will be on display.

It was also announced that "Munching Through History" a live puppet show, will be staged at Whittaker and Merchant streets in downtown New Buffalo at 12:30 p.m. Saturday, July 17.

The professional people of the greater New Buffalo area are sponsoring the free live entertainment play that will be presented by the Pattern Players of Grand Rapids. The puppet show will be presented just before the harbor dedication ceremony. A 4 x 8 foot flag cake in red, white and blue will be on display on the stage at the corner of Whittaker and Merchant streets in downtown New Buffalo at 7 p.m. July 17, as part of the Heritage Days program. A free piece of cake will be given to each person attending. Robert Heit will be the master of ceremonies.

Michigan Delegation Key Women's Group

BY SUSAN AGER
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Michigan's 87 women delegates are wondering whether to fight on the convention floor for a proposal to guarantee them equal representation at the 1980 convention, or go with a compromise for the sake of harmony.

Since it has more women than any other state delegation, Michigan's delegates could wreak a symbolic blow to the compromise proposal, yet to be worked out with Jimmy Carter. The women could vote against it on the floor, where it is expected to come up Thursday.

Michigan women agree, however, there is little chance they could win such a battle, and that it could do them and their cause more harm than good.

"If we could really get a commitment from President Carter — that's what he's going to be — to get women into real kinds of jobs, that is more meaningful than if the delegation is 50-50," said Olivia Maynard of Flint, one of the state's four uncommitted delegates who plans to vote for Carter.

"Basically the spirit of the convention is let's compromise everything. I don't want to have anything bad happen to the Carter campaign because we took it (the representation question) to the floor," she said, reflecting the feeling of many Michigan women who, like most of the 3,008 delegates in New York this week, want to usher Carter into the White House by ruffling as few feathers as possible.

There was little else troubling the minds of Michigan delegates Sunday, when many took the afternoon and evening off to party, go to a baseball game and see the town.

Already Sunday labor delegates like state AFL-CIO President William Marshall were saying Sen. Walter Mondale was Carter's likely vice presidential choice. Michigan labor, including the United Auto Workers, are backing Mondale strongly for the job, as are many members of the state's teacher delegation.

Marshall, UAW vice president Douglas Fraser and state party chairman Morley Winograd all have mentioned Mondale or Ohio Sen. John Glenn as choices they would favor. Both men were among seven Carter spoke with about the vice presidency in the past week.

UAW President Leonard Woodcock has also endorsed Mondale, though Woodcock is not a delegate like the others.

Carter was to meet Monday morning with a group of six women delegates from around the country to finalize a compromise rules committee report on women's representation that would likely leave the onus on the states to guarantee a 50-50 split in the 1980 delegation.

Kathleen Asher of Vassar predicted the question would raise no ruckus, since Michigan's delegation, by state party rules, already is required to have an equal split between the sexes.

But Oak Park housewife Deborah Goldberg, a Carter delegate, said she would vote against any compromise proposal, even if she were the only Michigan delegate to do so.

"It's too important an issue," said Mrs. Goldberg, who said she has volunteered hundreds of hours to Democratic campaigns in the past few years.

She said her experience this year with Carter campaign officials in Michigan, including top aide David Olmstead, showed "They consider men to be people and women still just women."

If they had had their way, she said, the 69-member Carter caucus would have been 20 per cent female instead of 50 per cent, as state party rules require.

Hotel Bellhops Fuming Over 'No Tip' Michigan Delegates

NEW YORK (AP) — Bellhops at the New York Hilton are hopping mad at Democratic National Convention delegates from Michigan who aren't tipping because someone on their bus from the airport told them they didn't have to. "I'm surprised at the people of Michigan because it's a labor state," said Leroy Green. He said Sunday he received no tips from any Michigan delegates either Saturday or Sunday when most arrived. "They expect everyone to vote Democratic then they come in non-tippin'," said Green. He was one of a dozen or so Hilton bellhops who pouted Sunday and said they had confronted delegates about having to carry their bags gratis.

It wouldn't be so bad, they agreed, except that Michigan delegates claimed they were instructed on the shuttlebus from LaGuardia Airport by a woman whose name they did not know, not to tip because tips would be included in the hotel tab. "Nobody told us," grumbled one bellhop. "I wish I could get hold of that lady," snarled another as he left a delegate's room.

Most Michigan delegates flew into New York on charter flights arranged by Book Cousens Travel Service of Southfield, and some said they thought the brief bus instructions on tipping had something to do with that. But the bellhops said only tour members are not expected to tip, and that Michigan delegates registered as individuals, not a tour group. One bellhop acknowledged that hefty tips from California delegates, also staying at the Hilton, made up for Michigan's.

Fitzgerald Running Hospitality Service

By SUSAN AGER
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Michigan Senate Majority Leader William B. (Bill) Fitzgerald, whom some say is eyeing the Democratic nomination for governor in 1978, is running a baby-sitting service, publishing a newsletter and offering guided tours of the city to Michigan's 133 delegates.

Fitzgerald, who is not a delegate, said Sunday the free services "leave a good taste in peoples' mouths, that Fitz' people were courteous and pleasant."

The Detroit lawmaker also published 300 copies of "A Delegate's Guide to New York" with $300 out of his own pocket, even though his first day in the Big Apple was Sunday.

Two New York friends helped him put together the 24-page guide, which cost a dollar each to print in part because of Fitzgerald's large profile photograph on the cover.

Other friends are staffing the baby-sitting service and helping publish the daily newsletter, he said, while "four natives," also his friends, will lead the tours.

South Haven Baby Dies As Result Of June Fire

BY TOM RENNER
South Haven Correspondent

SOUTH HAVEN — A nine-month-old baby burned seriously in a fire at her South Haven home on June 25 died from the burns Saturday at the Bronson hospital burn unit, Kalamazoo.

Rosetta May Whitfield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tyrone Whitfield, 1002 Center street, South Haven had received second and third degree burns over 80 per cent of her body in the fire that extensively damaged the home owned by the South Haven public housing commission.

Firemen said the blaze apparently started when a pilot light in a gas water heater ignited gasoline that had spilled onto the floor of the utility room where the baby was playing.

Mrs. Whitfield told firemen she stepped in the backyard for a moment as the child was sitting on the utility room floor. She returned and saw the baby sitting in a puddle of gasoline which ignited as she picked the child up. Mrs. Whitfield's screams brought neighbors to the house who extinguished the flames on the baby and rushed her to South Haven Community hospital.

Mrs. Whitfield was treated at the South Haven hospital for burns to her arms and hands.

Rosetta Mae was born Sept. 20, 1975 in Holland, Mich. Surviving besides the parents are the maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charley McPeak, South Haven and the paternal grandmother, Mrs. Cora Mae Whitfield, Crystal Springs, Miss.

Funeral services were held at 2 p.m. today in the Frost funeral home, South Haven. Burial was in Lakeview cemetery.

BUCHANAN CITY HALL DAMAGED: Corner porch roof pillar at Buchanan city hall was knocked to ground Saturday afternoon when car containing two youngsters hit it. According to Buchanan police one of youngsters put car into gear from park position while mother was out of car to mail letter at curbside mailbox. Motor was left running. Box is about 30 yards from city hall. No one was injured. Police identified motorist as Mrs. Carol Batterson, 2060 North Red Bud Trail, Buchanan. Youngsters were identified as Christina, 3, and Tonya Batterson, 2. (Staff photo)

South Haven Holding Kindergarten Signup

Mangold has been involved in many excavations and acts as a source of information on local archaeology for Western Michigan university and Notre Dame university.

As a Bicentennial project, he is trying to locate and record most of the prehistoric sites in the Galien river basin.

The site Mangold is currently excavating is a fishing camp above the Galien river which dates around 1200 A.D. Many artifacts including broken pottery, fish bones and other debris from camp life have been recovered. Slides will be shown on the excavations and many of the artifacts will be on display.

It was also announced that "Munching Through History" a live puppet show, will be staged at Whittaker and Merchant streets in downtown New Buffalo at 12:30 p.m. Saturday, July 17.

The professional people of the greater New Buffalo area are sponsoring the free live entertainment play that will be presented by the Pattern Players of Grand Rapids. The puppet show will be presented just before the harbor dedication ceremony. A 4 x 8 foot flag cake in red, white and blue will be on display on the stage at the corner of Whittaker and Merchant streets in downtown New Buffalo at 7 p.m. July 17, as part of the Heritage Days program. A free piece of cake will be given to each person attending. Robert Heit will be the master of ceremonies.

Michigan Delegation Key Women's Group

ssociated Press Writer

W YORK (AP) — gan's 67 women delegates ondering whether to fight e convention floor for a sal to guarantee them representation at the 1980 ntion, or go with a romise for the sake of ony.

e it has more women than any other state delegation, Michigan's delegates could wreak a symbolic blow to the compromise proposal, yet to be worked out with Jimmy Carter. The women could vote against it on the floor, where it is expected to come up Thursday.

Michigan women agree, however, there is little chance they could win such a battle, and that it could do them and their cause more harm than good.

"If we could really get a commitment from President Carter — that's what he's going to be — to get women into real kinds of jobs, that is more meaningful than if the delegation is 50-50," said Olivia Maynard of Flint, one of the state's four uncommitteed delegates who plans to vote for Carter.

"Basically the spirit of the convention is let's compromise everything. I don't want to have anything bad happen to the Carter campaign because we took it (the representation question) to the floor," she said, reflecting the feeling of many Michigan women who, like most of the 3,008 delegates in New York this week, want to usher Carter into the White House by ruffling as few feathers as possible.

There was little else troubling the minds of Michigan delegates Sunday, when many took the afternoon and evening off to party, go to a baseball game and see the town.

Already Sunday labor delegates like state AFL-CIO President William Marshall were saying Sen. Walter Mondale was Carter's likely vice presidential choice. Michigan labor, including the United Auto Workers, are backing Mondale strongly for the job, as are many members of the state's teacher delegation.

Marshall, UAW vice president Douglas Fraser and state party chairman Morley Winograd all have mentioned Mondale or Ohio Sen. John Glenn as choices they would favor. Both men were among seven Carter spoke with about the vice presidency in the past week.

UAW President Leonard Woodcock has also endorsed Mondale, though Woodcock is not a delegate like the others.

Carter was to meet Monday morning with a group of six women delegates from around the country to finalize a compromise rules committee report on women's representation that would likely leave the onus on the states to guarantee a 50-50 split in the 1980 delegation.

Kathleen Asher of Vassar predicted the question would raise no ruckus, since Michigan's delegation, by state party rules, already is required to have an equal split between the sexes.

But Oak Park housewife Deborah Goldberg, a Carter delegate, said she would vote against any compromise proposal, even if she were the only Michigan delegate to do so.

"It's too important an issue," said Mrs. Goldberg, who said she has volunteered hundreds of hours to Democratic campaigns in the past few years.

She said her experience this year with Carter campaign officials in Michigan, including top aide David Olmstead, showed "They consider men to be people and women still just women."

If they had had their way, she said, the 69-member Carter caucus would have been 20 per cent female instead of 50 per cent, as state party rules require.

Hotel Bellhops Fuming Over 'No Tip' Michigan Delegates

NEW YORK (AP) — Bellhops at the New York Hilton are hopping mad at Democratic National Convention delegates from Michigan who aren't tipping because someone on their bus from the airport told them they didn't have to. "I'm surprised at the people of Michigan because it's a labor state," said Leroy Green. He said Sunday he received no tips from any Michigan delegates either Saturday or Sunday when most arrived. "They expect everyone to vote Democratic then they come in non-tippin'," said Green. He was one of a dozen or so Hilton bellhops who pouted Sunday and said they had confronted delegates about having to carry their bags gratis.

It wouldn't be so bad, they agreed, except that Michigan delegates claimed they were nstructed on the shuttlebus from LaGuardia Airport by a woman whose name they did not know, not to tip because tips would be included in the hotel tab. "Nobody told us," grumbled one bellhop. "I wish I could get hold of that lady," snarled another as he left a delegate's room.

Most Michigan delegates flew into New York on charter flights arranged by Book Couzens Travel Service of Southfield, and some said they thought the brief bus instructions on tipping had something to do with that. But the bellhops said only tour members are not expected to tip, and that Michigan delegates registered as individuals, not a tour group. One bellhop acknowledged that hefty tips from California delegates, also staying at the Hilton, made up for Michigan's.

South Haven Baby Dies As Result Of June Fire

BY TOM RENNER
South Haven Correspondent

SOUTH HAVEN — A nine-month-old baby burned seriously in a fire at her South Haven home on June 25 died from the burns Saturday at the Bronson hospital burn unit, Kalamazoo.

Rosetta May Whitfield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tyrone Whitfield, 1002 Center street, South Haven had received second and third degree burns over 80 per cent of her body in the fire that extensively damaged the home owned by the South Haven public housing commission.

Firemen said the blaze apparently started when a pilot light in a gas water heater ignited gasoline that had spilled onto the floor of the utility room where the baby was playing.

Mrs. Whitfield told firemen she stepped in the backyard for a moment as the child was sitting on the utility room floor. She returned and saw the baby sitting in a puddle of gasoline which ignited as she picked the child up. Mrs. Whitfield's screams brought neighbors to the house who extinguished the flames on the baby and rushed her to South Haven Community hospital.

Mrs. Whitfield was treated at the South Haven hospital for burns to her arms and hands.

Funeral arrangements are being handled by the Frost funral home, South Haven.

The death was the first from a fire in the city since Dec. 23, 1950, when a man perished in a fire at 720 Lee street.

Rosetta Mae was born Sept. 20, 1975 in Holland, Mich. Surviving besides the parents are the maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charley McPeak, South Haven and the paternal grandmother, Mrs. Cora Mae Whitfield, Crystal Springs, Miss.

Funeral services were held at 2 p.m. today in the Frost funeral home, South Haven. Burial was in Lakeview cemetery.

CW YORK (AP) — igan Senate Majority er William B. (Bill) gerald, whom some say is g the Democratic nomina- for governor in 1978, is ing a baby-sitting service, shing a newsletter and of- g guided tours of the city to igan's 133 delegates.

zgerald, who is not a gate, said Sunday the free ces "leave a good taste in les' mouths, that Fitz' le were courteous and ant."

e Detroit lawmaker also published 300 copies of "A Delegate's Guide to New York" with $300 out of his own pocket, even though his first day in the Big Apple was Sunday.

Two New York friends helped him put together the 24-page guide, which cost a dollar each to print in part because of Fitzgerald's large profile photograph on the cover.

Other friends are staffing the baby-sitting service and helping publish the daily newsletter, he said, while "four natives," also his friends, will lead the tours.

Fitzgerald's counterpart in the State House, Speaker Bobby Crim, is not expected to spend more than a day, if that, at the convention.

Crim is also being nominated as a possible Democratic nominee to oppose Gov. William Milliken in 1978

Power Company Office Bombed

ROSEVILLE, Calif. (AP) — Police say an "explosive device" went off behind a Pacific Gas & Electric Co. office here, but damage was rated as light. No one was hurt. The blast late Sunday night occurred a week after the terrorist New World Liberation Front issued a warning that three bombs were timed to explode by last Saturday at two PG&E sites in the San Francisco Bay Area. Roseville is about 85 miles northeast of San Francisco and not considered in the Bay Area.

Methodists Will Get New Bishop

SIOUX FALLS, S.D. (AP) — A new bishop for United Methodists in Michigan will be assigned here this week as delegates from nine midwestern states gather for a three-day regional conference.

Bishop Dwight Loder, limited by church law to 12 years in one area, will be assigned to another midwestern state, church officials said.

Loder presides over the Detroit and West Michigan conferences of the 300,000-member United Methodists of Michigan.

Nine men, including one from Michigan, have been nominated to the post.

Russian Missiles Cheaper

NEW YORK (AP) — King Hussein of Jordan claims Russia offered his nation a missile defense system at 60 per cent the price of the U.S. Hawk system and that the Hawk deal is dead unless the Americans make a better proposal. "I can't see any change unless a better offer from the U.S. is forthcoming," Hussein said in an interview in Newsweek magazine Sunday. The king said he returned from a recent trip to Moscow "with a very attractive offer which would give us a compatible yet more flexible air defense system than the Hawk."

Power Company Office Bombed

ROSEVILLE, Calif. (AP) — Police say an "explosive device" went off behind a Pacific Gas & Electric Co. office here, but damage was rated as light. No one was hurt. The blast late Sunday night occurred a week after the terrorist New World Liberation Front issued a warning that three bombs were timed to explode by last Saturday at two PG&E sites in the San Francisco Bay Area. Roseville is about 95 miles northeast of San Francisco and not considered in the Bay Area.

Methodists Will Get New Bishop

SIOUX FALLS, S.D. (AP) — A new bishop for United Methodists in Michigan will be assigned here this week as delegates from nine midwestern states gather for a three-day regional conference.

Bishop Dwight Loder, limited by church law to 12 years in one area, will be assigned to another midwestern state, church officials said.

Loder presides over the Detroit and West Michigan conferences of the 300,000-member United Methodists of Michigan.

Nine men, including one from Michigan, have been nominated to the post.

Russian Missiles Cheaper

NEW YORK (AP) — King Hussein of Jordan claims Russia offered his nation a missile defense system at 60 per cent the price of the U.S. Hawk system and that the Hawk deal is dead unless the Americans make a better proposal. "I can't see any change unles a better offer from the U.S. is forthcoming," Hussein said in an interview in Newsweek magazine Sunday. The king said he returned from a recent trip to Moscow "with a very attractive offer which would give us a compatible yet more flexible air defense system than the Hawk."

NEWS OF MARKETS

Market Sweeps Ahead

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market swept ahead again today amid continuing optimism over the outlook for Federal Reserve credit policy.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks picked up more than 2 points in the early going to around the 1,005 level.

Gainers opened up a 5-2 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Trading was active, with the consolidated ticker tape reporting trades in NYSE stocks running four minutes late shortly after the opening.

Brokers noted encouragement over the Fed's move last week to relax its monetary policy a bit. And there was talk that the central bank might ease up a little more before long.

Today's early prices included NLT, up ⅛ at 21; Eastman Kodak, ahead 1 at 101⅞; Chrysler, up ¼ at 19¼, and MGIC Investment, ½ higher at 14.

On Friday the Dow Jones industrial average climbed 11.13 points to 1,003.11.

Gainers outnumbered losers by better than a 2-1 margin among NYSE-listed issues, and the exchange's composite index rose .99 to a new recovery high of 56.06.

Big Board volume came to 23.50 million shares.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .68 at 106.57.

Timberland Sale Is Announced

NEENAH, Wis. (AP) — The Kimberly-Clark Corp. announced that it has agreed to sell 388,000 acres of land in Wisconsin and Upper Michigan to the Champion International paper company of Stamford, Conn.

A spokesman said the land represented the majority of Kimberly-Clark's holdings in both areas.

Kimberly-Clark owns or controls about 13 million acres of land in the United States and Canada.

A spokesman for Kimberly Clark said Champion has agreed to purchase the timberland for $100 per acre. He said the sale did not include Kimberly-Clark's holdings in Minnesota or the firms's sawmills.

Involved are about 374,000 acres in the Upper Peninsula and 14,000 acres in northern Wisconsin.

The land had been offered for sale this spring when KimberlyClark announced that its coated-paper mill at Kimberly was for sale.

The forests had provided the bulk of the pulp for the mill, which was sold last week to the newly formed Midtec Paper Corp. of Kimberly.

CARTER AND THE UNEMPLOYED WORKER

If Democratic nominee Jimmy Carter were to become U.S. President Carter and if his stated positions on key economic issues were to become reality, what would it mean to you — an unemployed adult or teenager? An investor in stocks? A family frightened, almost above all else, of a resurgence of inflation? A taxpayer in any bracket? Any American consumer in today's jungle of a marketplace?

The following three points demand your attention: Carter has not been as fuzzy about the economic issues as you may think; he is far more conservative (as well as imaginative) in most of his financial views than he has been given credit for; he is a pragmatist who will concentrate on accomplishing the merely possible rather than on attempting the clearly politically impossible.

Since Carter has made it unmistakably clear that reducing unemployment would be the major priority of his administration, and since this in itself would signify a vital change in priorities at the White House, this week's series starts with the unemployed, repudiates the Nixon-Ford administrations' conviction that a high rate of joblessness is essential to combat the price spiral — a theory that places the jobless in the first line of defense against inflation.

Instead, Carter's philosophy is that a high rate of employment would create the paychecks that would generate the extra tax payments that would help the Treasury balance the federal budget — and this balance would be THE fundamental weapon against revived inflation.

This is a crucial distinction! Don't downgrade it!

Thus, Carter's long-range goal (over four years) would be a cut in today's overall rate of unemployment from 7.5 per cent to 4 or 4.5 per cent and in the adult jobless rate to 3 per cent.

— As an unemployed adult, your chances of getting a job you want in private industry or services would be improved, for Carter underlines his "commitment to the free enterprise system" and promises he would rely on the private sector until forced to turn to the public sector for jobs.

He sees "millions of jobs crying out to be filled" in new industries such as solar heating — not for scientists, but for carpenters, pipe fitters, plumbers, tinsmiths, plastic workers, electricians, truckers, etc. He sees more millions of jobs in repair of railroads and rapid transit systems; pollution control for cities; preventive health care on a nationwide basis; care for retarded children, alcoholics and drug addicts; better housing, individualized and remedial instruction in our schools, and on and on.

He insists that the costs of such employment programs would not exceed by much, if any, what's being spent now.

— If you still couldn't get a job in private enterprise and if, say, you were on welfare, then and then only would Carter turn to government-created jobs for you. If you were on welfare and without defects to keep you from working, he would train you, give you literacy education, and through private and public job agencies, he would try to match you with a job. If you didn't accept it, he would have you kicked off the welfare rolls.

— If you lived in an area of high unemployment, and your company had to lay off 100 of its 1,000 employes, Carter would have the company employ all of you for a shorter work week for a specified period of time, with the government and the industry sharing the costs. This definitely would be something new for our country.

—If you were an unemployed teenager, Carter would ask for a program under which federally created jobs would become available to you — "similar to the CCC and WPA of the depression years." He is particularly worried about the 40 per cent jobless rate among black young Americans in many areas.

And Carter would not favor a lower minimum wage for younger jobless Americans. Many of you, he says, are not part of a family structure, and since you must face the world as an adult faces it, you should be entitled to the same minimum pay.

In essence, all of Carter's job-creating programs and his outspoken faith in the private sector are much more conservative than you may have thought. This reflects the general conservatism of the economists who are his closest advisers at this stage.

Housing 'Boom' Dormant

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Waiting for the housing boom is like waiting in the rain for a much-publicized Bicentennial fireworks display that was postponed without notification.

Much heralded, the housing boom is also much absent. Lower interest rates, rising incomes, structural innovations, more plentiful money and sheer need for shelter were supposed to fuse the boom. It didn't happen.

High prices, bigger down payments, stricter financing terms, widespread insecurity and lowered buying power all helped wet the fuse. The market sputtered, but it never erupted. There were no fireworks.

Don't give up. Promises have been issued so frequently that even the optimists are jaded; but here comes another, from Citibank, which maintains that we are right now "counting down for a new housing take off."

Citibank offers at least three reasons to back its forecast, with the final one seeming to be the decisive one.

1. Though official figures are not available, it is likely that there are now about five million more families than there were in 1970.

"With half of these by definition above the median family income, the effective size of the market has risen by 2.5 million since 1970." That is, potential demand has been greatly increased in the past five years.

2. It has increased because of another factor also: Single individuals are becoming homebuyers.

"Individuals are a growing proportion of total households, and though they tend to buy attached or multifamily units, often condominiums, as opposed to single-family detached units, they have tended to expand the housing market more than is suggested by the increase in families alone."

3. The multifamily category of the market seems to be strengthening.

"A move from a 200,000-unit rate in February 1976 to almost a 270,000-unit rate in May probably signals a recovery. And that trend should surge to higher levels as builders reluctantly shed their fears and reenter the market that's waiting for them."

The longer it takes for multifamily production to return to strength, says Citibank, which surprisingly doesn't fear to use superlatives after so many of them failed before, "the stronger will be the boom when it comes."

It foresees multifamily production moving back toward levels reached earlier in the 1970s, "though it may not top the 917,000 starts of 1972 for many years."

But, it continues, "a doubling or more of current production may now come sooner than beleaguered analysts expect," and "when it does, the housing sector will boom — and the pessimists can switch to worrying about how long it can last."

There you have it, a forecast of a housing boom. It may sound like the echo of forecasts past, but Citibank doesn't think so. To it, a boom is the sound of the future.

Woodcock Eyes Job With Carter

DETROIT (AP) — United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock says if Jimmy Carter is elected president he would like to serve in the new administration.

Political observers have speculated that Woodcock may be considered for the post of labor secretary on Carter's cabinet.

Woodcock also said Saturday he hopes Carter will choose Sen. Walter Mondale of Minnesota as vice president on the Democratic ticket.

Woodcock, the first national labor leader to support Carter for president, said he told the former Georgia governor that Mondale was "very high on my personal list."

He indicated his second choice would be Sen. John Glenn of Ohio. Carter has considered both senators as a running mate.

Message Must Cut To Make A Point

By SAM SHULSKY

Q. I have read your column regularly since it began appearing in our paper about a year ago. May I offer some criticism? I mean to be constructive. At times your column seems petulant and must hurt the feelings of those who write you. Couldn't you have omitted the last four words in a recent column (. . . "and acting your age.")? On the other hand, your answer to the second question (posed by a woman worrying unnecessarily about E bond maturities) was friendly and sympathetic. Shouldn't you let imprudent investors down easy?

A. O.K., O.K. Touche and mea culpa. So I sound off once in a while. I don't ever set out to hurt the feelings of anyone — and certainly not a reader. But I've often found that to get some points across the message must be sharpened a bit. As you pointed out, there's no point in cracking down on someone who doesn't understand the complexities of Savings Bonds (and interest rates and maturities of these widely held U.S. bonds ARE complicated).

On the other hand, I have constantly preached here that a person of 72 should not take the chances which fall within the financial scope of a 27-year-old. Similarly, I have carried on countless arguments with retired folks desperately in need of income who keep on insisting that a stock which rose from $20 to $40 over the last three decades and now pays $2 in dividends is paying them "10 per cent on their money" and therefore should not be sold in order to reinvest for higher income.

And again, how many times should one have to tell a young man in a 40 per cent tax bracket that he doesn't want high yield bonds to insure his financial future; or that his grandfather should shift his funds from growth stocks — which haven't grown — to bonds which will give him something to live on?

I notice your connection with a university. Can you testify that in your long career you have never lost patience with students who steadfastly turned a deaf ear to what you tried to teach them, or who insist you told them that Columbus flew a kite in an electrical storm and that Ben Franklin was instrumental in setting up the Reconstruction Finance Corporation?

Let's face it — teachers, columnists, doctors try to get a message across. Sometimes they must temper instruction with sympathy and understanding; sometimes people must be jolted out of their harmful procedures. But never ridiculed — I hope.

TESTIMONY FOR THE DEFENSE: "We've enjoyed your column in our local paper for many years. Your patience with the bulk of your correspondents is amazing. You must be a king and gentle man." Aha?

MR. SHULSLY welcomes written questions, but he will be able to provide answers only through the column.

ITT Plant Picketed

PETOSKEY, Mich. (AP) — Emmet County deputies and State Police escorted newly hired employes past picket lines at a strike-bound ITT plant in Petoskey today.

Police reported scattered incidents of violence while the workers were being escorted into the plant. Officers said one picket was taken into custody.

The plant has been the center of a labor dispute since March 10 when a contact between United Auto Workers Local 1833 and the firm expired.

The union said the dispute centers around wages and a closed shop issue. The firm employs some 180 people, 45 of whom are non-union personnel.

Last week, the firm began hiring new workers in order to continue plant operations.

NEWS OF MARKETS

Market Sweeps Ahead

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market swept ahead again today amid continuing optimism over the outlook for Federal Reserve credit policy.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks picked up more than 2 points in the early going to around the 1,005 level.

Gainers opened up a 5-2 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Trading was active, with the consolidated ticker tape reporting trades in NYSE stocks running four minutes late shortly after the opening.

Brokers noted encouragement over the Fed's move last week to relax its monetary policy a bit. And there was talk that the central bank might ease up a little more before long.

Today's early prices included NLT, up 1/8 at 21; Eastman Kodak, ahead 1 at 101 7/8; Chrysler, up 1/4 at 19 1/4, and MGIC Investment, 1/2 higher at 14.

On Friday the Dow Jones industrial average climbed 11.13 points to 1,003.11.

Gainers outnumbered losers by better than a 2-1 margin among NYSE-listed issues, and the exchange's composite index rose .49 to a new recovery high of 56.06.

Big Board volume came to 23.50 million shares.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .68 at 106.57.

Timberland Sale Is Announced

NEENAH, Wis. (AP) — The Kimberly-Clark Corp. announced that it has agreed to sell 388,000 acres of land in Wisconsin and Upper Michigan to the Champion International paper company of Stamford, Conn.

A spokesman said the land represented the majority of Kimberly-Clark's holdings in both areas.

Kimberly-Clark owns or controls about 13 million acres of land in the United States and Canada.

A spokesman for Kimberly Clark said Champion has agreed to purchase the timberland for $100 per acre. He said the sale did not include Kimberly-Clark's holdings in Minnesota or the firms's sawmills.

Involved are about 374,000 acres in the Upper Peninsula and 14,000 acres in northern Wisconsin.

The land had been offered for sale this spring when KimberlyClark announced that its coated-paper mill at Kimberly was for sale.

The forests had provided the bulk of the pulp for the mill, which was sold last week to the newly formed Midtec Paper Corp. of Kimberly.

CARTER AND THE UNEMPLOYED WORKER

If Democratic nominee Jimmy Carter were to become U.S. President Carter and if his stated positions on key economic issues were to become reality, what would it mean to you — an unemployed adult or teenager? An investor in stocks? A family frightened, almost above all else, of a resurgence of inflation? A taxpayer in any bracket? Any American consumer in today's jungle of a marketplace?

The following three points demand your attention: Carter has not been as fuzzy about the economic issues as you may think; he is far more conservative (as well as imaginative) in most of his financial views than he has been given credit for; he is a pragmatist who will concentrate on accomplishing the merely possible rather than on attempting the clearly politically impossible.

Since Carter has made it unmistakably clear that reducing unemployment would be the major priority of his administration, and since this in itself would signify a vital change in priorities at the White House, this week's series starts with the unemployed. repudiates the Nixon-Ford administrations' conviction that a high rate of joblessness is essential to combat the price spiral — a theory that places the jobless in the first line of defense against inflation.

Instead, Carter's philosophy is that a high rate of employment would create the paychecks that would generate the extra tax payments that would help the Treasury balance the federal budget — and this balance would be THE fundamental weapon against revived inflation.

This is a crucial distinction! Don't downgrade it!

Thus, Carter's long-range goal (over four years) would be a cut in today's overall rate of unemployment from 7.5 per cent to 4 or 4.5 per cent and in the adult jobless rate to 3 per cent.

— As an unemployed adult, your chances of getting a job you want in private industry or services would be improved, for Carter underlines his "commitment to the free enterprise system" and promises he would rely on the private sector until forced to turn to the public sector for jobs.

He sees "millions of jobs crying out to be filled" in new industries such as solar heating — not for scientists, but for carpenters, pipe fitters, plumbers, tinsmiths, plastic workers, electricians, truckers, etc. He sees more millions of jobs in repair of railroads and rapid transit systems; pollution control for cities; preventive health care on a nationwide basis; care for retarded children, alcoholics and drug addicts; better housing, individualized and remedial instruction in our schools, and on and on.

He insists that the costs of such employment programs would not exceed by much, if any, what's being spent now.

— If you still couldn't get a job in private enterprise and if, say, you were on welfare, then and then only would Carter turn to government-created jobs for you. If you were on welfare and without defects to keep you from working, he would train you, give you literacy education, and through private and public job agencies, he would try to match you with a job. If you didn't accept it, he would have you kicked off the welfare rolls.

— If you lived in an area of high unemployment, and your company had to lay off 100 of its 1,000 employes, Carter would have the company employ all of you for a shorter work week for a specified period of time, with the government and the industry sharing the costs. This definitely would be something new for our country.

—If you were an unemployed teenager, Carter would ask for a program under which federally created jobs would become available to you — "similar to the CCC and WPA of the depression years." He is particularly worried about the 40 per cent jobless rate among black young Americans in many areas.

And Carter would not favor a lower minimum wage for younger jobless Americans. Many of you, he says, are not part of a family structure, and since you must face the world as an adult faces it, you should be entitled to the same minimum pay.

In essence, all of Carter's job-creating programs and his outspoken faith in the private sector are much more conservative than you may have thought. This reflects the general conservatism of the economists who are his closest advisers at this stage.

Housing 'Boom' Dormant

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Waiting for the housing boom is like waiting in the rain for a much-publicized Bicentennial fireworks display that was postponed without notification.

Much heralded, the housing boom is also much absent. Lower interest rates, rising incomes, structural innovations, more plentiful money and sheer need for shelter were supposed to fuse the boom. It didn't happen.

High prices, bigger down payments, stricter financing terms, widespread insecurity and lowered buying power all helped wet the fuse. The market sputtered, but it never erupted. There were no fireworks.

Don't give up. Promises have been issued so frequently that even the optimists are jaded, but here comes another, from Citibank, which maintains that we are right now "counting down for a new housing take off."

Citibank offers at least three reasons to back its forecast, with the final one seeming to be the decisive one.

1. Though official figures are not available, it is likely that there are now about five million more families than there were in 1970.

"With half of these by definition above the median family income, the effective size of the market has risen by 2.5 million since 1970." That is, potential demand has been greatly increased in the past five years.

2. It has increased because of another factor also: Single individuals are becoming homebuyers.

"Individuals are a growing proportion of total households, and though they tend to buy attached or multifamily units, often condominiums, as opposed to single-family detached units, they have tended to expand the housing market more than is suggested by the increase in families alone."

3. The multifamily category of the market seems to be strengthening.

"A move from a 200,000-unit rate in February 1976 to almost a 270,000-unit rate in May probably signals a recovery. And that trend should surge to higher levels as builders reluctantly shed their fears and reenter the market that's waiting for them."

The longer it takes for multifamily production to return to strength, says Citibank, which surprisingly doesn't fear to use superlatives after so many of them failed before, "the stronger will be the boom when it comes."

It foresees multifamily production moving back toward levels reached earlier in the 1970s, "though it may not top the 917,000 starts of 1972 for many years."

But, it continues, "a doubling or more of current production may now come sooner than beleaguered analysts expect," and "when it does, the housing sector will boom — and the pessimists can switch to worrying about how long it can last."

There you have it, a forecast of a housing boom. It may sound like the echo of forecasts past, but Citibank doesn't think so. To it, a boom is the sound of the future.

Woodcock Eyes Job With Carter

DETROIT (AP) — United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock says if Jimmy Carter is elected president he would like to serve in the new administration.

Political observers have speculated that Woodcock may be considered for the post of labor secretary on Carter's cabinet.

Woodcock also said Saturday he hopes Carter will choose Sen. Walter Mondale of Minnesota as vice president on the Democratic ticket.

Woodcock, the first national labor leader to support Carter for president, said he told the former Georgia governor that Mondale was "very high on my personal list."

He indicated his second choice would be Sen. John Glenn of Ohio. Carter has considered both senators as a running mate.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Message Must Cut To Make A Point

By SAM SHULSKY

Q. I have read your column regularly since it began appearing in our paper about a year ago. May I offer some criticism? I mean to be constructive. At times your column seems petulant and must hurt the feelings of those who write you. Couldn't you have omitted the last four words in a recent column (. . . "and acting your age.")? On the other hand, your answer to the second question (posed by a woman worrying unnecesarily about E bond maturities) was friendly and sympathetic. Shouldn't you let imprudent investors down easy?

A. O.K., O.K. Touche and mea culpa. So I sound off once in a while. I don't ever set out to hurt the feelings of anyone — and certainly not a reader. But I've often found that to get some points across the message must be sharpened a bit. As you pointed out, there's no point in cracking down on someone who doesn't understand the complexities of Savings Bonds (and interest rates and maturities of these widely held U.S. bonds ARE complicated).

On the other hand, I have constantly preached here that a person of 72 should not take the chances which fall within the financial scope of a 27-year-old. Similarly, I have carried on countless arguments with retired folks desperately in need of income who keep on insisting that a stock which rose from $20 to $40 over the last three decades and now pays $2 in dividends is paying them "10 per cent on their money" and therefore should not be sold in order to reinvest for higher income.

And again, how many times should one have to tell a young man in a 40 per cent tax bracket that he doesn't want high yield bonds to insure his financial future; or that his grandfather should shift his funds from growth stocks — which haven't grown — to bonds which will give him something to live on?

I notice your connection with a university. Can you testify that in your long career you have never lost patience with students who steadfastly turned a deaf ear to what you tried to teach them, or who insist you told them that Columbus flew a kite in an electrical storm and that Ben Franklin was instrumental in setting up the Reconstruction Finance Corporation?

Let's face it — teachers, columnists, doctors try to get a message across. Sometimes they must temper instruction with sympathy and understanding; sometimes people must be jolted out of their harmful procedures. But never ridiculed — I hope.

TESTIMONY FOR THE DEFENSE: "We've enjoyed your column in our local paper for many years. Your patience with the bulk of your correspondents is amazing. You must be a king and gentle man." A-ha?

ITT Plant Picketed

PETOSKEY, Mich. (AP) — Emmet County deputies and State Police escorted newly hired employes past picket lines at a strike-bound ITT plant in Petoskey today.

Police reported scattered incidents of violence while the workers were being escorted into the plant. Officers said one picket was taken into custody.

The plant has been the center of a labor dispute since March 10 when a contact between United Auto Workers Local 1833 and the firm expired.

The union said the dispute centers around wages and a closed shop issue. The firm employs some 180 people, 45 of whom are non-union personnel.

Last week, the firm began hiring new workers in order to continue plant operations.

Airport Hearing Set For Aug. 4 At South Haven

BY TOM RENNER
South Haven Correspondent

SOUTH HAVEN — The Michigan Aeronautics commission will conduct a public hearing Aug. 5 at 7:30 p.m. at the South Haven city hall to review a consultant's assessment of the environmental impact from a proposed expansion of the South Haven municipal airport. The report was prepared by the city's aviation consultants, R. Dixon Speas Associates of Minneapolis. It is available for inspection at the city manager's office.

The city is considering upgrading the airport to be able to accommodate business-type jets by 1995. Proposed is the construction of a new 5,300-foot long, 150 foot wide northeast-southwest runway and a 3,000-foot long, 75 foot wide northwest-southeast runway. The existing 3,400-foot long runway would serve as a taxiway for the northeast-southwest runway.

The airport is located on CR-380 east of M-140. It is owned by the city of South Haven, but surrounded by South Haven township.

The expansion would require the acquisition of approximately 268 acres of additional land. The present airport comprises 152 acres. The proposed acquisitions would include 157 acres purchased outright and 111 acres that would be controlled by easements.

The proposed runway configuration and land acquisition would necessitate the displacement of two residences. Most of the property in the area is farmland.

The consultants have estimated that home-based aircraft will increase from its current 25 to as many as 70 in 1995. Aircraft operations (takeoffs and landings) are projected to increase from its current annual average of 18,300 to as many as 52,400 by 1995.

The only potential negative environmental impact from the expansion would be from the noise of jet aircraft, according to the consultants.

However, the consultants believe the noise will not be excessive to a point where residents in the flight path would have to be re-located. It is estimated that by 1995 there would be only an average of four jet aircraft operations per day, creating a maximum noise exposure of about nine minutes in a 24-hour period.

The consultants also point out that the continued improvement of noise abatement equipment on aircraft would seem to indicate that the potential for a noise problem will be diminished even more by 1995.

The consultants noted that the lack of a land use (zoning) ordinance in South Haven township poses a potential for construction in the area that is incompatible with an airport.

The firm recommends that as soon as the airport expansion plan is definitely established an effort should be made to coordinate land use planning in the area.

In other environmental areas, the report concludes that the impact from increased aircraft operation on air quality will be minimal.

Boat Pilot Is Injured In Collision

St. Joseph township police said the operator of a boat sustained a head cut when his boat and another one collided Saturday night in the St. Joseph river south of the Napier avenue bridge.

Released after treatment at Memorial hospital was George C. Jolley, 46, LaPorte, Ind. Police said Jolley's wife and daughter were not injured. None of the five people on the other boat was hurt, police reported.

Police said the collision occurred about 9:30 p.m. between Jolley's 16-foot runabout and a 26-foot cabin cruiser, operated by James Dine, 21, of 4621 Red Arrow highway, Stevensville, and owned by John Lewellen, 545 Court, Niles.

Berrien sheriff's marine deputy George Fast said Jolley was ticketed for reckless operation of a motorboat.

Break-In, Gas Spill Are Probed

BUCHANAN — Police here said 363 gallons of gasoline, valued at $213, spilled from a gas tank at the Buchanan Iron and Metal plant, South Oak street, after a hose to the tank was jammed open during a break-in over the weekend.

Police said an employe of the firm reported the spilled gasoline at 11:39 p.m. Saturday and Buchanan firemen washed the gasoline down.

John Sebert, plant owner, told police that after checking the plant yesterday afternoon a case of motor oil valued at $24 and assorted tools valued at $100 had been taken from inside the building.

Police said the plant was entered by climbing over a concrete wall that surrounds the firm and then opening an unlocked overhead door to the plant, sometime between 4:30 p.m. on Friday and 11:30 p.m. Saturday.

A switch to an electric pump needed to operate the tank was turned on from inside the building before the hose to the tank, located outside the plant, was jammed open, police said.

Ruby's Kin Asks Probe

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (AP) — The brother of Jack Ruby says he wants an investigation into allegations that his brother was involved in the assassination of President John Kennedy. Earl Ruby, a Detroit dry cleaning business operator, said the allegations are "absolutely false." Frank Sturgis, a Watergate burglar and former CIA operative, has charged that Jack Ruby met with Fidel Castro 10 weeks before the Kennedy assassination to discuss the murder, as well as the smuggling of drugs and weapons. However, Earl Ruby claims the only time his brother was in Cuba was before Castro came into power in that country. Jack Ruby is the man who shot and killed Kennedy's alleged assassin, Lee Harvey Oswald.

AREA POLICE ROUNDUP

Silent Alarms Lead To Arrests

Benton Harbor and Benton township police reported three people were arrested when police were summoned by silent burglar alarms in buildings.

The alarms were at the Berrien county social services department's food stamp office, 242 Pipestone street, Benton Harbor, early today; and Surplus Trading company, 609 Paw Paw avenue, Benton township, Sunday afternoon.

Benton Harbor police said a young woman was arrested inside the social service office, but added they believe an alleged accomplice escaped.

Police said they surrounded the building after being summoned by a silent burglar alarm at 3:18 a.m. Nothing was believed taken. Police said entry was gained through a rear window, but said it was about six feet off the ground, leading them to believe more than one may have been involved. Police also said two nearby residents reported seeing two women walking around the building a short time earlier.

Booked at the Berrien county jail on a charge of breaking and entering was a woman identified by police as Lynda Jordon, 19, 682 East Main street.

Benton township police said a silent burglar alarm at Surplus Trading company brought police from two departments and resulted in the arrest of two men Sunday afternoon.

Benton Harbor Patrolman Dale Easton arrived at the store first after the 2:10 p.m. alarm, township police reported, and saw two men running from the building. The store is located immediately outside the city limits. Township Patrolmen Roger Spencer and David Hartman arrived soon after and two men were arrested nearby, police said. Police reported entry to the store was made through the roof. Police said they were unable to determine if anything was taken from the building.

Booked at the Berrien county jail on charges of breaking and entering were Ronald Jerome Wallace, 22, of 115 Water street, Benton Harbor, and Ismael Villegas, 27, of 130 Water street, Benton Harbor.

Vandals over the weekend caused water damage estimated to be at least $2,500 in an office building at 505 Pleasant street, St. Joseph, according to city police.

Police said vandalism originated in a third floor men's restroom where paper towels were stuffed in the drain of a wash bowl with the water running, and a coffee cup was put over the drain of toilet.

Police said water overflowed and seeped through floors and ceilings from the third floor to the basement. Police said the damage could run higher, if ceiling plaster gives way and has to be replaced.

The vandalism was reported at 8:17 p.m. Saturday. Police said the office building had been damaged some time ago by water and two fires earlier were discovered in trash cans.

Benton Harbor police said three youths, including two juvenile boys, were arrested during an investigation into a burglary Friday at the home of Ruth Brooks, 591 North Winans street.

Police said allegedly stolen items seized were a portable television set, a rifle and ammunition, totaling some $127.

Booked on a charge of receiving and concealing stolen property under $100 was Elliott Ray West, 17, of 405 Ohio street, Benton Harbor. Police said a 16-year-old boy of Benton Harbor was booked on a charge of breaking and entering, and a 15-year-old boy, also of Benton Harbor, was booked on a charge of receiving and concealing stolen property under $100. They were to be petitioned to juvenile court.

Police said the television set was located in a woods off North McCord street.

Joel King, 1001 Niles road, Berrien Springs, told Berrien sheriff's deputies his 1970 Honda cycle was taken from where it was parked at the side of his residence.

Other thefts reported to deputies were:

—Cash totaling $163 from the Zephyr service station, Red Arrow highway, Bridgman.

—Auto parts and a radio valued at about $100, from Five Corners garage, Pipestone road, Eau Claire.

—A $100 CB radio from the car of Racho Jeschke, 3619 St. Joseph avenue, Stevensville.

Thefts reported to Benton Harbor police were:

—Cash totaling $100 from the home of Joe Whiteside, 319 Washington street.

—A $65 calculator from Hatfield Electric company, 427 North Hull avenue.

A young Benton Harbor man was arrested Sunday morning by Benton township police on a charge of larceny of gasoline from a motor vehicle.

Patrolman John Murphy reported he responded to a call from a resident at Napier Manor apartments, 777 East Napier avenue, that someone was attempting a theft about 7 a.m. He said he found a car with a garden hose running from the gas tank to a gas can. He reported a young man was arrested in a nearby car after a brief struggle. Booked at the Berrien county jail was Tony Jones, 17, of 344 High street.

Frank Kalowich, 3930 Lincoln avenue, Lincoln township, told Berrien sheriff's deputies the garage of his home was struck by a shotgun blast fired from a vehicle traveling at a high rate of speed. Another blast apparently hit a tree near the home, deputies said. The incident was reported about 3 a.m. Sunday, and deputies said there appeared to be no motive.

St. Joseph police said a 1974 Jeep reported stolen early Sunday from the St. Joseph Holiday Inn parking lot was recovered Sunday afternoon parked in a lot on Graves street near Upton drive. Karen Ann Carpenter, 4076 Carolyn street, Coloma, reported the theft of her vehicle shortly after 1 a.m. She is employed at the Holiday Inn as a waitress, police said. Patrolman William Beaudette located the Jeep while on routine patrol shortly after 2 p.m. It was apparently undamaged and the keys were in the Jeep.

State police of the Benton Harbor post early today arrested Cloise Hill, 38, Kalamazoo, on a charge of possession of marijuana after his car was stopped for speeding on I-94 in Benton township. He was booked at the county jail after troopers said a little more than an ounce of suspected marijuana was confiscated from the car about 12:35 a.m.

Frazer Charges Stockman With 'Blatant' Appeal

David S. Frazer, candidate for Republican nomination for Fourth District congressman, charged today that opponent David Stockman made "blatant appeals to special interests" in fund-raising among the medical and dental professions.

"It's no wonder that David Stockman can plan to spend over $100,000 in the primary election campaign if he is making the same sort of promises to all special interest groups that he is making to purveyors of medical and dental services," Frazer said.

Frazer charged that a fund-raising letter headed "Medical/Dental Professionals for Stockman" implied that Stockman would oppose national health insurance and would oppose review of complaints against medical and dental practitioners by persons other than members of those professions while, supporting legislation designed to relieve doctors and dentists of the "undue burden" of the malpractice crisis.

Frazer declared a June 28 fund-raising letter mailed to doctors and dentists throughout the district from the Stockman headquarters went out over the signatures of a St. Joseph physician and a Stevensville dentist and said: "we desperately need men in Lansing and Washington who will listen to our views."

Frazer said the letter added: "Dave (Stockman) shares our concern on key health issues" and that "we will need Dave's support in the future to keep intact the system which has been so good to us (doctors and dentists)."

Frazer said: "With health care taking nearly one-third of the disposable income of the average American family, with 125 Michigan towns seeking doctors and a statewide shortage of 2,000, and having had to search for three years to find a doctor to care for my family, I'm not about to close my mind to any reasonable solution to the problem."

"Personally," Frazer added, "The concept of socialized health care is repugnant to me but this certainly does not mean I'm content with the status quo. We can learn from the mistakes of countries like Great Britain and Sweden and come up with something better than simply sitting still while health insurance costs go up 20 to 30 percent every six months."

"A candidate who shuts his mind to people problems in order to win support and campaign contributions from special interest groups is one of the principle reasons the so called Washington establishment is held in such low repute today," Frazer said.

Frazer, Benton Harbor, and Stockman, St. Joseph, are among four candidates seeking the Republican nomination in the Aug. 3 primary

Airport Hearing Set For Aug. 4 At South Haven

BY TOM RENNER
South Haven Correspondent

SOUTH HAVEN — The Michigan Aeronautics commission will conduct a public hearing Aug. 5 at 7:30 p.m. at the South Haven city hall to review a consultant's assessment of the environmental impact from a proposed expansion of the South Haven municipal airport. The report was prepared by the city's aviation consultants, R. Dixon Speas Associates of Minneapolis. It is available for inspection at the city manager's office.

The city is considering upgrading the airport to be able to accommodate business-type jets by 1995. Proposed is the construction of a new 5,300-foot long, 150 foot wide northeast-southwest runway and a 3,600-foot long, 75 foot wide northwest-southeast runway. The existing 3,400-foot long runway would serve as a taxiway for the northeast-southwest runway.

The airport is located on CR-380 east of M-140. It is owned by the city of South Haven, but surrounded by South Haven township.

The expansion would require the acquisition of approximately 268 acres of additional land. The present airport comprises 152 acres. The proposed acquisitions would include 157 acres purchased outright and 111 acres that would be controlled by easements.

The proposed runway configuration and land acquisition would necessitate the displacement of two residences. Most of the property in the area is farmland.

The consultants have estimated that home-based aircraft will increase from its current 25 to as many as 70 in 1995. Aircraft operations (takeoffs and landings) are projected to increase from its current annual average of 18,900 to as many as 52,400 by 1995.

The only potential negative environmental impact from the expansion would be from the noise of jet aircraft, according to the consultants.

However, the consultants believe the noise will not be excessive to a point where residents in the flight path would have to be re-located. It is estimated that by 1995 there would be only an average of four jet aircraft operations per day, creating a maximum noise exposure of about nine minutes in a 24-hour period.

The consultants also point out that the continued improvement of noise abatement equipment on aircraft would seem to indicate that the potential for a noise problem will be diminished even more by 1995.

The consultants noted that the lack of a land use (zoning) ordinance in South Haven township poses a potential for construction in the area that is incompatible with an airport.

The firm recommends that as soon as the airport expansion plan is definitely established an effort should be made to coordinate land use planning in the area.

In other environmental areas, the report concludes that the impact from increased aircraft operation on air quality will be minimal.

Boat Pilot Is Injured In Collision

St. Joseph township police said the operator of a boat sustained a head cut when his boat and another one collided Saturday night in the St. Joseph river south of the Napier avenue bridge.

Released after treatment at Memorial hospital was George C. Jolley, 46, LaPorte, Ind. Police said Jolley's wife and daughter were not injured. None of the five people on the other boat was hurt, police reported.

Police said the collision occurred about 9:30 p.m. between Jolley's 16-foot runabout and a 26-foot cabin cruiser, operated by James Dine, 21, of 4621 Red Arrow highway, Stevensville, and owned by John Lewellen, 515 Court, Niles.

Berrien sheriff's marine eputy George Fast said Jolley was ticketed for reckless operation of a motorboat.

Break-In, Gas Spill Are Probed

BUCHANAN — Police here said 363 gallons of gasoline, valued at $213, spilled from a gas tank at the Buchanan Iron and Metal plant, South Oak street, after a hose to the tank was jammed open during a break-in over the weekend.

Police said an employe of the firm reported the spilled gasoline at 11:39 p.m. Saturday and Buchanan firemen washed the gasoline down.

John Sebert, plant owner, told police that after checking the plant yesterday afternoon a case of motor oil valued at $24 and assorted tools valued at $100 had been taken from inside the building.

Police said the plant was entered by climbing over a concrete wall that surrounds the firm and then opening an unlocked overhead door to the plant, sometime between 4:30 p.m. on Friday and 11:30 p.m. Saturday.

A switch to an electric pump needed to operate the tank was turned on from inside the building before the hose to the tank, located outside the plant, was jammed open, police said.

Ruby's Kin Asks Probe

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (AP) — The brother of Jack Ruby says he wants an investigation into allegations that his brother was involved in the assassination of President John Kennedy. Earl Ruby, a Detroit dry cleaning business operator, said the allegations are "absolutely false." Frank Sturgis, a Watergate burglar and former CIA operative, has charged that Jack Ruby met with Fidel Castro 10 weeks before the Kennedy assassination to discuss the murder, as well as the smuggling of drugs and weapons. However, Earl Ruby claims the only time his brother was in Cuba was before Castro came into power in that country. Jack Ruby is the man who shot and killed Kennedy's alleged assassin, Lee Harvey Oswald.

FENNVILLE PARADE: This Saugatuck township Bicentennial commission float dipicting some of country's revolutionary heroes was among 14 floats participating Saturday in Fennville's Bicentennial parade. Some 500 people watched parade, according to Mrs. Helen Bashford, secretary of sponsoring Fennville Chamber of Commerce. She described parade as largest and most complete in Fennville's history. A 16 by 30 foot handmade replica of country's first flag led parade. Parade topped city's two-day Bicentennial observance. (Ray Farnum photo)

AREA POLICE ROUNDUP

Silent Alarms Lead To Arrests

Benton Harbor and Benton township police reported three people were arrested when police were summoned by silent burglar alarms in buildings.

The alarms were at the Berrien county social services department's food stamp office, 242 Pipestone street, Benton Harbor, early today; and Surplus Trading company, 609 Paw Paw avenue, Benton township, Sunday afternoon.

Benton Harbor police said a young woman was arrested inside the social service office, but added they believe an alleged accomplice escaped.

Police said they surrounded the building after being summoned by a silent burglar alarm at 3:18 a.m. Nothing was believed taken. Police said entry was gained through a rear window, but said it was about six feet off the ground, leading them to believe more than one may have been involved. Police also said two nearby residents reported seeing two women walking around the building a short time earlier.

Booked at the Berrien county jail on a charge of breaking and entering was a woman identified by police as Lynda Jordon, 19, 682 East Main street.

Benton township police said a silent burglar alarm at Surplus Trading company brought police from two departments and resulted in the arrest of two men Sunday afternoon.

Benton Harbor Patrolman Dale Easton arrived at the store first after the 2:10 p.m. alarm, township police reported, and saw two men running from the building. The store is located immediately outside the city limits. Township Patrolmen Roger Spencer and David Hartman arrived soon after and two men were arrested nearby, police said. Police reported entry to the store was made through the roof. Police said they were unable to determine if anything was taken from the building.

Booked at the Berrien county jail on charges of breaking and entering were Ronald Jerome Wallace, 22, of 115 Water street, Benton Harbor, and Ismael Villegas, 27, of 130 Water street, Benton Harbor.

Vandals over the weekend caused water damage estimated to be at least $2,500 in an office building at 505 Pleasant street, St. Joseph, according to city police.

Police said vandalism originated in a third floor men's restroom where paper towels were stuffed in the drain of a wash bowl with the water running, and a coffee cup was put over the drain of toilet.

Police said water overflowed and seeped through floors and ceilings from the third floor to the basement. Police said the damage could run higher, if ceiling plaster gives way and has to be replaced.

The vandalism was reported at 8:17 p.m. Saturday. Police said the office building had been damaged some time ago by water and two fires earlier were discovered in trash cans.

Benton Harbor police said three youths, including two juvenile boys, were arrested during an investigation into a burglary Friday at the home of Ruth Brooks, 591 North Winans street.

Police said allegedly stolen items seized were a portable television set, a rifle and ammunition, totaling some $127.

Booked on a charge of receiving and concealing stolen property under $100 was Elliott Ray West, 17, of 405 Ohio street, Benton Harbor. Police said a 16-year-old boy of Benton Harbor was booked on a charge of breaking and entering, and a 15-year-old boy, also of Benton Harbor, was booked on a charge of receiving and concealing stolen property under $100. They were to be petitioned to juvenile court.

Police said the television set was located in a woods off North McCord street.

A $550 motorcycle was among seven thefts reported over the weekend to Twin Cities area police.

Joel King, 1001 Niles road, Berrien Springs, told Berrien sheriff's deputies his 1970 Honda cycle was taken from where it was parked at the side of his residence.

Other thefts reported to deputies were:

—Cash totaling $162 from the Zephyr service station, Red Arrow highway, Bridgman.

—Auto parts and a radio valued at about $160, from Five Corners garage, Pipestone road, Eau Claire.

—A $100 CB radio from the car of Racho Jeschke, 5649 St. Joseph avenue, Stevensville.

Thefts reported to Benton Harbor police were:

—A purse containing a checkbook, savings book, watch, silver wedding band and two other rings, all valued at $200, from the apartment of Danelle Williams, 826 East Main street.

—Cash totaling $100 from the home of Joe Whiteside, 339 Washington street.

—A $65 calculator from Hatfield Electric company, 427 North Hull avenue.

A young Benton Harbor man was arrested Sunday morning by Benton township police on a charge of larceny of gasoline from a motor vehicle.

Patrolman John Murphy reported he responded to a call from a resident at Napier Manor apartments, 777 East Napier avenue, that someone was attempting a theft about 7 a.m. He said he found a car with a garden hose running from the gas tank to a gas can. He reported a young man was arrested in a nearby car after a brief struggle. Booked at the Berrien county jail was Tony Jones, 17, of 344 High street.

Frank Katowich, 3930 Lincoln avenue, Lincoln township, told Berrien sheriff's deputies the garage of his home was struck by a shotgun blast fired from a vehicle traveling at a high rate of speed. Another blast apparently hit a tree near the home, deputies said. The incident was reported about 3 a.m. Sunday, and deputies said there appeared to be no motive.

St. Joseph police said a 1974 Jeep reported stolen early Sunday from the St. Joseph Holiday Inn parking lot was recovered Sunday afternoon parked in a lot on Graves street near Upton drive. Karen Ann Carpenter, 4076 Carolyn street, Coloma, reported the theft of her vehicle shortly after 1 a.m. She is employed at the Holiday Inn as a waitress, police said. Patrolman William Beaudette located the Jeep while on routine patrol shortly after 2 p.m. It was apparently undamaged and the keys were in the Jeep.

State police of the Benton Harbor post early today arrested Cloise Hill, 38, Kalamazoo, on a charge of possession of marijuana after his car was stopped for speeding on I-94 in Benton township. He was booked at the county jail after troopers said a little more than an ounce of suspected marijuana was confiscated from the car about 12:35 a.m.

Frazer Charges Stockman With 'Blatant' Appeal

David S. Frazer, candidate for Republican nomination for Fourth District congressman, charged today that opponent David Stockman made "blatant appeals to special interests" in fund-raising among the medical and dental professions.

"It's no wonder that David Stockman can plan to spend over $100,000 in the primary election campaign if he is making the same sort of promises to all special interest groups that he is making to purveyors of medical and dental services," Frazer said.

Frazer charged that a fund-raising letter headed "Medical/Dental Professionals for Stockman" implied that Stockman would oppose national health insurance and would oppose review of complaints against medical and dental practitioners by persons other than members of those professions while supporting legislation designed to relieve doctors and dentists of the "undue burden" of the malpractice crisis.

Frazer declared a June 28 fund-raising letter mailed to doctors and dentists throughout the district from the Stockman headquarters went out over the signatures of a St. Joseph physician and a Stevensville dentist and said: "we desperately need men in Lansing and Washington who will listen to our views."

Frazer said the letter added: "Dave (Stockman) shares our concern on key health issues" and that "we will need Dave's support in the future to keep intact the system which has been so good to us (doctors and dentists)."

Frazer said: "With health care taking nearly one-third of the disposable income of the average American family, with 125 Michigan towns seeking doctors and a statewide shortage of 2,000, and having had to search for three years to find a doctor to care for my family, I'm not about to close my mind to any reasonable solution to the problem."

"Personally," Frazer added, "The concept of socialized health care is repugnant to me but this certainly does not mean I'm content with the status quo. We can learn from the mistakes of countries like Great Britain and Sweden and come up with something better than simply sitting still while health insurance costs go up 20 to 30 percent every six months."

"A candidate who shuts his mind to people problems in order to win support and campaign contributions from special interest groups is one of the principle reasons the so called Washington establishment is held in such low repute today," Frazer said.

Frazer, Benton Harbor, and Stockman, St. Joseph, are among four candidates seeking the Republican nomination in the Aug. 3 primary

HOME SWEET HOME: Mrs. Paulette Maxam (above) and her husband Dean, of rural Gobles, found "Welcome Home Heroine" sign on their home to which they returned over weekend after run-in with alleged bandit near Denver, Colo., last Thursday. The 31-year-old housewife made headlines across nation when she pursued and captured man she claimed took $200 from their Thornton, Colo., motel room. But troubles were not over, she said. Following night at same motel, mirrors were taken from motorcycle she and her husband had ridden out to Colorado. (Margaret Norman photo)
